WORLD PARLEY IS CALLED AIM OF NAVAL PLAN

Launching of Program at Present Time Seen as Advance Step.

GROUND IS PREPARED FOR 1931 MEETING

Conference Might Be Held Earlier if Powers Are Agreeable.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH RECEIVES ATTENTION

Application of Methods Which Are Accepted to Navies Is All-Important.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover's real purpose in launching his program for navel reduction at this time is to prepare the ground for the 1931 naval conference to be held at Washington, according to the consensus of opinion here. The next developments in Europe or elsewhere are being regarded as part of the preliminaries necessary to make the later conference a success.

This is not interpreted to mean that there may not be a conference during the next few months, or early next year, to discuss the Gibson formula for measuring fighting strength of navies or to take up other questions of method. If the interested powers are anxious or ready to proceed with such discussions, the United States will doubtless encourage such plans. But even agreement in important questions of method or practical adoption of the proposed American formula or yardstick of measurement would represent only a first step toward actual agreement on the main problem of relative reduction. There would still remain the all-important question of the application of the methods decided upon to the respective navies, and this is the major task which can hardly be undertaken until the ground is well prepared, but which must be undertaken in 1931.

Speeches Called Advance Steps.

Viewed in this light, the President's Memorial Day speech and the statement which Secretary of State Stimson made on the following day appear to many here as the first necessary steps to focus world attention on the big task which President Hoover is bound to undertake under the terms of the last Washington naval treaty. The importance of the advance steps to be taken might make it advisable to keep the significance of the coming Washington conference in the background for the present, and there have been intimations from the White House that the President is for the moment chiefly interested in the method proposed by the American formula. The calling of the Washington conference is already arranged for and will come as a matter of course.

The time for this conference has been set and the announced purpose will be to reconsider and revise the limitations imposed by the Washington treaty in the light of developments which have occurred during the last eight years. Complete revision of the Washington pact, even with respect to limitations imposed on capital ships, will be subject to discussion by the representatives of the interested powers.

Strict Rules Prohibited.

No narrow rule can be imposed in advance to limit the discussions to particular types of ship or to particular aspects of the general problem. In other words, President Hoover will have unrestricted opportunity to put his program of real reduction to a practical test. It is probable that some of the powers failed in 1921 to realize the full significance of the second paragraph in Article 21 of Chapter 3 of the Washington Naval Treaty. This paragraph states:

"In view of possible technical and scientific developments, the United States, after consultation with the other contracting parties, shall arrange for a conference of all the contracting powers, which shall convene as soon as possible after the expiration of eight years from the coming into force of the present treaty to consider what changes, if any, in the treaty may be necessary to meet such developments."

The Washington treaty came into force on August 17, 1923. This would bring the date of the new conference on August 17, 1931, but diplomatic exchanges between the interested powers have already paved the way for the holding of this conference in the spring of 1931. It is possible that arrangement might be made by the powers themselves to still further advance the date, but the impression is that President Hoover will be desirous of fully preparing the way for this meeting and will therefore take full advantage of the period of time elapsing between now and 1931.

According to present indicatioons the European governments will await the outcome of the League of Nationos meeting next September before com-

Extra Session Recess Causes Rift to Widen In Republicans' Ranks

Smoot Joins Jones to Urge Short Adjournment and Resumption of Business About August 10; Watson Wants Three-month Suspension, Leaving Farm Bill Until Return.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The split in the Senate Republican ranks over the length of the recess widened yesterday and there was apprehension in some quarters that if the whittling down process continued there might be no vacation at all.

Early in the day, the Senate finance committee got together and agreed upon open hearings on the tariff bill by subcommittees, instead of the committee as a whole, whereupon Senator Reed Smoot, stanchest of regulars, said he was opposed to a recess longer than early August, the tenth, perhaps.

He was the second Republican leader to run out on Senator Watson's plan for a three-months' recess, Senator Jones, of Washington, having protested to the White House several days ago.

Watson stuck to his three-months' plan, which agrees with the view of the House leaders, after Smoot's unexpected stand had been made known. Jones, who had wanted the recess held to about three weeks, subscribed to Smoot's plan.

The attitude of Senator Borah, who wants the Senate to stay right here, was not made known. Presumably it is unchanged.

Under the arrangement determined upon by the finance committee Smoot declared that the tariff bill should be ready for the Senate not later than August and therefore it should not recess longer than that.

With the various subcommittees working at once, he said, a fact in which the committee concurred, the bill should be ready for the full committee not later than July 10. The committee then should not require more than three weeks to whip it into shape.

It is planned to begin the hearings June 11 or thereabouts. In view of the fact that subjects are to be divided among the subcommittee there were many who believed the date set for the conclusion of their work was too far advanced. There was consid-

HIGH COURT RAISES SINCLAIR JAIL TERM

$1,000 BURNS FINE UPHELD

(Associated Press.)

After completing his present 90-day sentence in the District Jail for contempt of the Senate, Harry F. Sinclair must serve an additional six months on the charges growing out of the jury shadowing which caused the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy mistrial.

Of the others brought to trial in the same contempt of court case, whose appeals were covered in a decision rendered yesterday by the Supreme Court, William J. Burns alone was exempted from serving the sentence imposed. The court ruled that the evidence failed to show the former head of the Burns Detective Agency was in any way responsible for the shadowing and set aside the fifteen-day jail term which had been imposed upon him.

Henry Mason Day, an assistant to Sinclair, who employed the Burns detectives who shadowed the jurors, must serve four months in jail. W. Sherman Burns, who had active charge of the detective agency at the time must pay the $1,000 fine imposed on him.

Sinclair, now working in the District Jail pharmacy, refused to discuss yesterday's decision. District Attorney Leo Rover said the oil magnate would begin serving the second sentence as soon as he had completed the present term. The District attorney said the millionaire would be entitled to five-days a month off each sentence for good behavior, which would require him to serve at least seven and one-half months in jail from the time of his commitment May 6.

The Supreme Court decision was unanimous except that Justice Stone did not participate. He was Attorney General while some of the oil scandal cases were before the courts.

Justice McReynolds, in delivering the opinion, said fifteen Burns agents came to Washington "to spy upon, investigate and shadow jurors." These agents, the court said, investigated encumbrances on the home of one juror, investigated the family of another, and made false reports concerning a third. Day admitted, it added, that the agents had been employed by direction of Sinclair.

The principal grounds of defense in the trial, Justice McReynolds explained, was that it was essential for

RAILWAYS TO RENEW FIGHT FOR FARE RISE

Increase Will Depend on New Valuation, to Take Two Years, Is Belief.

ACTION THIS WEEK SEEN

The battle over higher street car fares, interrupted last year because of the proposed merger agreement pending before Congress, is to be resumed in the next few days.

"We probably will take some action before the end of the week," John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., said yesterday.

Renewal of the company's request for higher car fares has been expected for some time, the time limit fixed by the old utilities commission when it dismissed without prejudice the Capital Traction demand for higher fares having expired last March 5. The merger agreement between the street car companies and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. expired last week.

A straight 8-cent cash fare with an alternative proposal of 10 cents cash or four tokens for 30 cents was asked by the Capital Traction Co. last year, both for its own lines and those of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Although the demand was made on the grounds of "urgent needs"—which were explained to be needed for additional money to continue to pay 7 per cent dividend to its stockholders without additional borrowings from its surplus funds—the company sought to justify its demand by the rate of return it was earning on its valuation.

The present fares, the company said, were yielding only a 3.81 per cent on its valuation of $25,750,000, fixed by the District Court of Appeals as of January 1, 1925. It estimated that the straight 8 cents cash fare would mean a net increase in its revenues of $447,299.27, enough to give a return of 5.52 per cent on its valuation. The alternative higher fare, it estimated, would bring in a net increase of $386,506.61, which would bring its return on valuation up to 5.29 per cent.

The rate of return yielded by the 8-cent cash fare on the combined valuations of the Capital Traction and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. would be 6.13 per cent, while the alternative would give a return of 5.84 per cent, it was estimated.

But these very valuation figures which the company used and is expected to use again as justification for higher fares is expected to prove the

Countess Folke Bernadotte Stricken With Appendicitis

Former Miss Manville Is Operated Upon at New York.

New York, June 3.—(N.Y.W.N.S.).—Countess Folke Bernadotte, the former Miss Estelle R. Manville, of New York, was taken off the Swedish-American Liner Kingsholm at Quarantine tonight suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis and rushed in an ambulance to the Fifth Avenue Hospital, where she was operated on. It was said at the home of her father, H. Edward Manville, asbestos magnate, that it was expected she would be out of the hospital within ten days.

The countess, by her marriage a niece of the King of Sweden, was stricken aboard the liner early today. An urgent message was sent to her father, who met the incoming liner at Quarantine.

MORROW DEATH THREAT LETTER LAID TO GUARD

Former Washington Man Is Blamed for Notes by Boston Paper.

Mrs. Larz Anderson and Others Also Received Communications.

MAN NOW EMPLOYED IN CUSTOMS SERVICE

Sister-in-Law of Lindbergh, 15, Was Subject of Warning and Money Demand.

Boston, June 3 (A.P.).—The Boston Herald, in a copyrighted article, tomorrow will say that post office inspectors have traced the source of threatening letters sent recently to Constance Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, and other prominent persons, to a water front customs guard here.

The Herald will say that the guard was formerly an orderly and valet to Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the Twenty-sixth Division, and that he was for many years a decoder in the War Department at Washington.

Others Received Threats.

Others who received letters similar to those sent the 15-year-old sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, acccording to the Herald story, were Frederick H. Rawson, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and the family of Frances St. John Smith, Smith College student whose body was found several months ago in the Connecticut River at Springfield.

The letter to Rawson threatened injury to his son, Kenneth, a member of one of Commander Donald A. MacMillan's expeditions to Labrador. The St. John Smith letter warned that the girl would never return alive unless the writer's demands were met.

Letters Demanded Money.

In each instance the letters demanded large sums of money and were accompanied by threats of violence or death if the money was not forthcoming.

Letters similar to those sent Miss Morrow were also received by Mrs. Larz, Anderson, wife of the diplomat, and Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of former Gov. Guild, according to Westwood police who investigated the Morrow letter. In the Morrow letter, the writer ordered the recipient to place a sum of money near a stone wall by the roadside near the home of Gen. Edwards in Westwood. The writer failed to appear when police placed dummy packages at the given spot and laid traps to catch him.

Hoover Law Commission Leases Suite of Offices

Twenty-six hundred feet of floor space was leased by the commission.

Coolidge Sprains Wrist While on Fishing Trip

Northampton, Mass., June 3 (A.P.)—Former President Calvin Coolidge is suffering from a sprained left wrist, it became known today when he appeared at his law office with his forearm in splints. It is understood the injury was suffered while he was on a fishing trip Saturday.

Three Education Board Members Reappointed

Three members of the Board of Education of the District were reappointed for another term yesterday by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the District Supreme Court.

The three are Charles F. Carusi, president of the board, Henry Gilligan and Mrs. Mary A. McNeill.

3 Killed, 10 Injured As Bus Is Wrecked

Big Machine and Auto Go in Ditch Close to Cincinnati.

Batavia, Ohio, June 3 (A.P.).—Three persons, a man and two women, were killed instantly and ten other persons were injured near here early tonight. A bus, bound from Cincinnati to Columbus, hooked wheels with an automobile and both went into a ditch, the three dead being pinned under the bus.

All the dead were occupants of the bus.

The dead are: Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Ireton, of Marathon, Ohio, and Mrs. Lucy B. Schaver, 60, of Pittsburgh.

Seven of the injured were taken to Cincinnati hospitals and the others to Hillsboro. Extent of their injuries was undetermined. The injured include Mrs. Inez Post, 30, address unknown; Miss Florence Bobb, 24, address unknown; Joseph Brown, 40, San Antonio, Tex.; the Rev. Alvis S. Bennett, 57, Hartford, Ky., and an unidentified woman believed to be Mrs. S. B. Beecher, of Hillsboro, Ohio.

Sun Shines First Time for Week on Wreckage in 5 States.

DAMAGE IN SOUTHEAST REPORTED IN MILLIONS

Blinding Storm Rips Planes to Pieces as It Sweeps Wichita Airport.

Greenville, Miss., June 3 (A.P.).—The threat of a flood stood menancingly before Greenville tonight while business man, planter, negro and convict worked side by side to save the city and the lower delta from the rampaging waters of the Mississippi.

As night fell, man had won over the river, for the time being at least, and grim hope was expressed by the foreman in charge that they would be able to hold back the pounding waves that shot a spout of sand and water 10 feet into the air at 8 a. m. today, opening a wide gap in the levee one mile and a half below the city.

The geyser sprang from a sand boil at the foot of the levees, which blew out before a guard could summon aid. By a strange quirk of nature, the top and sides of the levee immediately dropped into the gap and stopped the rush of water before it hardly had started.

All Business Closes.

Immediately the alarm was sounded in Greenville, precipitating a panic. Regular residents recalled the horrors of the 1927 inundation when the city was drowned for several weeks. Housewives sought high places for their valuables, store keepers moved their goods to upper floors, newcomers and tenderfeet fled the city. The mayor issued orders closing all places of business and called for volunteers to save the city.

Within a short time a thousand men were working like beavers, laying willow mats, brush, and sandbags around the weak spot and had strated building a loop behind the whole area of 200 by 500 feet. Before night another thousand men had arrived, including 300 State convicts who were working higher up the river. They planned to toil through the night.

Late today one of the levee engineers sent out word that the odds were in favor of the levee holding.

Comfort was felt in the fact that the river has fallen three-tenths of a foot below the crest of the present rise with indications of a further fall.

Sun Shows Week's Wreckage.

Kansas City, Mo., June 3 (U.P.).—The sun blazed down today for the first time in a week over parts of five Southwestern States, illuminating scenes of broken buildings, mud-coated fields, flooded streams and damaged crops.

There had been a score of deaths by drowning during the period of violent rains in Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. Damage to property and agriculture was reckoned at several million dollars and, in Kansas alone, it was estimated the reduction of corn acreage had virtually struck out from $10,000,000 to $18,000,000 of the average yield.

What weather men believed to be the end of the daily downpour came dramatically Sunday night in a mile-a-minute gale, accompanied by hail and sheets of rain. The storm moved into Kansas from Northern Oklahoma and blustered unabated as far as Kansas City.

Twenty houses were tossed aside or damaged by the blinding storm at

Pedestrian Killed, Auto Driver Held

Mrs. Evelyn Widney Dies and Lloyd Russel Is Arrested.

Mrs. Evelyn Widney, 56 years old, of 1417 Park road northwest, was knocked down and fatally injured by an automobile early last night at Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest. She died an hour after the accident at Garfield Hospital.

Lloyd C. Russell, 35 years old, of the Chastleton Apartments, Sixteenth and R streets northwest, driver of the automobile, was arrested following the accident, and upon the death of Mrs. Widney, was released in custody of his attorney pending the coroner's inquest this morning at 11:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Widney was crossing Sixteenth street when hit by the automobile, according to the police of the Tenth Precinct, who investigated. Russell's automobile was proceeding north on the same thoroughfare. Mrs. Widney was taken to Garfield Hospital in a taxicab operated by J. Rieal, of 2122 P street northwest.

Precipitous Ceremony Is Climax to Many Denials of Early Marriage.

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—Douglas Fairbanks, jr., screen star, and Lucille Fay Le Sueur, known on the screen as Joan Crawford, were married today by the Rev. Edward F. Leonard at St. Malachy's Roman Catholic Church.

The ceremony took place in the rectory of the church, which is known as the "Actors' Church," shortly after the couple obtained a marriage license at the City Hall, when Fairbanks said they would not be married until some time in the fall.

Beth Sully, mother of the bridegroom and first wife of Douglas Fairbanks, attended the ceremony. A telegram of congratulation was received by them from Mr. Fairbanks' father.

The couple arrived in New York from California last Thursday after denying several times en route that they intended to be married on the trip here. When they arrived here Fairbanks said they were on a vacation between the making of pictures and did not intend to be married until some time later. They planned to return to California next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks said they both intended to continue their motion picture careers. After Mrs. Fairbanks com-

A colorful "love at first sight" romance that budded in 1921 at the University of Texas and developed sensationally into an ardent courtship which involved the British Embassy and momentarily threatened international complications, culminated Sunday afternoon at New York City in the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Culberson and Alexander E. Robertson.

Miss Culberson, a 26-year-old beauty, is widely known as the daughter of the late United States Senator Charles A. Culberson and a former Governor of Texas. Mr. Robertson, a native of Liverpool, England, and a British war veteran, has made his home on several occasions with his aunt, Mrs. Mary T. Andrews, of 162 Ashland avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., although he was said to be residing temporarily in New York City.

Widely circulated reports of the marriage were confirmed to The Washington Post by one of Miss Culberson's nearest kinsmen, Maj. H. M. Reed, of Virginia Military Institute, from his home in Lexington, Va., last night by telephone in response to a query.

Wedding Is Surprise.

"Miss Culberson, following a visit she made at our home here recently, telephoned us from New York that she had married Mr. Robertson there Sunday afternoon," declared Maj. Reed. "She did not give any other details, however, and it came as a surprise. She had visited friends in Shelbyville, Ky., and had gone to New York only about two weeks ago to visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. L. M. Beeman, of 924 West End avenue."

Long distance calls to the Beeman home brought only noncommittal answers, while an unidentified woman at the home of Robertson's aunt merely declared that "they are married."

The story of their unswering devotion through trial and tribulation through a span of seven years in which they were often separated by obstacles strewn in their path by the girl's father reads almost like fiction.

Robertson, possessing an enviable war record as one of Britain's first 100,000 on the Western Front, in 1921 landed at Austin, Tex., to seek his fame and fortune. Matriculating at the University of Texas, the tall, good-looking Britisher met Miss Culberson, who was said "never to have had a sweetheart" until their paths crossed.

Letters Start Opposition.

A Syracuse (N. Y.) automobile concern took him East, and the girl found it to her liking also to follow soon afterward and enter the Holton Arms School here. Considerable correspondence passed between them, and Robertson came here to pledge his love anew. Gaining this first intimation of the affair, the girl's parents hastened to separate the lovers. Chesley W. Gurney, secretary at that time to Senator Culberson, held a spirited conference with the war veteran, which terminated only in reports that Robertson vowed his intentions of marriage, despite limited finances.

Soon afterward, on May 7, 1922, the Englishman instituted legal action,

STUDENT ARRESTED IN SUICIDE OF GIRL

JILTED, SHE EXCLAIMED

A. R. Segal, 32-year-old George Washington University student, with whose pistol Nellie Smokorski, alias Alice Johnson, shot herself fatally Friday near a church, was being held last night by the police for investigation in connection with the girl's death. Action of the police in ordering Segal held followed a two-hour grilling yesterday. During the police inquiry, Segal was aided by Representative Godfrey G. Goodwin, of Minnesota, Segal's home State.

Although the girl died Saturday under the name of Alice Johnson, Segal divulged that her real name was Nellie Smokorski. In revealing her real identity, Segal said he was inspired by the fear that the girl would receive a pauper's burial.

The woman shot herself twice Friday afternoon in the vicinity of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church. She told police she had been jilted by the man who had promised to marry her, and who rode by the church in an au-

BALDWIN MINISTRY RESIGNS PORTFOLIOS

Action Follows Party's Lost Prestige in Election; Quit Office Today.

MACDONALD TO GET CALL

London, June 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Premier Stanley Baldwin received at his last cabinet meeting today the resignations of his colleagues in the Conservative government. He will motor to Windsor Castle tomorrow, if King George is able to see him, and hand over the seals of office.

The king, upon his prime minister's advice, will then send for Ramsay MacDonald, Labor's leader, and ask him to form a government. MacDonald will accept and will announce his cabinet as soon as possible.

The new Labor ministers will take office at once and when Parliament meets on June 25 Labor will have been in office more than a fortnight and will already have initiated measures which the House of Commons will be asked to sanction after the king's speech, which MacDonald will write to be delivered from the throne on behalf of the ailing monarch by the lord chamberlain.

Baldwin's decision was probably taken during his week-end at Chec-

New York Bandits Hold Up Auto, Get $15,000 in Gems

Criminals Threaten Firm Partner and Employe as Car Slows Up in Crowded Street and Force Them to Go to Roof of Tenement.

New York, June 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two holdup men at 5 o'clock this evening boarded a sedan in which Moe Joloffsky, 24, member of the jewelry concern of S. Joloffsky & Son, and Herman Rudoff, 16, an employe, were riding south in First avenue, forced them to turn east into Ninety-third street and, compelling them to go to the roof of a tenement, escaped with the car and three cases containing jewels valued at $15,000.

Joloffsky and Rudoff, after taking orders for jewelry at stores in 125th street, were heading down First avenue on their way to the concern's office when, at Ninety-fourth street, the red traffic light flashed on. Joloffsky slowed up his car. As the auto was crawling along toward the crossing, two men jumped on the running boards. No weapons were displayed, Joloffsky said, but they held their hands in their coat pockets and threatened to shoot if their instructions were disobeyed.

The green light flashed on, and Joloffsky was ordered to proceed to Ninety-third street and then turn in and go east. He did so, followed by another car containing two more bandits. Joloffsky was forced to stop in front of a four-story tenement. Then he and Rudoff were ordered into the building and made to walk up to the roof.

They were accompanied as far as the top floor landing by the two thugs and ordered to go the rest of the way and charging an attempt of the Culberson family to coerce him to leave the United States. Robertson, continuing his correspondence with the girl, charged that three men came to his residence at Bloomfield on the night of April 20 and induced him to accompany them to a Newark hotel "to talk things over." He claimed they then vaguely hinted at prosecuting him on some charge he did not understand if he did not voluntarily leave North America, the understanding being that his expenses would be paid in full.

Pledged to keep Miss Culberson's name out of any sensation, Robertson yielded to the departure plan. He claimed that he accompanied the trio to Boston, where ship reservations had been made for him, but that the matter was dropped upon receipt by the detectives of an unrevealed wire.

Embassy Is Involved.

In the meanwhile, the man's aunt, alarmed at his disappearance, reported the case to the British Embassy, which immediately took the case under consideration upon the comprehensive report submitted by Robertson. Leslie Craigie, a special secretary at the embassy, announced at that time that the British officials here would "watch proceedings."

The persistent and novel methods employed by Robertson to win the hand of the girl came to light at the same time. According to friends of the couple, he kept a constant stream of telegrams going to the Culberson residence at 1712 Sixteenth street northwest. The result was an almost endless parade of messenger boys at intervals, with an occasional long-distance phone call to break the monotony.

The love affair then blazed out of print almost as suddenly as it had shot into the front pages of metropolitan newspapers throughout this region. A cryptic announcement was issued from the Culberson home that the girl had sailed from New York on May 13 for Europe with friends for an extensive tour.

Senator Minimizes Case.

"A mountain has been made out of a molehill," was the terse explanation made by Senator Culberson to close the matter as far as he was concerned.

With her parents having died during the interim, Miss Culberson returned to Washington and remained out of the spotlight until January 23 of this year, when she was arrested in front of 316 Pennsylvania avenue northwest following an exciting automobile chase of six blocks.

Taken to the First Precinct station and subsequently to the House of Detention, she was charged with driving while drunk and with leaving the scene of a collision. She was charged with having collided with five automobiles parked on Pennsylvania avenue near Tenth street, forcing two of them up on the sidewalk, and then driving her badly battered machine away in a rapid burst of speed.

Three hours after her arrest she was released in the custody of her father's secretary, now secretary to Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York. She pleaded not guilty upon arraignment and was released in $1,000 bond. The case subsequently was settled out of court.

Belief was expressed by Maj. Read at Lexington that Robertson only recently had returned from a several years' stay in Europe. He is listed as 28 years old.

Senate Considers Repeal of Origins

Close Vote Forecast With Each Side Sure of Victory.

(Associated Press.)

Consideration of the Nye resolution intended to bring about repeal of the national origins quota basis in the immigration act was begun yesterday by the Senate.

The resolution seeks to discharge the Senate immigration committee from further consideration of the proposal to repeal this method of determining how many immigrants each country would be entitled to, and the vote on the Nye proposal will be considered as a test of strength. The committee voted 4 to 2 for indefinite postponement of a resolution intended to repeal the provision, and a close vote in the Senate is forecast with each side claiming victory.

Repeal of the national origins provision is being sought by Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, on the theory that the provision is an "unfair and inaccurate method" of arriving at the number of immigrants a country is justly entitled to.

The clause was written into the immigration act of 1924, but has been postponed year after year until last session when Congress failed to act upon another resolution of postponement. President Hoover has recommended its repeal but the move is opposed by a large group of senators, who are led by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania.

Sudden Lava Flow From Base of Small Cone Menaces "Hell Valley."

ANCIENT OBJECTS SAFE

Naples, Italy, June 3 (A.P.).—Mount Vesuvius, which wiped out the Roman city of Pompeii nearly 2,000 years ago, burst into eruption this afternoon and again sent a stream of molten lava toward Pompeii.

The eruption came suddenly from the base of a small cone on the southeast side of the crater and sent a boiling lava flow, nearly 40 feet in width, pouring into "Hell Valley."

The main eruptive cone inside the crater continued its normal activity.

The new lava stream was not considered a threat to the archaeological treasures contained in the Pompeii excavations, since its main current was deflected into "Hell Valley."

On the Pompeii side of Vesuvius, many modern dwellings have crept up the first slopes of the great mountain. These, with the excavated streets and houses of Pompeii, buried A. D. 79, might be threatened again if the lava current should suddenly be augmented by a flow from the big cone.

The "magic mountain" of Vesuvius was last in active eruption in November, 1928. Vesuvius then flared up as the disastrous eruption of Mount Etna, in Sicily, died down. Damage done by Mount Etna at that time was subsequently put at $18,500,000, but Vesuvius quieted down without causing anything graver than some disquiet among its human neighbors.

Leasure Addresses Auto Dealers on Organization

The final meeting of the season of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, held last night at the City Club, was addressed by Chester Leasure, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Leasure spoke on the value of organization in the solution of mutual trade problems, emphasizing the vital need for cooperative action "in the rapidly changing, highly competitive business world of today."

Several matters of strictly associational interest and importance were disposed of at this concluding meeting, among them a vote authorizing the used car committee to continue its reports to the dealers during the summer months. Edward M. Wallace, president of the W. A. T. A., presided.

Reporters Ask Senate To Restore Privileges

(United Press.)

Restoration of Senate floor privileges to press association representatives, withdrawn recently when the United Press published a secret session roll call, was urged yesterday in a resolution adopted by the standing committee of Washington newspaper correspondents.

The resolution, which urged amendment of Senate rules to restore the floor privilege, was forwarded to Chairman Moses, of the rules committee, with a letter by G. Gould Lincoln, of the Washington Star, chairman of the standing committee.

DESERTED BABY NOW MARY MOSES

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

This baby girl, 24 hours old, found in a hat box in a vacant lot near Rock Creek Sunday morning, has been given the name Mary Moses by nurses at the Children's Hospital. The tiny waif is being held by Miss Charlotte Mason, nurse.

HOOVER GREETS KING OBSERVING BIRTHDAY

President Expresses Hope for British Sovereign's Speedy Recovery.

ROYAL PATIENT RESTING

Windsor, England, June 3 (A.P.)—King George today passed a comfortable sixty-fourth birthday with periods of restful sleep, despite the recent appearance of an abscess where an old lung incision had been made. The official statement announcing this was issued from the castle tonight and a cheerful atmosphere prevailed regarding the royal patient.

It was understood that the abscess was still draining and that any change will be slow and not easily marked. The king, however, is thought to be quite strong enough to receive Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin tomorrow when the latter presents the resignation of the Cabinet.

Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett motored from London this afternoon and saw their patient for nearly two hours. The Prince of Wales was another afternoon visitor and chated with his father.

In a message to Gen. Edward J. Higgins, head of the Salvation Army, acknowledging a birthday greeting in behalf of the Army, the King concludes, "I have recovered from my long and serious illness and I heartily thank you all."

President Hoover yesterday cabled greetings to King George of England on the occasion of his birthday anniversary.

The President's message read as follows:

"On this auspicious anniversary of Your Majesty's birth, I send you my most friendly greetings.

"To the earnest prayers of your loving and loyal subjects for your speedy restoration to health, permits me to add my own and those of my fellow countrymen, and may that undaunted courage which has before fortified you be sustained in your present illness.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

Ambassador to Cuba Calls on President

(Associated Press.)

Noble Judah, American Ambassador to Cuba, called at the White House yesterday and paid his respects to President Hoover.

Before leaving Havana, the Ambassador declared that he wished to quit his diplomatic post and return to the practice of law in Chicago. His resignation was submitted together with other Coolidge appointees at the outset of the Hoover administration and although no action has as yet been taken, it was said yesterday at the White House that Judah's wishes would be followed.

2 WOMEN ATTEMPT TO ADOPT GIRL WAIF

Police Hunt Heartless Parents Who Abandoned Baby in Hatbox in Cold.

NAME IS GIVEN BY NURSES

Two women yesterday tried to adopt the 24-hour-old baby girl found abandoned in a hat box on a vacant lot at the junction of Nevada avenue, Broad Branch and Chapel roads northwest Sunday morning.

Nurses at Children's Hospital, where police of the Fourteenth Precinct took the infant for treatment, yesterday named her Mary Moses, after the biblical character Moses, who was found by Pharoah's daughter in a cradle in the bullrushes of the River Nile.

The baby seems to have recovered from exposure, suffered after being placed nude in the flimsy hatbox some time during the cold, early hours of Sunday. Alhough weighing only 5 pounds, Mary Moses has a lusty voice and seems to be normal otherwise. While police continue their search for her heartless parents, Mary Moses will make her home at Children's Hospital, keeping company with "Gene" the week-old boy baby found abandoned several days ago in an automobile on Thirteenth street northwest.

Nurses and physicians at the hospital waited expectantly yesterday afternoon for Clyde Stevens, 13-year-old Boy Scout, of 3711 Huntington avenue northwest, who found the infant when attracted to it by wails coming from the hatbox, but the youth, who was to have had the privilege of naming the baby, did not visit the hospital.

The foundling will remain at the hospital for several weeks, at least, and then will be turned over to officials of the District Welfare Board. Once the baby is turned over to that organization, it can be adopted, and the two women who yesterday wanted to adopt the foundling are expected to repeat their offers.

City Auto License Not Needed, Ruling

Higher Court Holds Accord With States Governs Requirements.

Under a reciprocity agreement, a duly authorized automobile operator of Virginia may drive in the District, despite revocation of his permit by the local director of traffic, according to a ruling made yesterday by the District Court of Appeals.

The opinion was handed down in the case of Charles H. Fred, who had been convicted and fined by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court on a charge of driving while his permit was revoked. Justice Charles H. Robb rendered the decision which reversed the action of the lower court.

Amendments to the local traffic regulations, the higher court held, relieved a nonresident owner or operator of an automobile from either registering his car here or obtaining a local driving license, providing that he had complied with the laws of his State and that a reciprocity between the State and this jurisdiction exists. Fred's permit was revoked in December, 1926, and in April, 1928, he became a resident of Virginia. The following August he obtained a Virginia driving license, which he possessed in September, 1928, when arrested while driving in this city. Attorney S. McComas Hawken represented Fred.

PURCHASE OF YACHT BY LINDBERGH TOLD

Colonel and Bride Escaped Pursuing Newspaper Men in Their New Craft.

TWO STILL HAVE PRIVACY

New London, Conn., June 3 (A.P.).—The honeymoon trail of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is a path across the waters of Long Island Sound.

This was revealed today when Louis Rounds, skipper of a motor boat that plies between New London and Block Island, told of helping the flying colonel dock a new motor yacht at Block Island to take on supplies Saturday.

Rounds' report led to discovery that Col. Lindbergh had indeed bought a small yacht just a week before his secret marriage to Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Ambassador to Mexico Dwight W. Morrow, a week ago today in the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J.

While reporters were searching for the famous flier and the ambassador's daughter on land and in the air or on board the yacht of one of his wealthy friends, the honeymoon pair slipped quietly down to the waterfront and sailed away in their own boat, purchase of which had been kept a close secret.

Their trail was not picked up until today and then it was a cold trail, two days old and leading but over the broad waters, so the Lindberghs still enjoyed their hard-won privacy tonight.

Rounds said he recognized the aviator despite dark sun glasses and that Lindbergh acknowledged his identity when questioned. Rounds' mate and a taxi driver were also told by the flier who he was.

When Lindbergh purchased his yacht, a 32-foot double-cabin craft designed for owner operation, he enjoined the builders to secrecy. They acknowledged today, however, that a recently built boat of the name Mouette, the name noticed by Rounds, had been sold, although they were not at liberty to tell to whom. From other sources it was learned that Lindbergh had not only bought the boat from the Elco Works in Bayonne, N. J., but that he had taken instruction in its operation from the company. For despite his proficiency in operating planes in the sky and automobiles on the ground, he was a novice as a yachtsman.

Man Severely Burned Fighting Blaze in Yard

Vincent Hawlett, 40 years old, of 2003 Third street northeast, was severely burned yesterday morning while fighting a fire which practically destroyed a summer house in the yard of his home. He was taken to Sibley Hospital, where he was reported improving last night.

Hawlett's clothing caught fire while he was fighting the blaze. Neighbors, whose names were not learned, stripped the garments from his body.

Wheat Assumes Position As Associate Justice

Alfred A. Wheat was sworn in yesterday as associate justice of the District Supreme Court. The oath was administered by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy. The ceremony was witnessed by Mrs Wheat and a number of the new justice's friends.

Justice Wheat will be engaged for the present hearing condemnation proceedings instituted by the Federal and District governments.

Capt. Humphreys, War Veteran, Dies

Carolina Man Leaves His Mother and Sister in Capital.

Capt. Charles Raymon Humphreys, of Wilmington, N. C., member of the United States Army Reserve Corps and a patient for more than three months this year at Walter Reed Hospital, died yesterday following a lingering illness at his country home near Chestertown, Md. His mother, Mrs. Charles R. Humphreys, and a sister, Miss Page Humphreys, are listed as Washington residents, although their names do not appear in directories.

Capt. Humphreys, 48 years old, entered the Army at the outbreak of the World War, completed a course at Plattsburg, and served twelve months overseas with the 105th Engineers of the Thirtieth Division. He remained in active service two years after the war, after being gassed in France, and was under medical care at Walter Reed Hospital from January 8 to April 24. Capt. Humphreys was a civil engineering graduate of Troy Institute, Troy, N. Y.

Besides his mother he is survived by his wife and four children, Lillian, Charles, jr., Mary Elizabeth and Nancy, all of Wilmington; and another sister, Miss Nan Humphreys, also of that city.

Burial will be in the Old St. Paul's Church yard in Chestertown.

MRS. C. M. GALVIN DIES.

WORLD COURT ENTRY PARLEY IS EXPECTED

Discussion of Protocol on U. S. Adherence, Probably Root Formula, Seen.

BODY WILL MEET JUNE 10

Paris, June 3 (A.P.).—A conference for discussion of the protocol for American adherence to the World Court of Justice is expected to be convoked by the council of the League of Nations during its meeting at Madrid, which begins June 10. The conference would be held during the next League of Nations assembly and acceptance of the protocol is considered certain.

The council probably will approve the protocol recently negotiated at Geneva by Elihu Root, distinguished American statesman.

Since virtually all of the members of the World Court are affiliated with the league, the council is expected to suggest that the governments empower their delegates to the September assembly to meet as a court body and sign the protocol.

League circles are optimistic and foresee ratification of the protocol by the American Senate. Ratification by all World Court members is equally necessary before the protocol can become effective. Should the Senate fail to accept the document or attach reservations deemed objectionable, the other nations always have the opportunity to refuse to ratify the Root protocol.

League Centered in Paris.

For the moment the League of Nations is centralized in Paris, where delegates and secretaries are gathered on their way to Madrid.

With the delay in the departure from Berlin of Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, and the announcement from London that Sir Austen Chamberlain will not go to Madrid at all, the impression prevailed in league circles here that Germany might seek adjournment by the council of the question of protection of minority peoples, whose welfare is entrusted to the council.

Sir Austen is one of the committee of three which has rejected the principal reform proposals submitted by Germany. Herr Stresemann may decide that the chances for approval of his minority peoples project would be better a Labor government in England.

Minority Solution Sought.

The little entente, however, is expected to work for immediate consideration of the minority problem at Madrid, believing that in its solution lies the best means to obtain consolidation of peace in Europe.

League circles also believed that the nonattendance of Sir Austen would prevent any important three-power conversations on such questions as reparations and evacuation of the Rhineland, although Aristide Briand and Dr. Stresemann may discuss these matters between themselves

League officials feel that the prospective Labor government in Britain has great importance for them, because that party is committed to acceptance of the compulsory arbitration clause of the World Court of Justice and is expected to second warmly efforts of President Hoover to push reduction in naval armaments.

Girl and Two Men Accused of Thefts

Former Member of Chorus and Companions Held Under $18,000.

Miss Thelma Westozsky, 24 years old, pretty former chorus girl, Richard Harlow and David Brenner were bound over to the grand jury in $6,000 bail each on two charges of housebreaking by Judge John P. McMahon yesterday in Police Court.

The three were arrested by Detectives S. F. Gravelly, R. J. McCarthy and F. O. Brass, of the Third Precinct. They were charged with taking eleven storage batteries and a fire extinguisher from the shop of Rufus Hoffman in the rear of 1320 L street northwest and breaking into a clothing store at 3158 Mount Pleasant street northwest, where clothing valued at more than $200 was stolen. The three were represented by Attorney George Boden. Each pleaded not guilty.

A year ago Miss Westozsky was stranded in this city, after a show she was playing in disbanded, it was said. She was arrested at that time on a charge of vagrancy and was permitted her liberty on condition that she leave the city. At the Union Station, it was said, she met Brenner and was persuaded to stay here.

Five Arrested by Police In Alleged Gaming Raid

Police of the Fourth Precinct last night raided an alleged gambling establishment in a building at 216 F street southwest and arrested five colored persons on charges of conducting a lottery establishment.

They were Mrs. Ida Black, 46 years old; her son, James Black, 23 years old; and Fred James Clark, 23 years old, all of 216 F street southwest; John James Page, 28 years old, 200 I street southeast; and Cora Meade, 45 years old, 20 E street southwest. All were held last night in default of $1,000 bond each.

Students Advised Not to Be Snobs

Representative Murphy Hits Prof. Rogers Advice in School Address.

Denouncing the advice of Prof. Robert E. Rogers, of the English department of Massachusetts Technology Institute, "to be a snob," Representative Frank Murphy, of Ohio, told the graduating class of the Devitt School last night that those who take the Bostonian's advice seriously will grow up to be of no value to the United States.

"Instead of trying to become snobs," Representative Murphy told his audience, "make friends with every man. It is perfectly ridiculous to class the politician with the bootlegger, as Prof. Rogers has attempted to do. The politician is carefully chosen. The bootlegger is a lawbreaker. Esteem the politician, and try to make the bootlegger realize his folly and become a better man.

Representative Murphy was introduced by Gen. Anton Stephan. The diplomas were presented to the class of 68 graduates by Dr. George R. Devitt, president of the school. The salutation was made by Robert J. Guthelm, and the valedictory by John McConihay Wilson, both members of the graduating class. The invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. E. P. Wroth.

Archbishop Denies Truce With Mexico

No Agreement Reached in Religious Dispute, Says Statement.

Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz, apostolic delegate to Mexico, yesterday authorized the following statement:

"Advices published recently, especially in the papers of this morning, said to have been received from Mexico City, are such as to mislead readers of the press by giving the impression that as the result of conferences between the President of the Republic of Mexico and the representative of the rights of the church there has been brought about a truce during which prelates now in exile are to have authority to return to their dioceses in Mexico.

"It is my duty to make it known that up to the present no arrangement or agreement has been concluded, there being no other foundation for these rumors than the willingness publicly expressed by the President of Mexico to confer with me regarding these matters.

"I make this statement because news which is not exact, such as that to which I have referred, and which was widely published yesterday, attributing to personages of high diplomatic rank intervention that, to say the least, would be unbecoming, are bound to impede rather than assist in moments of expectation like the present."

Refrigerator "Don'ts"

You will get more service from your refrigerator, at less expense, if you observe the following suggestions:

Don't put Hot Food in the Refrigerator—Let it cool first, otherwise it will generate heat, increasing both the temperature in the refrigerator and the quantity of ice required.

Don't Open the Doors more often than necessary—and see that they are tightly closed.

Don't forget that Food is vastly more expensive than Ice—so be sure to order enough ice—pure American Ice—to keep food deliciously fresh.

MEXICAN FEDERALS SCORE DECISIVE WIN

Hundreds of Rebels Are Reported Slain in Big San Julian Battle.

FIGHT LASTS 17 HOURS

Mexico City, June 3 (U.P.).—The federal troops sent into central states to crush the so-called religious rebels, who renewed military activities near the end of the March rebellion, scored another decisive victory today in a battle near San Julian, State of Jalisco, where many were reported slain.

Troops under Gen. Saturnino Cedillo defeated a large band of rebels, official dispatches said. A seventeen-hour encounter resulted in the rebels losing hundreds dead and prisoners, according to the announcement.

The rebels were commanded by Gorozteta, who recently said he had ordered all rebel bands dispersed pending settlement of the Mexican religious question.

Dispatches from Colima said federals under Gen. Eulogio Ortiz had captured 50 women in a battle with the rebels near Cerro Grande, State of Colima. Military authorities said all had been sent to Tres Islas Marias penal colony. The correspondent of the newspaper La Prensa said the noted federal aviator, Col. Robert Fierro, and his companions, had bombed three rebel encampments, killing 70 rebels at Rosa Mora, where a single bomb destroyed their camp.

The federal drive, with 3,000 troops, which was pushed with great vigor over the week-end, has forced bandits from the towns in the volcano region, which had been terrorized for three years because of its inaccessability to troops, newspaper reports said.

Meanwhile, optimism was expressed here in regard to settlement of the religious question. With the exiled church leaders returning to Mexico and President Portes Gil preparing for conferences with church leaders, it was believed a settlement of the problem which has resulted in much bloodshed in recent years would be achieved.

Alcohol Victim's Body Contains Denaturant

New York, June 3 (U.P.).—Appreciable quantities of aldehol, a Government denaturant, were found in the organs of Richard Morris, 55, an alcoholism victim found in a dying condition in front of his home, City Toxicologist Alexander O. Gettler announced today.

Although the Government poison was adopted about a year ago, Morris' body was the first in which the denaturant was present in such quantities that it could be isolated and identified unmistakably, Dr. Gettler said.

JURY FOR STUDENT SLAYING SELECTED

Counsel of Deputies Charges Yellow Journalism With Inciting Prejudice.

TESTIMONY IS STARTED

Abingdon, Va., June 3 (A.P.).—A jury was completed late today in Washington Circuit Court to try James W. Crowe, 50-year-old deputy sheriff, on an indictment charging him with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of J. W. Kendrick, Emory and Henry College student, near here on the night of May 6. Crowe, with W. D. Worley, another deputy sheriff, and James McReynolds, city policeman, were jointly indicted for the slaying.

Before court adjourned at 6 o'clock the huge crowd that packed the courtroom heard part of the testimony of Paul Phelps, who with Sterling Dutton was riding in an automobile with Kendrick at the time of the shooting, and the opening statement of defense counsel, made by George M. Warren. Warren prefaced his opening with a severe castigation of "yellow journalism," which he said had played its part in creating prejudice against the three officers.

"Every yellow journal in the country has helped to create a most unfortunate public sentiment against three officers who have conducted themselves as gentlemen and said not a word about the case since young Kendrick was killed," Warren said. "They have taken exaggeration, abuse, falsification, villification and prejudice against them without a murmur, and you will agree with me before the case is over that they have been victims of a prejudice that has been created by journalistics distorting facts to make scare headlines and a dollar."

Warren said he would prove that Kendrick was not in the automobile driven by Phelps a short time prior to the shooting and that nowhere had he been able to learn that Kendrick was in the car at any time at Abingdon prior to the shooting.

The defense expects to show, Warren continued, "that these boys were not the saints they were made out," but that two of them had been convicted of violating the prohibition law and jury hearing on charges of driving an Kendrick was under bond pending a automobile while intoxicated. He said Phelps had twice served jail terms on prohibition law convictions. Warren also charged that Phelps tried to run over the officers "when they stood in the road and called on him to halt" because he feared he would again go to jail.

The officers, Warren said, had reliable knowledge that Phelps was again violating the prohibition law and that whisky was in the car. Under those circumstances, he continued, they had a right to shoot.

Commonwealth's Attorney Fred Parks in his statement asserted that the officers had no right to shoot except in a case involving a felony. On the night in question, he said, the officers had no knowledge that a felony had been committed.

Patrick Named to Serve Full Three-Year Term

Gen. Mason M. Patrick, who recently was appointed to fill the unexpired term of John W. Childress on the District Public Utilities Commission, yesterday was nominated by President Hoover to serve a full three-year term beginning July 1.

When Patrick was named to serve the remainder of Childress' term, it was understood that he eventually would be appointed for the full term. It is expected that the Senate will quickly approve the nomination.

SUIT TESTS HOOVER POLICY TO SAVE OIL

District Court Orders Wilbur to Prove Legality of Order on Prospecting.

ACTION FILED BY WOMAN

(Associated Press.)

President Hoovers oil conservation program faces a court test with the filing in the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday of a mandamus suit by Ethel M. McLellan, of Sacramento, Calif., challenging the legality of Secretary Wilbur's action in cancelling her application for a permit to prospect for oil and gas without having given her a hearing.

In her suit, which named Secretary Wilbur as defendant, the Sacramento woman maintained she was duly qualified under the leasing act to hold a prospecting permit and argued that the Interior Secretary had exceeded his authority in directing that her application be rejected.

Court Summons Wilbur.

Justice Stafford, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, ordered Mr. Wilbur to appear June 17 and show cause why the writ sought should not be issued against him. Advised of the court action, the Interior Secretary declined comment.

The Interior Department on March 12 ordered that all pending applications for permits to prospect for oil and gas on Government land be returned. Department officials at the time held the leasing act gave the department permission to grant permits, but that it was a matter of discretion with the Secretary when and how such permits are granted. Secretary Wilbur and the legal staff at the Interior Department assert that the clause covering the granting of leases to prospect is permissive and not mandatory. The McLellan suit directly questions that phase of the department's policy.

Policy Would Be Nullified.

The cancellation of applications for permits to prospect on Government land has been the backbone of the conservation policy of the administration. All applications for such permits on hand March 12 have been canceled and land offices have been instructed not to receive any more. Interior Department officials believe that if the Secretary is restrained from such action, the conservation of oil and gas on Government land would be impossible. If the Government should lose the suit, department officials said, 5,000 applications which have been canceled would be open to reinstatement.

Coaster Threw Youth To Death, Jury Holds

A coroner's jury in Rockville, Md., last night found that William J. Lawrence, 21 years old, Washington drug clerk, who fell from a roller coaster at Glen Echo, Md., Sunday night, died as a result of "being thrown from coaster dip at Glen Echo; causes unknown to the jury." The body was returned to Coraopolis, Pa., last night. Funeral services have not been arranged.

John E. Mahaffey, 809 Portland street southeast, friend of the dead youth, said that he saw the boy fall from the car, but was powerless to help him. Justice of the Peace A. L. Moore, of Bethesda, acted as coroner and William E. Morgan, of Rockville, was foreman of the coroner's jury.

Police Drag for Body of Drowned Boy, 15

Police of the Harbor Precinct at a late hour last night were continuing dragging operations in the Potomac River near the Three Sisters Islands, above Key Bridge, in search of the body of Franklin Greatorex, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Greatorex, 15 Evarts street northeast, who was drowned there Sunday.

The harbor detail, working in shifts of eight hours, continued dragging in the vicinity of the spot where the boy was last seen by his companions.

2,000 BATTLE RIVER AS LEVEE IS BROKEN

Hardtner and Olowa in south central Kansas. Then it moved down on Wichita, striking hardest at the municipal airport. Planes were tumbled across the field, ripped to pieces and scattered in disorder over adjoining lots. A trimotored Fokker passenger ship had landed from Los Angeles five minutes before the gale struck. It was a total loss. There were no injuries. Damage at Wichita will reach $500,000, it was estimated.

As the wind progressed diagonally across Kansas much wheat was beaten down by its smashing flurries of hail. Added to the rains of preceding days, the final storm had harmed much of the wheat in the rich belt and rendered corn land unfit for planting.

Basements were flooded in Kansas City and communication lines thrown into disorder. Nearly an inch of rain fell in 20 minutes.

The menace from flooding streams was concentrated mainly in southern Nebraska, although rivers were at bankful stages in Oklahoma and the Kansas City area. Houston and Beaumont, Texas, tonight reported high waters had fallen and measures for rehabilitation were going forward following the sudden overflow of small streams which sent muddy floods eddying into lower downtown streets.

Nebraska estimated flood losses at $500,000 tonight, with the danger not yet past. The Nemaha River was out of its banks for miles. The Missouri was rising rapidly. Persons at Salem went about many of their errands in boats. Streets there resembled canals, at some places seven feet deep. Tourist traffic was tied up on highways.

The Nebraska situation was duplicated in northwest Missouri, where many families were leaving their homes for safety. Smithville and Agency were partly under water. Some additional rise was expected in the Platte and Little Platte Rivers.

STREET CAR SPEED CHECK CONSIDERED

Utility Commission Postpones Definite Action on Regulation.

COMPANY LIKELY TO ACT

The new Public Utilities Commission yesterday took under consideration the question of regulating the speed of street cars of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. across the P Street Bridge, but did nothing definite about the matter.

The question was raised more than a week ago by A. R. Howser, assistant engineer of bridges, who declared that Washington Railway & Electric Co. cars were speeding across the bridge at 20 and 30 miles an hour. This, Howser said in his report to the District Commissioners, was so dangerous that to permit it to continue would be nothing less than criminal.

When Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, read of the report in The Post he issued orders to the Seventh and Eighth precincts to arrest the motorman of every car which passed over the bridge at a speed of more than 12 miles an hour, the speed limit fixed in the traffic regulations. This effort came to nothing when Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Thomas, at Police Court, refused to prosecute three motormen arrested the following day by Motorcycle Policeman Tierney, of the Eighth Precinct. Thomas declared that the speed of street cars was specifically left out of the traffic act, and the police had nothing to do with it.

Thomas was supported in this view by an opinion given the utilities commission by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. Bride said that while street cars were subject to other traffic regulations their speed was a matter for determination by the Public Utilities Commission.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, retired, new chairman of the commission, said the question was under consideration and probably would be acted on soon. Harleigh H. Hartman, vice chairman of the commission, said the same thing, adding that it seemed to be the consensus at the commission meeting yesterday, when Col. William B. Ladue, third member of the commission, brought the matter up that the question could be handled by the company itself.

Howser declared in his report that the matter had been brought to the attention of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. previously but no permanent improvement had resulted.

WORLD PARLEY SEEN AS AIM OF PRESIDENT

mitting themselves on the subject of the new American suggestons advanced by the American Ambassador Gibson at the recent meeting of the League Preparatory Commission, as discussion of this American formula is believed to be particularly important. If real progress could be made before the end of this year or during the early months of next year with respect to the yard stick of measurement, as involved in the Hoover program of ascertaining relative fighting strength of navies, the prospect for real results at the Washington conference would be considerably enhanced. Mr. Hoover's call for a Washington conference to meet in the spring of 1931 is expected to go forward next year according to the anticipated procedure. If the call were to come on the heels of an agreement by experts as to important preliminary features it would tend to usher in the conference in a favorable atmosphere.

It is realized here that considerable missionary work may be necessary to prepare the ground properly for the next conference on naval reductions. The British election is regarded as a helpful sign, even though its significance in connection with the naval problem should not be overestimated. The statement of Secretary Stimson inviting attention to the great cost of naval armaments and the consequent burdens on the respective peoples is viewed here as likely to have some effect abroad. The fact, too, that the naval powers must be in conference at Washington and must therefore go on record one way or the other, is a factor of particular importance in connection with the anticipated development of the Hoover program.

APPENDICITIS ATTACKS SWEDISH COUNTESS

The operation was performed by Dr. Frederick W. Bancroft, chief surgeon at the Fifth Avenue Hospital.

Although adequate medical service is to be found aboard the Kungsholm, it was decided that an operation ashore would be safer than in the slightly rolling operating room of the liner In addition to the ship's surgeon and his assistant, the Kungsholm, by chance, has among her passengers a party of Scandinavian and Finnish physicians, bound for the international hospital congress at Atlantic City, as well as a party of nurses bound for the Montreal international congress of nurses.

Mr. Manville, with a group to assist in the transfer, left the Battery at 6 p. m. in the tug Revere Although the Kungsholm is not scheduled to dock until tomorrow morning, he had arranged special permission because of the urgency of the case.

The Kungsholm was cleared by public health doctors, and the Manville party allowed to board the liner. With difficulty, the Countess Bernadotte was transferred to the tug and rushed to a private hospital ashore, where all preparations had been made for an immediate operation.

The marriage of the former Miss Manville to Count Bernadotte was one of the outstanding social events of last winter. The count, a nephew to the King of Sweden, had as his best man, Prince Gustavus Adolphus, eldest son of the crown prince of Sweden, and, after his father, heir apparent to the throne. The couple were married at Pleasantville, N. Y., the Manville country home, and sailed to Sweden on their honeymoon in January.

On the present trip the countess was coming to attend the wedding of her brother and planned but a brief stay before returning to Sweden.

British Sentry Who Quit Sentenced to 112 Days

London, June 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Signaler George Sivewright, of the First Scots Guards, who last week was court-martialed and found guilty of deserting a sentry post outside Buckingham Palace and of being absent without leave, was today sentenced to 112 days' imprisonment with hard labor in a civil prison and discharged from the army with ignominy.

Sivewright disappeared from his post outside Buckingham Palace between 2 and 3 a. m. on April 30. Shortly afterward his rifle, bearskin and uniform pouch were found in the grass of Green Park near the palace. There was no trace of him from the time he deserted until he surrendered to the police at Aberdeen, Scotland, May 11. He had walked there from London to see his parents before giving himself up. He was to have been married the day he deserted.

REALTY SALES BAN ON COLORED UPHELD

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Cases Barring Property Transfer.

2 INSTANCES CHALLENGED

Action of the lower courts of the District in sustaining covenants in deeds prohibiting the sale of property to colored persons, was upheld by the Supreme Court yesterday, in refusing to review two cases that had been brought to its attention.

The first case was that of a dwelling house at 2328 First street. This and adjoining properties sold in 1904 by Middaugh & Shannon were subject to a restrictive clause that they should never be "rented, leased, sold, transferred or conveyed unto any colored person."

When the dwelling house was sold to Henry A. Cornish, colored, Patrick O'Donohue and eleven other owners of adjacent properties brought suit to enjoin Cornish from holding title or possession of the premises, claiming violation of the restriction.

The second case involved property in Randolph place. More than 100 residents of the community had entered into an agreement that for 21 years none of the properties "shall be used by, or sold, conveyed, leased, rented, or given to any colored person."

Represented by Louis Marshall, of New York, and William E. Leahy, the colored buyers, petitioned the Supreme Court to review the decisions of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, maintaining the agreements constituted an unlawful restraint of alienation of property and an unlawful restraint of trade, contrary to public policy.

SINCLAIR FACES SIX MONTHS EXTRA TERM

the Government to show some act of contact between the detectives and a juror.

The acts disclosed tended, he said, "to obstruct the honest and fair administration of justice."

The mere suspicion by a juror that he, his family, and friends are under surveillance by detectives was held to be enough "to destroy the equilibrium of the average juror and render impossible the exercise of calm judgment."

The jury shadowing had resulted in a mistrial, a result which would often happen under such circumstances, the opinion declared, adding that the acts complained of were sufficiently near the court to constitute contempt. It was no defense, the court added, for Sinclair and his associates to contend that the Department of Justice, at the request of district attorneys, had assigned agents to guard juries.

The record showed, it pointed out, that Sinclair and his associates had a proper hearing before the trial court, with opportunity to put forward any defense and explanations desired, and that the sentences imposed were not excessive except in the case of William J. Burns.

Burns Claims Shadowing Of Juries by Government

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—W. Sherman Burns, active head of the William J. Burns Detective Agency, commenting today on the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court that he must pay a $1,000 fine for having the Fall-Sinclair Teapot Dome jury shadowed, said:

"On my own behalf I can only say what I have said before—that, being cognizant of the fact that my Government had been doing jury shadowing for years, I certainly thought I had the right to do the same thing."

Aged Woman Succumbs To Injuries From Fall

Miss Emily Semmes, 76 years old, of 617 Otis place northwest, died yesterday morning at Georgetown Hospital from injuries received when she fell from the porch on the first floor of her home early last week.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at the residence. Services will also be held at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Sixteenth street and Park road northwest. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Semmes is survived by her niece, Mrs. James B. Locraft, with whom she lived. Mrs. Semmes had lived in Washington for nearly twenty years.

12 CASES UNDECIDED BY SUPREME COURT

None of National Importance on Docket as Term Is Concluded.

REFUSE HASKELL REVIEW

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court, which ended its term yesterday, not to meet again until next October, carried over only twelve cases which had been fully argued and await decision, none of which are considered of outstanding national importance.

Among the cases decided were two affirming the right of Ohio to abandon portions of the Miami and Erie Canal; of Eastern railroads to recover transfer charges paid on westbound freight crossing the Mississippi at St. Louis; the right of the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate rates on grain shipped by way of Kansas City and Wichita to gulf ports; and of the Government to tax as income money advanced to pay the Federal income tax of others.

New Jersey was permitted to file a boundary suit against Delaware, and Kansas to bring mandamus proceedings against Federal Judge Pollock to compel him to assemble a three-judge Federal statutory court to pass on suits brought by 150 companies to challenge the State rates on stock fire insurance companies.

The court refused to review a suit by George D. Haskell, of Springfield, Mass., seeking to obtain a judgment of $45,000,000 against the estate of James B. Duke on the ground that Duke had refused because of a conspiracy with the Aluminum Co. of America in violation of the antitrust laws to carry out an agreement of the establishment of a competing company. It also declined reviews in 24 other cases, one of which was the sentence of death imposed on James Horace Alderman, of Miami, Fla., who was found guilty of the murder in 1927 of two Coast Guardsmen 35 miles off the Florida coast.

Charles Evans Hughes, jr., the new Solicitor General, was presented to the court by Attorney General Mitchell and took charge of the prosecution of Government cases in the highest tribunal.

greatest stumbling block before the new Public Utilities Commission.

The new commission, it is believed, will not agree to increased rates for public utilities on the basis of valuations several years old, brought up to date by additions of moneys spent subsequently.

That the commission will take this attitude not only in the case of the street car companies but all other utilities as well was indicated yesterday in informal discussions with utilities commission officials.

With the adoption of this policy as a formal rule in the street car company case, higher street car fares are not likely to be ordered for another two years unless the companies can persuade the courts to order the commission to give them temporary relief until the matter is finally settled.

Should the commission order a revaluation before granting higher fares, as has been contended by William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, it is estimated that the best part of two years will be required for completion of the job and determination of a proper basis for fares which will yield a fair rate of return on property used and useful in the public service.

Even should the company seek to have the courts compel the commission to accept the Capital Traction valuation fixed in the Court of Appeals decision, it is believed the commission would be forced to fight such a move to the utmost in order to stave off a dangerous precedent for the transfer of much of its authority to the courts themselves.

Certainly such a move will be fought by Ralph E. Flaharty, people's counsel, and by Clayton and other representatives of the organized citizenship of the District.

Details of the request which will be made by the Capital Traction Co. in the next few days have not been finally decided, Mr. Hanna said, and he and other company officers refused to discuss their imminent action until the company makes its move.

BIG U. S. CONTRACTS AWARDED BY SOVIET

Ford to Supply 30 Millions Worth of Autos and Build Factory on Volga.

BILLIONS ARE INVOLVED

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—Regarded by Soviet authorities as the most forward step in two years toward closer relations between their government and American business, Soviet contracts with more than twelve American firms have been signed. Details involving millions were announced today.

Chief among the agreements is a nine-year contract with the Ford Motor Co. calling for the purchase of about $30,000,000 worth of Ford cars and parts and the construction in the U. S. S. R. of an automobile factory to produce annually 100,000 Ford cars and trucks. The other contracts call for technical assistance, especially American engineering consultation on Soviet projects.

The Ford contract was signed last Friday at Dearborn, Mich. Announcing its details today, Valery I. Meshlauk, vice chairman of th supreme economic council of the Soviet Union, said that with the other agreements it constituted one of the greatest Soviet advances with American business and the greatest adance in at least two years.

Technical Aid Is Provided.

The contract provides for technical cooperation between the Ford Co. and the Soviet automobile trust for five years after the completion of the factory at Nizhni-Novgorod on the Volga River, which is expected to be put in operation within four years. Pending completion of the plant the demand for automobiles will be supplied chiefly by imports, and more particularly through the purchase of about $30,000,000 worth of the Ford product for the next four years.

Other contracts included those with:

Hugh L. Cooper Co., New York, consulting engineers on a $100,000,000 hydro-electric power plant in the Ukraine, described as the largest in the world.

Stuart, James & Cooke, New York, consulting engineers for building of new coal mines, rebuilding of old ones and installation of modern equipment.

$1,000,000,000 Steel Mills.

H. J. Freyn Engineering Co., New York, consulting engineers for designing of steel mills to cost more than $1,000,000,000.

Radio Corporation of America, for exchange of patents and other technical information.

International General Electric Co., for technical assistance and exchange of patents.

Nitrogen Engineering Co., New York, for technical assistance in erecting a nitrogen fertilizer factory.

Du Pont de Nemours Co., for technical assistance in erecting ammonia fertilizer factories.

Longacre Engineering & Construction Co., New York, technical assistance and supervision over the construction of apartment houses in Moscow.

Arthur Davis, Oakland, Calif., chief consulting engineer on irrigation projects in Soviet Central Asia.

McCormick Co., New York, designing of a large baking plant in Moscow.

Albert Kahn, Inc., Detroit, designing of the Stalingrad Tractor Factory to produce 40,000 tractors annually.

BELGIANS OBSTRUCT DEBT SETTLEMENT

Ask Payment for Worthless Paper Marks Forced on Them.

WANT COMMITTEE ACTION

Paris, June 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Settlement of the Belgian claim to reimbursement for marks which the German army of occupation left in Belgium in forced exchange for francs, and which later became practically valueless through depreciation of German currency, is proving a formidable obstacle to final approval by the committee of experts of the Young plan for a definitive reparations settlement.

The present value of Belgium's claim, calculated at 5½ per cent, is $95,280,000 in round figures. Belgium seeks liquidation of the obligation by annual payments of $5,955,000 to be continued for 37 years.

The German governmnet has agreed to come to terms with Belgium by direct negotiations between representatives from Berlin and Brussels. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's chief spokesman at the Paris reparations parleys, made this agreement formal today in a letter to Owen D. Young, American chairman of the committee.

Moreau Supports Belgians.

But Emil Franqui, the chief Belgian delegate, refused to accept the German word for it and has the support of Emile Moreau, governor of the Banque de France and head of the French delegation, in the stand he has taken.

As a consequence of the Belgian refusal to budge from the position that they will approve no final report until the question of their claim has been disposed of in a manner acceptable to them, the experts of the creditor powers at a meeting this afternoon were unable to go over and discuss the draft of the conference's final report submitted to them by Sir Josiah Stamp, chief British delegate. Franoqui flatly refused to discuss the document, and Moreau supported him. Even the technical experts of France and Belgium were ordered not to proceed with their work until Germany has agreed to satisfy the Belgian claim against the Reich.

Belgians Want Action Now.

Now that the German government is considered to have gone part way toward assuring a settlement, every effort has been made to induce the Belgians to accept the German promise that a settlement will be made. It has been pointed out to the Belgians that they only asked that negotiations over this claim against Germany be carried on concurrently with the reparations parleys, and that it has never been discussed by the conference as a whole, but the Belgians persist in their attitude that settlement of the claim, not merely discussion of it, is what they want before they are prepared to sign the experts' final report.

Dr. Schacht's letter to Mr. Young follows the lines of the New York World News Service's information last Saturday that Germany is ready to agree to a settlemen of the Belgian claim, and, in addition, promises to dispose of it before the Young plan for liquidation of Germanys total war obligations goes into operation. It anounces the appointment of Minister Titter as plenipotentiary for Germany Camille Gutt, second Belgian delegate, has already been appointed Belgian negotiator.

The German promise has not, however, moved the Belgians, who are backed by the French, from the position that settlement must be made now.

And there the question stands tonight. It is hoped, however, that it will have been disposed of by Friday and that the way for the signing of the final report will be clear by then.

Air-Rail Fare Over U. S. Set at $350 by Firm

New York, June 3 (U.P.).—A cross-country ticket on the new "Lindbergh Air-Rail Line" will cost approximately $350. The price was announced today by the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., which will start regular passenger service from New York to Los Angeles July 8.

Passengers will travel from New York to Columbus, Ohio, on a night Pullman of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They will fly from there to Waynoka, Okla., the next day and spend the second night en route to Clovis, N. Mex., on a Santa Fe train. The following day they will fly to Los Angeles. On the eastbound trip a similar schedule will be followed.

The $350 will include both train and plane fares, transportation to and from airports, luncheons in the planes and individual insurance. The T. A. T. claims the fee is only twice that of all-rail travel.

PRINCE'S QUIET LIFE POSTPONES WEDDING

Divorced Wife of Steel Man Balks at Simplicity of Luis' Existence.

MRS. COREY IS IN FRANCE

London, Tuesday, June 4 (A.P.).—The London Express today quotes the Infanta Eulalia as saying that Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey has declined to follow her son, Prince Luis of Orleans, in the simple life he has taken up and therefore their wedding has been indefinitely postponed.

The newspaper prints what it calls an exclusive interview obtained by its Paris correspondent in which the infanta says, "I bought my son a villa at San Remo and he is living there now very happily. He has taken to gardening. It is so much healthier for him than the night life I used to follow. But now Mrs. Corey says she won't live with him down there and she wants him to come to her chateau."

The marriage of the former stage beauty and divorced wife of William E Corey, Pittsburgh millionaire with the cousin of the King of Spain has seemed imminent from time to time over a period of years. Recently it reached the point of announcement of the engagement and there were reports that the marriage had actually taken place.

The infanta is further quoted as saying:

"There is also the question of the marriage settlement. They do not agree about that either. Mrs. Corey received £400,000 (about $2,000,000) from her late husband. She told my son she did not think this such a tremenduous sum of money after all."

Sugar Makes Eating

Correct sweetening develops the delightful flavors of cereals, fruits, vegetables and meats.

A CHANGE is coming over the well-informed eating ideas of the United States. For a time food extremists tried to make us believe that we had to eat all kinds of things we didn't like in order to be healthy.

Good sense is beginning to assert itself. Prominent medical, scientific and cooking authorities are reminding us that the appetizing flavors of foods may be developed and improved by sugar.

"Fruit flavors," says a famous scientist, "are developed by sugar. Fruit acids are softened by sugar."

"Experience of centuries has shown," says a celebrated physician, "that a poorly nourished body becomes much more quickly subject to such disorders as anemia, tuberculosis, the common cold, or various types of infection. . . . The craze for thinness is an attempt to modify the process of nature."

A group of women cooking authorities, working in New York, recently made a far-reaching test upon the tasteful preparation of vegetables, foods rich in vitamins and minerals. These experts made tests by cooking vegetables in every possible way. A vote was then taken by taste. In every case vegetables cooked with little water and with the correct amount of sugar won first place.

Sugar is nutriment in its least expensive form, and it is nature's perfect flavor. Desserts of fresh or cooked fruits are growing more and more popular. Modern candy containing fruits, nuts and sugar, also fruit pies and hot chocolate with marshmallows, are delicious and satisfying at the end of a meal.

No one should overeat or underexercise, but everyone, in order to be healthy, should eat plenty of healthful foods, deliciously prepared. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute, 129 Front Street, New York.

The famous Peace Palace at Geneva, magnet of the diplomatic world. Fifteen years ago Mme. Seiler, fresh from the beauty schools of Paris, came to Geneva to open her smart salon de beauté.

GENEVA'S Most Gifted and Experienced Beauty Expert

MADAME I. SEILER

Tells women of the diplomatic set how to retain skin beauty

GENEVA, center of the world's most cosmopolitan and distinguished group, where the League of Nations brings together women from all over the world! Invariably, before they have been here a week, they consult Madame Seiler, in her famous beauty salon on the Quai des Brugues.

Madame Seiler is a native of Basle. During the war, in 1914, undaunted by the difficulties of that time, she had the courage to open her now celebrated shop on the Quai, the loveliest section in all of beautiful Geneva.

Madame Seiler qualified for her diploma in Paris and continued studying there for some time.

Madame Seiler feels real pride in the work she accomplishes. "Helping the world's smartest women to retain or enhance their beauty—it is a glorious work," she says, "worthy of the most painstaking and scientific effort."

Mme. Seiler makes a discovery

To see that patrons' complexions have proper care continuously, Mme. Seiler has decided upon a home treatment which is the favorite of prominent beauty authorities all over Europe and America. "All our patrons are advised to use Palmolive Soap twice daily" she says.

Massage the face gently for two full minutes with Palmolive lather. Rinse this off thoroughly, and with it all impurities and secretions. Follow with a cold rinse . . . to icy temperature, in the morning, as an astringent. All other treatments, all use of make-up should be preceded by this basic skin cleanser.

Lina Cavalieri of Paris, gives her smart patrons this same advice; so do Massé, Payot, Vincent and all the other great Parisian specialists.

Your own beauty adviser will approve this treatment sponsored by Mme. Seiler and the world's leading specialists. International recommendation of Palmolive has made it the leading beauty soap of the world.

A glimpse of one of the treatment booths in the Seiler establishment on the Quai des Brugues, Geneva... famous since 1914 as the rendezvous of cosmopolitan women of fashion.

"It is a routine of our house that all patrons are advised to use Palmolive Soap twice daily—to provide really thorough cleansing and to soothe the tissue into that healthy, RESPONSIVE condition that is the essential foundation of beauty culture."

HELP FOR MUNICIPAL CENTER SITE IS SEEN

HOUSE BILL TO BE PUSHED

Leaving the White House yesterday after appealing to President Hoover to support his plan for immediate purchase of the municipal center site, Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, declared that he was much encouraged by his talk with the Executive. This statement was taken to mean that President Hoover will offer no objection to action at the special session on an appropriation to purchase the site.

Today Simmons will confer with the House leaders and ask them to permit consideration at the special session of a $3,000,000 appropriation for the municipal center project. If they are agreeable, the bill is almost certain to pass

The $3,000,000 is needed to purchase the property bounded by Third and Sixth streets, Pennsylvania avenue, Indiana avenue and Louisiana avenue. Within this area will be erected buildings to house all of the activities of the District government.

The money to cover the appropriation already is in the Treasury, a large surplus having piled up to the credit of the District during the last few years. Hence, it is said, there can be no objection to the municipal center appropriation on the part of the Treasury watchdogs.

Representative Simmons decided to solicit the support of President Hoover when he heard the Budget Bureau was preparing to veto the request of the District Commissioners for approval of the $3,000,000 appropriation. They had submitted the request at the suggestion of Simmons.

The opposition of the bureau, it is understood, would have been based on the argument that the special session of Congress was called to handle only emergency legislation, and that the municipal center project is not an emergency one.

Simmons, however, contends that an emergency is involved, in that a considerable saving can be effected if the site is purchased now instead of waiting for the regular session. Assuming that he can bring the President and the House leaders to agree with him, the Bureau of the Budegt will virtually be compelled to approve the $3,000,000 estimate.

BALDWIN AND CABINET RESIGN; MACDONALD TO HEAD MINISTRY

quers, the country place of Great Britain's premiers, into which MacDonald will now move. He was visited yesterday by the king's private secretary Lord Stamfordham, as was revealed when the village policeman held up Stamfordham's car because it carried no license. The palace dignitary had to explain who he was and that royal cars are not licensed.

Leaving Checquers this morning Baldwin motored to Downing street where he conferred al day with ministers and political organizers while a curious crow ' thronged the short, narrow thoroughfares in which the official residence of the British premier is located.

The cabinet meeting lasted just under an hour and there seemed to have been no serious objections to immediate resignations. Etiquette demands that no announcement be made before the king is informed; but the secret was out when Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain walked gloomily across to the foreign office and told his associates that he couldn't go to Madrid tomorrow to represent Great Britain at the League of Nations Council meeting ecause he will no longer be foreign secretary.

According to reports current tonight Chamberlain was the only minister at today's cabinet meeting who objected to immediate resignation.

The New York World News Service is able to state that MacDonald's first act in inaugurating his foreign policy will be to suggest that an international conference be held in London, at which he would preside, to ratify on behalf of the interested governments the conclusions reached by the committee of experts at the Paris reparations parleys, to agree on the apportionment of reparations among Germany's creditors, and at the same time to reach an agreement for total evacuation of the Rhineland on January 10 next, the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

MacDonald, with grateful memories of the services of Owen D. Young at the London conference on the Dawes plan five years ago, will invite the American experts to his new London conference, if it is arranged.

The principal item of uncertainty is the make-up of the new government; the foreign secretaryship appears to have been solved by MacDonald's reported decision to appoint J. H. Thomas, the railway leader, to that post. This disposes of the claims of Arthur Henderson, Lord Thomson and Sir Oswald Mosley to the post.

Labor will sign the optional clause of the general act at the meeting of the league assembly at Geneva in September, provided the new government is still in power at that date. This would commit Great Britain to compulsory arbitration of all disputes and was rejected by the outgoing Conservative government. The Labor leaders contend that their contemplated action will be Great Britain's gesture in reply to the Kellogg pact and that it will represent the greatest step toward universal peace ever taken in London.

MacDonald and his ministers are also determined to settle finally the naval armaments question with the United States, and even in the election turmoil were interested in Washington pronouncements on this subject last week. The initiative will be left to the United States in view of reports that Charles G. Dawes, newly appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James, is bringing to London a suggested basis of agreement. Labor has been sensitive for years to the taunt that when in power the Labor party laid down five new cruisers and is determined this time to defy the lords of the admiralty if necessary and see if Labor's conciliatory desires are not met by the United States Government and American opinion.

The general policy of the new government will be discussed tomorrow at a meeting of 31 men and women who represent more than the 288 Labor members of Parliament. Many of these 31, but by no means all of them, are M.P.'s themselves. They compose the Labor party national executive and the parliamentary Labor party executive. In fact, although not in theory, the Labor cabinet is bound by the decisions of this meeting as well as by the vote of Parliament, and in this respect Labor is entirely different in structure from the Liberal and Tory organizations.

Among the 31 are all the parliamentary leaders of Labor, but in addition two members of the joint executives who were beaten at the polls and direct representatives of British workers in many trades, including the general workers, the railway men, the iron and steel trades workers, the boot and shoe operatives, the typographical and transport workers, the miners, railway clerks, distributive workers, enginers and vehicle workers.

And there will be one representative there of what used to be called the most powerful organ of government excepting the crown and commons—the House of Lords. He is Lord Arnold.

Girl, 19, Is Killed As Auto Crashes

Capital Victim Dies When Car Overturns on Maryland Road.

Miss Etta Mae Blankenship, 19 years old, of 2215 Chester place southeast, died early yesterday morning at Providence Hospital from injuries received late Sunday night in an automobile accident near Forrestville, Md., when the automobile in which she was riding overturned.

The automobile, said by police to have been operated by "Buddy" Burgess, 901 Jackson street northeast, was returning to Washington from Chesapeake Beach and jumped a culvert and overturned when the operator swerved the machine to avoid striking a parked automobile. Miss Blankenship, pinned beneath the car, was badly crushed. She died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

She was the daughter of John H. Blankenship, machinist at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, was an Eastern High School graduate, and was employed in the offices of the Sanitary Grocery Co. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Anacostia Methodist Church. Burial will be at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Falls 3 Floors, Unhurt, Then Goes Back to Bed

Buffalo, June 3 (U.P.).—Miss Jean Podkowinski, 17, took an early morning walk, fell two stories to the ground and within 20 minutes was back in bed again sound asleep.

The girl, a somnambulist, fell from her bedroom window to a plot of ground below which had been recently dug up for garden planting. She was uninjured.

"WET PRESS" CALLED MENACE BY M'BRIDE

Presbyterian Assembly Raps Boldness of Tobacco Advertising.

HEARST DRY PLAN IS HIT

Pittsburgh, June 3 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, speaking at the United Presbyterian General Assembly today assailed the "wet press" as a menace to prohibition. He also attacked the Hearst prohibition substitute plan as insincere.

"Since when did William Randolph Hearst become interested in a plan to enforce prohibition?" McBride asked. "And from where did the $25,000 prize money emanate? The so-called Hearst plan is nothing more than a liquor selling plan," the Antisaloon League superintendent asserted.

"The church is not ready for any plan that may be offered, from any source, as a substitute to prohibition," he said. Speaking of what he termed the "wet press" and prohibition, Dr. McBride said, "If they had thought of the idea themselves, it would be hailed as the greatest thing on the face of the earth. But in their eyes, things that spring up from other sources are things to be condemned. If the press would catch up to the church in its thought on the matter, there would be no prohibition problem to solve."

The assembly went on record as showing its strong disapproval of the boldness of the tobacco interests in advertising their wares over the radio, in newspapers, magazines and on bill boards. It was voted to protest to the radio companies.

The question of union with the Southern Presbyterian Church came up late in the afternoon, but before a vote or debate could be had the session adjourned until tomorrow.

Des Moines, Iowa, was selected as the 1930 meeting place. The Federal Council of Churches' stand against war and a recommendation for a Nation-wide educational program to prove the benefits of prohibition were sanctioned.

Two Die, Four Are Hurt In Crash at Convention

Long Beach, Calif., June 3 (A.P.).—Two persons were dead today and four others were severely injured as the result of an automobile collision on a sight-seeing trip preceding the Shrine convention here. The dead are Mrs. Howard Ellsworth, 32, of St. Paul, Minn., and Harry Christian, Fargo, N. Dak.

Mrs. Ellsworth and her husband, with Christian and Dr. Frank Darrow, who were here for the Shrine convention, were guests of Edward Elliot, of Glendale, Calif., in the latter's automobile. Elliot's car collided head-on with another driven by James Johnson, of Signal Hill, Calif., late last night. Johnson and his youngest child, Carl, 4, suffered fractured skulls. Mrs. Johnson's collar bone was broken, while Leona, 12-year-old daughter, suffered a fractured arm.

Peru and Chile Sign Tacna-Arica Pact

Long Row Over Two Border Provinces Is Brought to End.

Lima, Peru, June 3 (U.P.).—Peru and Chile signed the Tacna-Arica province settlement treaty, ending a 45-year-old dispute over possession of the two border provinces.

The treaty was signed by Ambassador Emiliano Figueroa Larrain for Chile, and Pedro Rada y Gamio, foreign minister, for Peru.

The two signers, who have had prominent parts in negotiations for settlement of the old quarrel, met in the foreign office and presented their credentials authorizing them to sign on behalf of their governments. Copies of the treaty were read and compared with the terms previously agreed upon and the two men then placed their signatures and the seals of their countries on the documents.

Assistant Secretary of State Barreneachea and representatives of both countries witnessed the ceremonies.

The treaty, which was handled through the offices of the President of the United States as mediator, settled a question arising after the Chilean-Peruvian War of 45 years ago. The main provision of the treaty returns Tacna province to Peru and Permits Chile to retain Arica.

Shriners Take Los Angeles On Eve of Their Convention

California City Official Playground for Freemasonry as Thousands of Delegates Arrive for 55th Meeting; 1,500 Travel West From Chicago.

Los Angeles, June 3 (A.P.).—The city of Los Angeles became the official playground of free masonary today as the last of numerous train loads of Shriners arrived for their fifty-fifth annual convention which formally opens tomorrow.

The downtown section was a riot of color and a bedlam of noise. While shrine bands blared their melodies and auto horns and sirens shrieked, the delegations climped out of their Pullmans and marched, perspired but happy, to their various headquarters to check in.

Heading the list of arrivals today was a delegation of 1,500 from Medinah Temple, Chicago, the order's largest temple. This delegation had an entire train. Twenty other trains brought notables from many other sections and cities.

Members of the imperial divan went to Santa Catalina Island, of the southern California coast, to spend the day.

Two business sessions were held. Recorders of the temples met in executive session and the trustees of the shrine hospitals held a conference, with Sam P. Cochrane, of Dalas Tex., presiding. While these meetings were in session the shrine jesters, the organizations which develops the comic rites for the convention, laid their plans for amusements for the next three days.

Concerts by shrine bands were given in Los Angeles and Hollywood high schools throughout the day.

Morris Herson, 44 years old, an automobile dealer, died Sunday at his residence at 514 F street northeast. He is survived by the widow and three children. Funeral services are to be at the Danzansky funeral parlors, 3501 Fourteenth street northwest, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Peruvian Aviators Greeted in Mexico

Good Will Fliers Make Trip to Capital City From New Orleans in 13 Hours.

Mexico, City, June 3 (A.P.).—Capt. Carlos Pinillos and Lieut. Carlos Zegarra, the Peruvian good will fliers, landed at Valbuena Field at 6:11 p. m. today after a flight from New Orleans. They are en route from Washington to Lima. Their Bellanca monoplane left New Orleans at 5:05 a. m., central standard time.

The flight was made in 13 hours and 6 minutes without a stop. A Mexican army band struck up the Peruvian national anthem as the plane touched the ground. Peruvian Minister Barrenechea y Reygadas greeted the aviators while a crowd of 500 persons cheered.

Two Held as Slayers Moved for Precaution

Mobile, June 3 (A.P.).—William Crowell, of New London, Wis., and Eugene Burnette, of Mobile, seamen, held for the killing of John B. Harrison, street car conductor, during an attempted hold-up here early today, were removed from the police station to the county jail as a matter of precaution, according to Acting Chief of Police Edward T. Sheets.

The acting chief said reports had reached the department that friends of the dead conductor were threatening to avenge the death of their fellow worker. Both Crowell and Burnette are charged with murder, the former having confessed, according to the police.

HUNDREDS of Washington employers saved $20 of each $100 of their first year's Workmen's Compensation insurance premiums by insuring with Liberty Mutual.

Our regular annual dividend of 20% has been voted and will be returned to Washington policyholders on policies expiring July 1st.

You could have shared in these savings. They are made by—

Selling direct—eliminating high sales costs.

Servicing business direct—which saves overhead expense, delays and misunderstandings.

Insuring responsible, well-managed concerns.

Reducing accidents, thus lowering the rates for Compensation insurance.

Prompt, fair, courteous settlement of claims.

The profits so earned are paid back to policyholders, who own and manage the company. These profits amounted to $2,924,866 in 1928 alone—more than $22,000,000 since organization in 1912.

Investigate this sound, economical plan before you renew your present policy.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

A sad little play is "Smilin' Through," engaging the attention of the National Theater Players this week, but a fine bit of drama withal—and one that grips the heart. Allan Langdon Martin, who wrote it, wrought better than he knew, evidently, for the play has now come to be one of those hardy perennials. It seems an ever welcome guest at the National.

There is a reason for such popularity. "Smilin' Through" is made of such stuff that gets hold of the emotins. It is loaded with heart interest, human interest, as they call it in the newspaper business—box-office appeal, as they say in the theater.

By this time, all the theater-wise know the story of "Smilin' Through"—the love of a young girl and boy frustrated, for the time being, by animosities rankling in an old man's heart; the girl's uncle wronged by the boy's father. Use of the "cut-back," so-called in telling the story, is one of the novelties of the play; though familiar enough to the movie fans.

In a setting superb—really, the scene on the stage at the National is enough to start a movement toward the suburbs—the National Theater Players romp through this play as if they originated all its characterizations; as if it were cut to their own measurements—and it is.

Miss Edith King, leading lady, has here a twofold character creation that sets off all her loveliness and does more—gives her a chance to employ an Irish brogue as sweet as the Ould Sod ever offered—for the story, it may be recalled, is that of a colleen raised on English soil and wooed and won by a war hero. It happens that Roger Pryor, leading man, is perfectly cast opposite Miss King, which makes for an enjoyable evening in the theater. The combination is excellent.

Delightful in the extreme is the work of Charles Hampden, who plays the old man, distraught because his ward wants to marry the son of a renegade—the man who killed a bride on her bridal day. In the portrayal it happens that Sir Charles must double back, forsaking the age of the moment to appear as the bridegroom of 50 years ago—and how he does this is worth a visit to the National Theater.

In fact, all hands have captured the spirit of love and loveliness that permeates the script of "Smilin' Through." As old Dr. Harding, lifelong friend of the irreconcilable, Edward Arnold turns in a goodly score—and, too, Mrs. Hibbard, who must jump from 20 to 70 years in the course of the play. Young Freddie Sherman essays an English lad, spurned by the colleen, and does it well. Robert Brister is the inevitable villain, the gunman at the gate.

If, however, the players are here accorded all sorts of praise, there must be a word for the man who builds the productions at the National, one Charles Sturbitts. He has here turned in his masterpiece. The realtors of Washingon might well stage a model home show at the National, using this set as the attraction to bring cliff dwellers to terms with the "Own-Your-Own-Home" movement—one like this, with roses and larkspur, and delphinium, and honeysuckle 'round the door, the garden gate swinging open, a sun dial, and a bird-bath.

A costume play, after a fashion, "Smilin' Through" has what the street urchins call "the works;" something in the nature of an indescribable fascination that is the embodiment of completeness. Anything lacking in "Smilin' Through" must be covered up by the play's entire adequateness, and the sterling ability of the National Theater Players, certainly one of the finest companies playing repertory.

REPUBLICAN SPLIT WIDENING OVER TIME LIMIT OF RECESS

erable opinion that the hearings under this arrangement should not extend more than a week.

At any rate it does not seem that Watson will be able to get a three months' recess with his own forces breaking away from him and Borah and other influences insisting on no recess. The suggestion that it does not look right for Congress to be vacationing while business is waiting to see what the tariff will be, is creating quite an impression among the Senators.

Under Smoot's shortened recess plan the hope is that the tariff could be gotten out of the way in October, maybe sooner.

There would seem no good reason why the House should not go ahead with its three months off, as the Senate will have the bill until late in September, at least until September 9, when it intends to come back anyway. The question of how long the recess should be has become so muddled that no definite agreement has even been reached on the date it should begin.

If everything goes along as smoothly as it is now the decks should be cleared by the end of the week, certainly early next week. Senator McNary expects to bring in the farm bill from conference Thursday with its final disposition by the Senate probably Friday. National origins is now under consideration and should be disposed of before Thursday. It is strange the way Senator Reed has agreed to let this discussion proceed. He is understood to believe that he has enough votes to prevent the repeal of the act, but Senator Nye, of North Dakota, on the other hand, is convinced that he has enough to bring about the repeal. It can not be that the Pennsylvania senator has weakened in his opposition.

In the meantime, press dispatches said the wheat market had gone up on the strength of advices from Washington that the farm bill was being expedited to save the farmers. It just shows what little it takes to comfort the market. Nothing was done and nothing has been done to the farm bill than was not generally known two weeks ago. The so-called deadlock between the House and Senate conferees was broken three days ago.

PUBLICITY winged with NEWS . . it flies loaded with BUNK . . it flops

The prize infuriator of editors. The bogey that hides behind some of the newsiest stories. Yet when you read Labert St. Clair's article "Publicity" in the June issue of NATION'S BUSINESS you have a wild impulse to rush into your own business and create, from the material ready at hand, a golden shower of items and articles.

For here's a man who not only knows his subject, but can explain it. Both sides. Fairly. Entertainingly . . . Friend of many top men of the country. Confidant of executives. Now ready with a wealth of news for you that your business cannot spare.

Red Tape Hobbles for the Farmer?

Will the Farm Relief Bill work? How? When? Edwy B. Reid gives quick answers to the bristling questions that hedge Farm Relief. Dialogue. Sharp and humorous. Fast reading. Pointed with facts you should know, edged with information you need.

Prediction: Banker Shibley's article will get into the reprint class

"What Your Men Mean to You"—a shrewd, sympathetic study of the human equation. How to build an organization? How to develop men? How to keep them? . . . Fred W. Shibley, Vice-President of the Bankers Trust Company of New York, has long had the answers. Finally we persuaded him to write them . . . And look for something new in charts too!

Now . . . take a long breath . . .

Also in NATION'S BUSINESS for June, you'll find ——— ——— writing "Soviet Contradictions." Anonymous, but obviously a business man and a scholar . . . "I Have Faith in Horse Sense" is by Charles H. Leber. Sound business economics, but not a stodgy word in it. . . . "So This Is America" comes from Herbert Corey, who got the aims and ambitions of the Communists at first hand . . . Then there's Matthew Woll, Vice-President of the Federation of Labor; Ralph C. Hudson, former President of the National Drygoods Association; Charles Frederick Carter on tourists, and William Hard's fourth article on "Untangling the Government" . . . and about twenty more reviews, articles, cartoons and editorials!

Buy this June Issue at your newsstand today . . . 25 cents

Drama in business . . . color in business . . . life and vitality in business . . . energy and initiative . . . here they are caught in printer's ink for your information. For the better conduct of your affairs. For your entertainment. For twenty-five cents! But what you should do is to ask us to send NATION'S BUSINESS to you for three years, $7.50. We'll bill you later, or send your check if you prefer.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

The Senate committee on agriculture has reported favorably Senator Norris' resolution putting the United States Government into the business of manufacturing and peddling fertilizer and power at Muscle Shoals. This resolution was pocket-vetoed by President Coolidge, who had often protested against any legislation that would make the Government a competitor with its own citizens in business enterprises. Mr. Hoover in his campaign speeches took the same position.

The Senate committee makes the misleading statement that the real purpose of the resolution is not to "put the Government into business," but to protect Government property, improve navigation, and control flood waters. Then the committee disproves its own argument by asserting that the "power trust" is opposed to the Government operation of Muscle Shoals. If it were true that the resolution would merely protect Government property, improve navigation and control floods, the "power trust" would not be concerned in it. The fact is that Senator Norris is hypnotized with the notion that the Government should itself become a power trust, and he conjures up a diabolical supergovernment which he calls "the power trust," which can only be mastered by making the United States Government a manufacturer and distributor of hydroelectric power. Mr. Norris has consumed hours and days describing the excellence of government ownership and operation of power. Why he has stopped there, and not joined his fellow socialists in advocating government ownership and operation of all other enterprises, is not yet clear; but he evidently hopes to seize upon Muscle Shoals as a splendid opportunity for beginning the work of transforming the United States Government into a universal manufacturer and provider for its people.

The silly propaganda of some power concerns in hiring teachers, university professors and newspapers to preach against Government ownership is cited by the Senate committee, apparently for the purpose of making it appear that unless the Government becomes a manufacturer and jobber the great natural resources of the country will be gobbled up by private greed. The propaganda of the power concerns was a boomerang that very properly struck the concerns themselves a staggering blow. But Senator Norris' proposed method of checkmating the greed of private interests is worse than the disease. It would be a confession that the United States Government is unable to retain possession of the people's patrimony and procure its useful development in the people's behalf unless it eliminates the people and enters the field of private enterprise.

There is too much common sense in Congress and the White House to be taken in either by grafting exploiters of the people's property or by deluded socialists who think the Government should do the people's work for them. If the Government has not lost all its virtue it is capable of regulating power trusts and all other trusts without becoming a trust itself. But in order to exercise its powers properly it must use statesmanship, based upon a knowledge of what belongs to government and what to private enterprise.

SUPREME COURT UP TO DATE.

The Supreme Court has begun its summer recess with its docket almost clear for the first time in recent years. The court disposed of nearly 800 cases during the last term. Less than 150 cases are being carried over, of which one-third are petitions for review that reached the court too late for action during this term.

In clearing its calendar the Supreme Court is setting an example to the Federal and State courts throughout the land. Delay is one of the weakest points in the American judicial system. Justice is impossible of attainment when court calendars are so clogged that each case requires months or years for settlement. This delay is usually blamed upon lawyers, who are either overworked or who deliberately prolong litigation. But these dilatory tactics could be prevented by the courts in a large majority of cases. The Supreme Court has adopted a strict rule in dealing with attorneys which commends itself to the lower tribunals.

Many of the Federal and State judicial districts have insufficient judges to keep abreast of the increasing volume of litigation. One district in New York recently reported more than 11,000 cases pending. Where such conditions prevail they can be corrected only by appointment of more judges. Nevertheless, remarkable improvements could be made if all judges were to emulate the industry of the Supreme Court and were less tolerant of the procrastination of attorneys.

SPLENDID BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

The monthly review of economic conditions in the United States, published by the National City Bank of New York, opens with the following paragraph:

> Trade and industry during the month of May have held close to the high level of previous months and the seasonal recession has been distinctly less than usual. Measured in terms both of volume and profits business is making an outstanding record, and one that is all the more impressive by reason of the unfavorable money conditions with which it has had to contend.

The review says that factory employment has increased rapidly this spring and is running 6 per cent ahead of last year, with pay rolls running 11 per cent ahead. Of 23 major classifications of industry reported by the Department of Labor, it points out that but four—leather, fertilizers, lumber, and claystone and glass products—show a reduction of working forces. Consumption of electric power in industry is 14 per cent ahead of last year, while railway car loading of revenue freight is exceeding all previous records. In the steel industry, blast furnaces and rolling mills are holding close to capacity and the monthly production of automobiles is proceeding at a rate far in excess of any previous year. "All in all," says the report, "the business situation of the moment appears exceptionally favorable, with production in most lines well adjusted to demand, with a high consumer purchasing power, low inventories and a generally stable price level." Then follows the significant statement:

> It is a pity under these circumstances that a condition of credit has developed which is creating uncertainty and which, if it continues, can scarcely fail to affect business adversely.

The review calls attention to the fact that it has taken the stock market a long time to realize that credit expansion was up against an obstacle which it could neither climb over nor go around, the obstacle being the fact that the amount of available bank credit is not unlimited. The fundamental reason for tight money, says the review, reduced to simple terms, is that the gold mines of the world are not producing gold fast enough to supply the accustomed base, at the rate at which credit expansion has been going on in recent years, and adds: "It is no wonder that, in the face of the warnings that were issued, the bull element became discouraged and speculative sentiment became decidedly bearish." But, says the analysis, "so long as the movement (of stocks) is orderly, a decline of stock prices which will release credit now tied up in securities is just what is needed to clear the money situation. It will temper the speculative spirit which has spread through the country to an unwholesome extent, reduce the amount of indiscriminate buying, and tend to lower in some degree the prices which in many instances represent extravagant anticipation of future earnings. It will not take any real value out of stocks, and the prosperity of the country, which is the basis at last of all stock prices, will be made more secure."

For years the stock market has been held a barometer of business. In view of the extraordinary credit situation that has prevailed of late, the market can not be considered a true barometer. Many stocks are absurdly high. But the recent gambling fever seems to have subsided. For the moment, it appears that the situation is satisfactory and that even the Federal Reserve Board is satisfied. It is to be hoped that the need for further action against "overextension" has passed.

NEW AMERICAN SHIPS.

Plans of the Dollar Steamship Co. to add six liners to its round-the-world fleet will give impetus to the shipping industry in America. In view of the higher costs of ship construction in the United States, more stringent regulations and higher operating expenses, the project of spending $50,000,000 on ocean liners is a bold one. If carried through it will add materially to America's prestige on the seas.

If the negotiations being carried on are successful, these six liners would be constructed under provisions of the Jones-White shipping act. The Government would lend the company up to 75 per cent of the construction cost in accordance with the policy of encouraging shipping interests engaged in foreign commerce. Chairman O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, has already assured the company of "cordial sympathy" with the undertaking.

Capt. Robert Dollar, founder of the Dollar Lines and now one of the largest operators of ocean vessels in the world, stands foremost among the men who are responsible for extension of American trade in American vessels. Although beyond middle age when he entered the shipping business, he has made a remarkable record. While some operators succumbed to competition of foreign nations, he boldly initiated a round-the-world service. The trade he stimulated between the American Pacific Coast and the Orient has been a big factor in keeping exports and imports of this country at a high level. He has effectively demonstrated that shipping under the American flag can be made to pay.

In his letter to the Shipping Board Capt. Dollar estimated that the type of vessel he has in mind would cost $7,500,000 if constructed in the United States, but could be built abroad for 50 per cent less. Nevertheless he agrees that "if American workmen and American industry receive the benefit of this building program, and American trade is expanded so far as possible in American bottoms under the American flag, the definite objectives expressed in the merchant marine act and Jones-White bill will have been attained." With efficient operation and high class service, steamship companies of this country can compete with those flying foreign flags in spite of lower foreign construction and operation costs. It is of vital importance that the merchant marine be given encouragement. The addition of six luxurious liners to the American round-the-world line should be encouraged by the Government.

The Irish sailor who gave two pints of his blood to save the life of a Chinese cook should give Anne Nichols an inspiration.

Why can't the United States seize private telegrams suspected of having a bearing on narcotic drug transactions? It collects income taxes from bootleggers.

Why worry over farm relief? Strawberry statistics, conservatively interpreted, indicate that there will be material for at least 30,000,000 shortcakes this season.

CANADA AND THE TARIFF

From the Manitoba Free Press.

The new United States tariff bill as it passed the House of Representatives showed, in its increased rates upon agricultural products, additional concessions to the clamor of the farm bloc. From their point of view and with their still unimpaired faith in the efficacy of protective rates the first draft of the bill took on the appearance of a betrayal to the United States farmers. The special session, as they understood the matter, was to be devoted to affording farm relief by boosting up the rates upon all manner of farm products; but the opportunity was seized by other and stronger interests to bring about a general upward revision of the tariff in which, as usual, the farmer got more kicks than halfpence. A 3 cents a pound tax on sugar, for instance, meant a direct and inescapable increase in living costs.

We doubt whether the bill, in its present form or in the form which it will finally take, will do any very great or permanent damage to the agricultural interests of Canada. The importations of Canadian products are, in relation to United States' total consumption, so trivial that they may well continue, almost unimpaired, the higher duty being absorbed, in the main, by the consumer who has to have the Canadian article owing to a domestic shortage. The purpose of a protective tariff is to raise the price within the protected area; to the extent that as it succeeds the tariff shrinks; and once the full benefit of the tariff operates the obstacle in the way of importations disappears. A protective tariff builds an inclined plane outside the tariff wall over which imports flow. This is why the tariff is never high enough and has to be continuously jacked up in pursuit of the unattainable. The farmers of the United States expect higher prices for live cattle, meat, potatoes, milk and cream: if the prices go up to the point expected, Canadian products can pay the duty and still make substantially the same return to the grower. In relation to its total consumption the United States brought in from Canada last year live cattle representing 1 per cent; meat 1 per cent; milk and cream less than 1 per cent; butter and cheese 1 per cent; potatoes less than 1 per cent. These importations in the main represent the meeting of a need that will continue as the rising consumptive demands continue to outstrip native capacity of supply. The situation will not be substantially changed from what it is at present except that the United States consumer will "pay a little more" for his meat and dairy products. The United States consumer is, however, the dumbest beast of burden in the world and can be counted upon not to complain.

It would be a mistake for the Canadian people to regard this action by the United States Congress as inspired by a deliberate hostility to Canada. The people of the United States have, we think, very kindly feelings toward the people of this country; but, of course, this must not interfere with their national religion of worshiping their great mumbo-jumbo "No Trade With Foreigners." The theory and practice of protection are being pushed to their logical conclusion south of the line. Once upon a time they levied duties to encourage "infant industries," infants which have since grown to prodigious proportions. Then protective duties were defended on the ground that they equalized productive costs between the United States manufacturer and his foreign competitor. But all these defenses and explanations of protection have now gone overboard. The Americans have now got to the point where imports in themselves are accursed if they enter into competition with the native article. A 100 per cent possession of the domestic market is demanded as the inalienable right of the native and is apparently conceded, as yet, by the consumer.

The growing protectionist mania of the United States people makes them an increasingly disturbing element in the world; and in particular creates difficulties and problems for Canada. Canadians might as well realize that for the present, and perhaps for a generation to come, it will be useless for them to try to cultivate and establish permanent trade relations with the United States. That country will continue to buy from Canada because her people can not help themselves, but no particular line of export business to the United States is safe for a minute in the light of the attitude of the United States legislators. A Canadian who would invest money in preparing a particular article for the American market would, under existing conditions, take a gambling chance. To the extent that the United States buys in Canada we are in luck; but the conscious effort of the government of this country and of its people ought to be to develop markets with nations who believe in international trade and are willing to buy as well as to sell.

The Record Can't Play Grand Opera if Jazz Is Recorded.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE wax plates used to record sounds for the phonograph are made by machinery. When something goes wrong, the plates are imperfect in composition or finish and unfit for use. If an attempt is made to use them for recording, they receive the sound impressions imperfectly and reproduce nothing with accuracy.

But normal plates faithfully record every sound, preserve the impression, and reproduce it months or years later with unfailing integrity.

It does not follow, however, that normal records are of uniform excellence. They were uniform while they remained blank, but their ultimate worth was determined by the impressions they received. One recorded the music of a violin, another the speech of a politician.

And neither was responsible, for both were blank in the beginning and each recorded the sounds for which it was destined.

So much for records made of wax.

Consider now the brain of a child.

In the beginning it is wholly blank. If it is imperfect in structure, it receives impressions with difficulty, records them imperfectly and never is capable of reproducing them with accuracy.

But normal brains, whether possessed by the children of the rich or the children of the poor, the high or the low, are almost identical in quality, and their ultimate worth depends wholly on the impressions they receive.

Every impression cuts a groove that remains while life endures. It may be forgotten for years, but the record remains. Memory is merely the ability of the conscious mind to locate and reproduce a record that is desired.

Some brains receive few and trivial impressions, and the world is burdened with dull, ignorant and incompetent citizens.

In exceptional cases a brain in no way superior is given an infinite number of worth-while impressions, and the world says: "Behold a genius!"

The number of impressions a wax record can record is limited, but so far as the world of science knows, there is no limit to the number a human brain can preserve.

Many brains quit recording when the owners finish school or reach maturity, and thereafter can reproduce no sounds except the old and sometimes foolish ones. Brains like these have blank spaces, unused and useless.

But so long as a brain is permitted to receive and record new impressions, it continues to increase its store of knowledge and wisdom.

People who find life dull are not people who know everything, but people who have lost childhood's zeal for new impressions and are content to leave their brains three-fourths blank.

Having recorded one little tune that will get them a living, they play it over and over and end their days without receiving a new impression.

COLONELS AND ADMIRALS.

Kentucky's titled aristocracy has increased in number by leaps and bounds during the last two years, since Flem D. Sampson has been governor, says the Heenan City Times.

It has grown numerically and geographically, and the peerage list has been extended to take in new classifications.

Originally, as every one knows, there were only "Kentucky colonels." There are still plenty of them, but there now are also nine or ten admirals and a poet laureate, all duly commissioned as "aids de camp" to the governor.

Formerly only Kentuckians were colonels, but now there are Kentucky colonels in Chicago, Washington, Kansas City, New York, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and a dozen other places.

One person has the distinction of being an admiral and at least two colonels. She—yes, this is an equal rights affair—is Gail Richardson, 12-year-old Washington, D. C., girl. She was named a colonel by a previous administration. One day when Gov. Sampsin was out of the State James Breathitt, lieutenant governor, made her a vice admiral. When the governor got back home he named her a colonel. She is vice admiral of Harrington Lake, a body of water 42 miles long, near Danville, Ky.

Virginia Caldwell, of Danville, is another vice admiral of the lake, of which John B. Stout, Danville, is admiral.

All in all, Gov. Sampson has named 309 colonels and five admirals, while Lieut. Gov. Breathitt has added 30 colonels and 4 admirals. Ernest W. Gibson, of Brattleboro, Vt., is duly appointed admiral of Lake Champlain; Robert H. Morris, of Chicago, is an admiral without assignment, and Freeland Jewett, of Boston, is admiral of Green River, Ky. Mr. Morris can admiral around anywhere he wants except places where other Kentucky admirals are functioning.

The question has come up as to whether the titles are good beyond the administration during which they were granted, and while no test has arisen the old custom, "once a colonel, always a colonel," is recalled. And the same probably would apply to admirals. Formerly the title colonel was bestowed on 25 or 30 outstanding Kentucky citizens.

THE OLDEST CONGRESSMAN.

Congressman Gilbert N. Haugen, of Iowa, is now the oldest member in continuous service in the House of Representatives, says the Farm Journal.

He is now 70 years of age, and has represented his district since December, 1899, when he took his seat in the Fifty-sixth Congress.

In recent years Mr. Haugen has been chairman of the important committee on agriculture, and has accordingly given his name to the successive McNary-Haugen bills that have been before Congress since 1923.

These long and often embittered debates, in which Mr. Haugen has been a determined fighter for the principle of the "Equalization Fee," have yet retained for him the respect and affection of his fellow-members.

Faithful attendance to his duties and his splendid lion-mane of white hair have made this veteran friend of farming a landmark in the House.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Future Airplanes to Be Practically Noiseless, Says Mr. Naulty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article headed "Deadly Airplane Noises" by Virginia May Brown, published in The Washington Post of June 1, seems so based on intuition rather than on rationality, and on recent cognition of airplanes rather than on familiarity through past experience and knowledge of forthcoming developments, it may be well to present facts instead of fancy to the public.

New forms of propellers and motor silencers are now developed and waiting market demand that will cancel the airplane noises heard by persons on the ground. Satisfactory progress is being made in interlining for airplane casing to still the noise of the plane structure itself, due to the whine of wind in fast passage. Further invention will shortly make the airplane as silent as a well-made and driven motor car now is.

The reduction of noise by airplanes in flight and on the "warming pan" at airports is being carefully and thoroughly studied by aeronautical and airport engineers with a view to practical solution. We, who have had some experience, believe these considered solutions will be reduced to practice in a very short time. Back pressure can be overcome by efficient silencers or more power; present propellers are experimental and expedietal and will be supplanted by better ones, possibly of new form. This will leave only the noise of the wind against the surfaces of the plane and this can be reduced by cleaner streamlining. The work is under way.

To wash out aviation until perfection is assured would be much like asking Columbus to wait for the building of the Mauretania to make his voyage of discovery.

Pilot Edgerton Gives Data Correcting Story of First Air Mail Between New York and Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one of the original pilots on the Air Mail Service, I have noted several errors in reports of the initial flights. I refer in particular to your Sunday edition of May 26, fourth section, page 10, where you will find a caption, "First Air Mail From Here Failure Despite Ceremony." I am giving you the history of the first two days, which you can compare with this statement and your recent historical sketch in the magazine section of a previous Sunday edition.

The southbound flight on the original day, May 15, 1918, was flown from Belmont Park, N. Y., to Bustleton Field, Philadelphia, by Lieut. Tory Webb. I was pilot on the flight from Bustleton Field to the Polo Field, Washington, which was completed on schedule.

The northbound flight, Lieut. George Boyle pilot, was delayed in starting and wound up near Waldorf, Md., apparently due to inexperience on the part of the pilot, where he had a minor crash. This mail, which was of a souvenir nature practically in its entirety, was trucked to Washington and held for the flight of the 16th. I was pilot on this flight, conveying the mail of both the 15th and 16th to Bustleton Field, Philadelphia, Lieut. Tory Webb taking it on to Belmont Park, where he completed flight on schedule.

The southbound mail of May 16, Lieut. Steve Bonsal, pilot, from Belmont Park lost direction and landed in a South Jersey race track suffering a minor crash. This mail was transported to Bustleton Field by truck, Pilot Walter Miller starting with it to Washington. He returned in half an hour pleading bad spark plugs and approaching dusk. I picked this mail up and made the return flight to Washington on the 16th, landing at the Polo Field at 8:30 p. m., after dark. This flight was listed as delayed, but complete.

I am acquainting you with this for the reason that I consider it important for the future, that the initial souvenir mail, both north and south bound was transported by plane.

Americans Are Fast Becoming Cave Dwellers—Future Generations May Sacrifice Happiness for Standardization.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Department of Labor recently issued a statement indicating that whereas 58 per cent of the population was housed in one-family dwellings and 24 per cent in apartment houses in 1921, but 35 per cent was housed in one-family dwellings and 53 per cent in apartment houses in 1928. Figures are based on the number of permits issued for various types of dwelling places in 257 identical cities and although they may not be absolutely accurate they indubitably show which way the wind is blowing. The American is becoming a cave dweller. If the tendency is not reversed, the day may be reached when every one will dwell beneath a community roof.

What is responsible? In my opinion it is a higher standard of living. Not every one is better off now than he was in 1921, but many are, and those that aren't ape their more prosperous neighbors. Women no longer like to work. Household labor is beneath their dignity and takes time from their bridge games. An apartment is easier than a house to maintain; consequently every one is moving, or wants to move, into an apartment.

I pity future generations. They will have no hammocks in which to loll away a drowsy summer afternoon. They will have no honeysuckle-hung porches, with the moonlight filtering through, on which to sit and sing "Sweet Adeline" to the accompaniment of a tinkling mandolin. They will have no back steps across which wafts the delicate odor of cookies browning in the oven. However, in a day and age when standardization is looked upon as most desirable, I suppose I might as well stop pitying.

ROSCOE WILLIAMSON.

Thanks, Mr. Brown!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to commend most heartily your recent splendid editorials, especially those dealing with Congress and the special matters now under consideration. They are timely, courageous and full of horse sense.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Embassy Fete Is Celebration Of Anniversary

British Ambassador Host at King's Birthday Dinner.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IN celebration of the birthday of King George, the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, entertained a distinguished company of men at dinner last evening at the embassy.

Although at Windsor the only observance of the king's sixty-fourth birthday was the customary salue of 21 guns, the anniversary was celebrated in the embassies and legations of Great Britain all over the world. Toasts were drunk here—and in many other capitals—to "The King," with the hope that his progress toward recovery might be rapid.

The king's birthday is celebrated annually with a dinner at the British Embassy and Empire Day, the birthday of Queen Victoria, is another British anniversary. This year the British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard were in New York for Empire Day, taking part in a celebration there.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, was a guest of the British Ambassador last night, as were the Minister of Canada, Mr. Vincent Massey, and Mr. William R. Castle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State.

The others in the company were: Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, Maj. Gen. Bryant H. Wells, Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, Rear Admiral Hillary Jones, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, Rear Admiral William Moffett, Brig. Gen. Henry T. Allen, Capt. J. S. M Ritchie, Wing Commander T. G. Hetherington, Sir John Joyce Broderick, Mr. Terence Shone, Mr. C. J. W. Torr, Mr. Michael Huxley, Capt. J. T. Godfrey, Mr. Michael Wright, Mr. F. R. Dew, Mr. Harold Sims, Mr. Hume Wrong, Mr. A. T. Stone, and Mr. Theodore Marriner.

Also Mr. Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times; Mr. Smith, correspondent for the London Morning Post; Mr. L. B. Pearson, Capt. Johnson, Mr. J. C. Thomson, Mr. Ferris, Mr. Harry Wardman, Mr. Brett, Dr. P. R. Botha and Mr. Dow.

Ambassador of France Will Entertain Tonight.

The French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, will be host at dinner tonight at the embassy, his daughter, Mlle. Reine Claudel, filling the role of hostess in the absence of Mme. Claudel, who is abroad.

Yesterday the Ambassador and Mlle. Claudel entertained at luncheon in compliment to the delegation from France that came to this country to attend a meeting of the Society of the Cincinnati. The guests included the Duc de Broglie, president of the French organization, and the Duchesse de Broglie, the Duc de Levis Mirepoix, Gen. Comte d'Ollone, Baron de la Vernette St. Maurice, Comte and Comtesse de Malartic, Mlle Chaptal, the Military Attache of the embassy, Brig. Gen. Raymond Casanave; the Naval Attache and Mme. Sable, Mlle. Leman and the First Secretary of the embassy, M. Jules Henry.

The Society of the Cincinnati was founded in 1783. The French Revolution broke out shorty after its formation and, as most of the French members were of the nobility and met death by the guillotine, it was moribund over a century. Of late it has been revived and there are now over 100 French members, descendants of the original founders.

Mrs. Vincent Massey, wife of the Minister of Canada, is passing a few days in New York.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont will be joined today for a short visit by their daughter, Miss Gertrude Lamont.

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock Going to Bar Harbor.

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock is closing her house and will leave Washington for her summer home at Bar Harbor next Monday. On her way north she will stop in Boston for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Stimson.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard A. Block and their young son will motor Friday to Rehoboth Beach, N. J., where they have taken a cottage for the season. Mr. Block will return to Washington next week and rejoin Mrs. Block later.

Capt. and Mrs. Richard Hall Jeschke and their children have returned from China and the West Coast and are visiting the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Ryan Devereux, before going to their new station at Quantico.

Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr have returned after passing the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Weddell in Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Carr spent several days at Virginia Beach last week.

Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart Is Attending Meeting.

Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, president general of the D. A. R., is in Washington attending the quarterly meeting of the national board of the organization. This also has brought to town many of the vice presidents general and State regents from all over the country. A luncheon will follow the board meeting Wednesday morning in the banquet room of Memorial Continental Hall.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Hobart, Mrs. A. J. Brosseau, honorary president general, and other prominent members will go to Annapolis to attend the commencement exercises at the Naval Academy and to witness the presentation of the sword given by the D. A. R. to a member of the graduating class.

Mrs. Brosseau came here for a meeting of the Constitution Hall committee, of which she is chairman.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who came from New York to attend the ceremonies incident to the presentation of her son, Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, jr., Solicitor General, to the Supreme Court, will sail shortly for Europe to join Mr. Hughes, who is abroad. Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, jr., is also in town for a few days. Both are at the Mayflower, where the Solicitor General has an apartment. The younger Mrs. Hughes has not yet made definite plans for taking up her permanent residence in Washington.

Mrs. Alexander Sharp will accompany Mrs. Hodgson, wife of Capt. A. C. Hodgson, U. S. N., to her summer camp at North Hero, Vt., leaving tomorrow. Later in the summer Mrs. Sharp will go to Connecticut to visit Mrs. Kossuth Niles. She will return to Washington in September for a short visit before starting for California.

Mrs. William A. Scully and her daughter, Miss Kate Hyde Scully, have gone to York Harbor, Me., to choose a cottage. They will return the last of this week to remain until they go to York Harbor for the summer.

Miss Dorothy Crosby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Crosby, went to Annapolis yesterday to attend the June week festivities at the Naval Academy.

Maj. and Mrs. Ennalls Waggaman will entertain a group of friends from Westchester, Pa., at a house party for the week-end beginning June 21. This had originally been planned for the Annapolis Roads Club, but the party having reached eighteen in number and outgrown the accommodations there, Maj. and Mrs. Waggaman have taken over the Log Inn on the Chesapeake, nearby, for the period of their house party.

Maj. and Mrs. Waggaan have leased for the summer a cottage near Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. They expect, however, to be in town off and on through the summer as Maj. Waggaman has business here. Miss Frances Virginia Waggaman will spend the summer in China with friends.

Representative and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey will leave Thursday for Lockport, N. Y., to remain until about July 20, when they will sail for Europe.

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, is at the Mayflower for a few days, having come to attend commencement exercises at the Cathedral School, at which her granddaughter, Miss Louise Brooks, is a student. Miss Brooks is a daughter of Mrs. Douglas MacArthur. For part of the summer Miss Brooks will be with her mother at Rainbow Hill in the Green Spring Valley, but she also will spend some time at Bar Harbor with Mrs. Stotesbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lee Washington are leaving by motor today to pass the summer at York Harbor, Me. They will be joined at Princeton by their son, Mr. Horace Lee Washington, jr.

Mrs. Karl D. Klemm will sail for Europe on July 16 to pass the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Purdy Will Leave City Today.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Purdy will go to New York today and will be at the Barclay until the end of the week, when they will go to their summer home at Shelburne, Vt.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. J. L. Hall are passing a fortnight at the Homestead at Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denegre are passing several days in New York.

Mrs. Walter Wilcox will sail Saturday from New York on the S. S. Paris to pass the summer and autumn in France She will not return to Washington until the end of October.

Maj. Thomas B. Larkin, wno has been on duty at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., has been ordered to Vicksburg, Miss., and will start for his new post on June 23. Mrs. Larkin and her four children will come to Washington to see her parents, Commander and Mrs. William Manning Irwin. She has taken a house in Chevy Chase for the summer and will rejoin Maj. Larkin in Vicksburg in the autumn.

Mrs. Edward J. Kyle entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower in honor of Miss Helen Moran, whose marriage to Mr. Abner Drury, jr., will take place June 13. There were 40 in the company.

Mrs. Stokes Halkett has closed her apartment and soon will leave the city. On her return in the autumn she will occupy the house on Sheridan Circle which she recently purchased.

Marriage Announced Of Miss Gladys Gunther.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Gladys Margaret Gunther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Preston Gunther, of New York, to Lieut. G. Angus Sinclair, son of Mr. G. A. Sinclair, of Washington. The ceremony took place in St. Agnes Episcopal Church, New York, on Saturday. Miss Helen Sinclair, sister of the bridegroom, was one of the attendants.

Lieut. and Mrs. Sinclair will start soon for the Philippines, but will first come to Washington and will be at home on Thursday and Friday afternoons at the home of Mr. G. A. Sinclair, Hammond Courts, 1517 Thirtieth street.

Among the Brides of Early June

Miss Grace Farrell, general secretary of the Baltimore Young Women's Christian Association, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the annual banquet of the business and professional women's department of the Young Women's Christian Association at Vacation Lodge, Cherrydale, Va., this evening. Miss Farrell's topic will be "The Balance of Your Gondola." The setting for the program will be "A June Night in Venice," with appropriate decorations, music and menu. The troubadours will be Miss Helen Finlay and Miss Katherine Moritz. Miss Mary Quimby will give a Venetian dance. Miss Mary Apple will be soloist, accompanied by Miss Edith Dawson.

The clubs participating are the Blue Triangle, International, Amicitia, Hitika, Premiere, K. G., Tip Top and Wohelo. Miss Lillian Findlay is chairman of the committee in charge. This banquet will bring to a close for this season the city activities of these clubs, interests of which for the summer will be centered in Vacation Lodge at Cherrydale, Va., and Camp Kahlert on West River, Md. Mrs. Thomas E. Brown, president of the association, will preside at the banquet.

Mr. Ward Bannister, of Denver, Colo., is passing some time at the Mayflower.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Sinclair are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Sinclair was formerly Miss Harriet Kampfert.

To Be Married June 22

Harris & Ewing.

MISS MILDRED KEITH, daughter of Maj. William H. Keith, U. S. A., whose engagement to Mr. John George Wangler has been announced.

Lee-McClellan Troth in North

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, June 3.—The engagement of Miss Josephine McClellan, of this city, daughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. John McClellan, of Washington, to Mr. Cuthbert Lee, of the Harvard Club, was announced today.

Miss McClellan is a great-great-granddaughter of Theodoric Lee, of Virginia, brother of Henry Lee (Light Horse Harry), famous cavalry officer of the American Revolution. She attended the Holton Arms School in Washington and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Lee, who is of the ninth generation of the Lee family of Massachusetts, is a son of Dr. John Clarence Lee, former president of St. Lawrence University, and Mrs. Lee. He was graduated from Harvard in 1912 and later entered the diplomatic service, being appointed special assistant to the American Ambassador to Russia. In 1917 he resigned this post to serve as an officer with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and later as a liaison officer with the peace commission. He is the author of several books and is now attached to the Guaranty Trust Co.

One of the largest weddings of early June was that of Miss Evelyn Fahnestock, younger daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Fahnestock, of this city and Shrewbury, N. J., to Mr. George S Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hall Steele, of Pittsburgh, which took place this afternoon in St. Thomas' Church. The Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Bishop of Long Island, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Boelif H. Brooks, rector of the church, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Fahnestock town house.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Charles R. Beattie, the former Miss Mildred Fahnestock, whose marriage took place last June in St. Thomas'. The bridesmaids were Miss Susan Todd, Miss Ruth M. Beck, Miss Lavinia Riker, Miss Sarita Weekes, Miss Clara Legg and Miss Elizabeth McI Callaway, all of this city. Peter Schladermundt was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Henry Putnam, Mr. Samuel Riker, jr., Mr. E. Ritzema Perry, Mr Lawrence Phillips, Mr. Charles R. Beattie, Mr. Robert Stott, Mr. Carlos Sanchez, Mr. Wendell Davis, Mr. Harvey Stevenson and Mr. Ellery S. Husted.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele will live in this city.

President Host To Small Party In White House

Mrs. Hoover Back After Receiving Honors at Swarthmore.

The President and Mrs. Hoover had as dinner guests last night Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan.

Mrs. Hoover returned to the city late yesterday afternoon, after attending the fiftieth anniversary celebration at Radcliffe College and receiving an honorary degree from Swarthmore College. Although this is her first honorary degree, she has been entitled to wear the cap and gown of a Stanford A. B. for nearly 35 years. Mrs. Hoover spent Sunday night as the guest of Mrs. Joseph Swain, widow of a former president of Swarthmore. Mrs. Swain came to Washington with Mrs. Hoover for a short visit at the White House.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, left yesterday for Newark, N. J., where she will address the New Jersey woman's committee for law enforcement tomorrow afternoon at its annual meeting.

Woman's Party to Hold Celebration This Afternoon.

The National Woman's Party will give a garden party at its headquarters on Capitol Hill this afternoon in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the passage of the national suffrage amendment by the United States Senate. Members of Congress who voted for suffrage ten years ago will be the guests of honor.

Senator James Watson, of Indiana,

60 ARE GRADUATED UNDER INJUNCTION

Des Moines University Class Given Degrees Despite Row Over Trustees.

DISMISSED HEAD PRESIDES

Des Moines, Iowa, June 3 (A.P.).—Sixty seniors of Des Moines University were granted diplomas today under a court injunction which restrained trustees from closing the institution and thus halting issuance of the sheepskins.

The exercises were in charge of Dr Harry C. Wayman, president, who, with his entire faculty, was dismissed by the trustees. Under terms of the injunction, however, the dismissal does not become effective until tomorrow.

Despite the upheaval in the school following a meeting of the trustees May 11 the commencement program contained but occasional reference to the disturbances, which included, besides dismissal of the faculty, a student riot, during which the trustees were egged and Dr. T. T. Shields, board president, was forced to leave town under police protection.

The commencement speakers were Deans E. O. Calloway and Arthur E. Bennett, of the university. In introducing them, Dr. Wayman said he wanted a speaker whose name never changeth. He referred to the action of Dr. Shields and the board secretary, Miss Edith M. Redman, neither of whom signed the diplomas, in registering at a Grinnell (Iowa) hotel under assumed names over the week-end following the burning of a cross on the campus. The blanks for their names were filled instead by those of the deans and that of Miss Minnie Rice, registrar.

Today's commencement ended merely a part of the battle for control of the school, the first skirmish, which sought as its objective temporary control of the school. But the trustees still have to conduct an investigation into the rock and egg demonstration and into the eligibility of the seniors for the diplomas issued today. Whether the result of such an investigation will have a bearing on the degrees issued is a matter of conjecture. Dr. Shields and Miss Redman returned from their week-end trip to Grinnell today, but would not comment on the situation.

Dr. Wayman warned the graduates that legal proceedings might yet affect their credits. They appointed a committee to protect their rights, while each male member of the student body contributed 50 cents toward the damage caused during the riot of May 11.

SOCIETY EVENTS

who was chairman of the woman suffrage committee of the Senate when the amendment was passed, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles, of Wilmington, Del., a member of the national council of the Woman's Party, will preside. Miss Mabel Vernon, executive secretary, will speak on the work the party is now doing for equal rights.

Among those who will be hostesses at the celebration are Mrs. Richard Wainwright, Mrs. Emile Berliner, Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Mrs. Nina Allender, Mrs. Florence Boeckel, Mrs. Wymond Bradbury, Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Mrs. Dana Durand, Mrs. Herman Gasch, Miss Jessie Dell, Miss Sara Grogan, Mrs. Paul Linebarger, Miss Aline Solomons, Miss Joy Webster, Miss Mabel Law, Miss Laura Berrien, Mrs. Legare Obear, Miss Grace Osgood, Miss Mabel Van Dyke and Miss Angelina Carabelli.

Mr F. E. Scobey, former director of the mint, and Mrs. Scobey, of San Antonio, Tex., are passing several weeks at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. E. T. Burgin, her mother, Mrs. Richard Derby, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Derby, jr., with the latter's two children, have returned to the Wardman Park Hotel from New York.

Mrs. Derby, jr., recently arrived in this country after passing several years abroad. She is the widow of Capt. Richard Derby.

Before coming to Washington they passed a day with Mrs. Richard Derby, the former Miss Ethel Roosevelt, at her home at Oyster Bay, Long Island. Mrs. Derby, jr., will remain at the hotel for about a week before going to her home in Washington State. Mrs. Derby, sr., will be with her son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Burgin, at the hotel until the end of June.

Mrs. Frank Anthony Walke, of Norfolk, is at the Willard for a few days, and will go on Wednesday to Annapolis to present a prize, the gift of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the graduation exercises at the Naval Academy. Mrs. Walke is president of the Women's Democratic Club of Norfolk.

Killer of Coast Guards Denied Review by Court

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday declined to review the conviction and sentence of death imposed on James Horace Alderman, of Miami, Fla., who was found guilty of the murder in 1927 of two Coast Guardsmen, 35 miles off the Florida coast.

Alderman's ship was boarded by the guardsmen under command of Sydney C. Sanderlin and he was placed under arrest when a quantity of whisky was found on his boat. When taken on the cutter Alderman contrived to seize a pistol and killed Sanderlin and Victor A. Lamby. After overpowering the others Alderman was himself overpowered while attempting to leave the scene. In the scuffle Robert K. Webster, A secret service man, was killed, and another guardsman injured.

One Dies, Five Hurt In Frederick Crash

Auto Fails to Take Curve, Hits Telephone Pole and Is Wrecked.

Frederick, Md., June 3.—Traveling at a high rate of speed, one man was killed and five others injured when an automobile in which they were riding struck a telephone pole on Websters Hill, on the old National pike, a short distance from Braddock Heights, at 1 o'clock this morning. The body of the dead man was placed in charge of an undertaker and the five injured were rushed to the City Hospital.

The victims are: Killed, Frederick Hollis, 23, Martinsburg, W. Va.; injured, A. W. Smith, 26, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Russell Stoner, Baltimore; Russell Lickey, 26, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Frank Pierce, 32, Baltimore; Dudley Wolford, 17, Martinsburg.

The party was going to Martinsburg, with Smith at the wheel. Apparently the driver was unable to take the curve leading to the top of the mountain and the machine left the road and sideswiped the pole. The car continued some distance and was wrecked.

Hollis was thrown heavily to the road. The others managed to free themselves from the wrecked car and were taken to the hospital in passing automobiles.

Sheriff Roderick, accompanied by Deputies Hauver and Steiner and State Police Officer Shockley, made an investigation and later arrested Smith, the driver, and placed him in jail pending a hearing on the charge of manslaughter. Justice Bennett, acting coroner, decided an inquest unnecessary.

Why tens of thousands of motor car buyers will consider only those cars with body by Fisher

Body value which is found only in cars costing several hundred dollars more

Four basic advantages enable Fisher so remarkably to increase body value while holding down price, as to make Fisher Body, for tens of thousands of motor car buyers, the determining factor in motor car selection. This preference is the result of the greater Fisher Body value which—in cars outside the Fisher Body group—is obtainable only in cars costing several hundred dollars more.

1 First of these fundamental Fisher advantages, is the enormous resources of the Fisher Body Corporation.

Some idea of the extent of Fisher resources may be realized when one considers that Fisher operates the world's largest manufacturing plant for automobile body hardware and fittings (Ternstedt); one of the largest plate glass manufacturing plants in the world; and harvests timber from its own 200,000 acres of forest lands and converts that timber into lumber in its own mills.

These resources alone would enable Fisher to create economies entirely without parallel in the body building art.

2 Another reason for the unprecedented value of Body by Fisher is Fisher's huge production, with all that means in reduced costs of fabrication and assembly and huge saving by reason of great purchasing power.

As everyone knows, quantity production is one of the chief factors in manufacturing economy. Fisher employs more than 60,000 persons, who build annually in 48 great factories, upwards of 1,250,000 automobile bodies.

Some idea of Fisher Body purchasing power will be gained when one notes that in the twelve months of 1928 Fisher required for the manufacture of Fisher bodies, more than 600,000,000 pounds of steel, 285,000,000 boardfeet of lumber, 26,000,000 square feet of plate glass and about 20,000,000 yards of upholstery cloth.

3 A third basic reason for Fisher Body value is Fisher's certainty of market.

That market consists of the companies manufacturing General Motors cars—Fisher Body Corporation being a division of General Motors.

Fisher, therefore, does not bid for contracts—it always knows well in advance what its manufacturing program is going to be.

It has no fear that the expensive machinery busy this year will be idle next year.

Fisher's costs, therefore, are held to a minimum.

At the same time, certain, months in advance, of its production requirements, it is able to co-ordinate its operations so as to achieve still further economies while maintaining highest quality.

4 A fourth basic reason for Fisher Body value, is the proximity of Fisher Body manufacturing plants to the chassis plants of its customers.

This eliminates much costly handling and holds down transportation expense, and thus permits Fisher to put still greater value into its bodies.

This brief outline of the chief Fisher manufacturing advantages—there are many others—explains, in part, why Fisher is able to build into its bodies value so superior as to make Body by Fisher the determining factor today in thousands of motor car sales. If you compare Fisher Body cars with other cars in their respective price fields, you cannot escape the conviction that in Fisher Body cars—and in Fisher Body cars alone—does your money purchase all the body value, style, comfort and durability which you have a right to expect in a motor car.

DEATH LETTER USED AS CLEW TO MURDER

Mrs. Cassler Confronted With Missive She Penned in Noose's Shadow.

HATED GIRL JUST SLAIN

Valparaiso, Ind., June 3 (U.P.).—A farewell letter written by Mrs. Catherine Cassler while she awaited execution in a Chicago death cell reappeared today—one month after she had escaped the noose—to throw suspicion on her in the "swamp murder" of Cameola Soutar, "butterfly girl" who stole the love of her husband.

The letter, apparently intended by the writer to have been published after she was to have been hanged for the murder of William Lindstrom, bared the bitterness of the 40-year-old wife, scorned by her husband for the young and attractive 24-year-old stage dancer and skater.

While Mrs. Cassler definitely denied all responsibility for the man's death, the letter was turned over to Coroner E H. Miller to be used with other alleged circumstantial evidence as a basis for holding Mrs. Cassler in the girl's death.

Coroner Opens Inquest.

Coroner Miller opened the inquest today into the slaying of the young dancing girl, whose body, with a bullet in the heart and the head crushed, was found last Thursday in a swamp near Hebron, Ind., former home of Mrs Cassler.

Suspected with Mrs. Cassler is her adopted son, Edward, 14 years old, who was left on the Cassler porch in a basket when he was two weeks old.

The letter has only denunciation for the unfaithful husband and Cameola, who "had the courage and the nerve to come to the jail and tell me of her relations with my husband when there was two feet of screen between us."

Mrs. Cassler wrote that she was married to Truman Cassler when she was 14 and gave a brief account of her life.

"God only knows what my life has been," she wrote. "He promised me things but failed to keep them. I stayed on, hoping against hope that he would do better, but the more I made, the more he spent.

Paid His Fines Often.

"Women have always meant more or less in his life. Many times I paid his fine when he had been arrested with some woman. It was by hard-earned money.

"Then after I was arrested (in connection with the Lindstrom murder for which she was sentenced to die and later freed) he waited just two days to take a woman into the house. He gave her my victuals, all my electric working things, all my best linens and dishes and my diamond ring. Can any one imagine my feeling when all this came to me?

"Then he took another woman in and threw Edward out, a mere child of 14. This woman is still with him and she came down to see me and told me she was living with him. He kicked her husband out after a few days. He never sends me a bite to eat. He sold all my furniture. He told me he was getting a divorce from me to marry her.

"The last woman's name is Cameola, better known as Babe."

Meetings Are Related.

The first witness at the inquest today, Miss Lily Mallott, girl chum of Cameola, told of the meetings between Cassler and Miss Soutar and how he finally took the girl to his home as "housekeeper," during his wife's absence.

Chester Johnson, who was to have married Cameola, supported the story told by Cassler that the latter's wife had threatened the girl on her return from jail. Mrs. Cassler, he said, beat Miss Soutar severely and tore her dress.

Coroner Miller pointed out that Mrs. Cassler told her husband last Tuesday, "You won't be bothered with your sweetie any more."

Christian Science President Elected

Mother Church Names New Officers at Meeting in Boston, Mass.

Boston, June 3 (A.P.).—William W. Davis, of Cambridge, Mass., was elected president of the Christian Science Mother Church at the annual meeting here today. Other officers elected were: Clerk, Ezra W. Palmer, Brookline, Mass.; treasurer, Edward L. Ripley, Brookline; first reader, George Shaw Cook, Chicago; second reader, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Norwood, Brookline.

The new president is a native of Cambridge and a former member of the Massachusetts Legislature and of the governor's council. He succeeds Dr. Frank C. Colby. Three new members were chosen for the board of lectureship. They were Judge Samuel W. Greene, of Chicago; John C. Lathrop, of Brookline, Mass., and Charles V. Winn, of Pasadena, Calif.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand in the general fund of the Mother Church on April 30, last, of $263,416.88 and a balance in the trust fund of $611,723.64. The report of the clerk showed the church now has 2,386 branch churches and societies.

HAD TO WORK TOO HARD

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Gave Her Strength

Mt. Carmel, Pa.—"After my second baby was born I had to work too hard and be on my feet too soon because my husband was ill. After his death I was in such a weakened and run-down condition that nothing seemed to help me. I am starting the fourth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel a great deal better. I am much stronger and don't get so tired out when I wash or work hard. I do housekeeping and dressmaking and I highly recommend the Vegetable Compound. I am willing to answer letters."—Mrs. Gertrude Butts, 414 S. Market St., Mt. Carmel, Pa.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

It is highly probable that the day after he has reviewed three pictures for his paper any commentator upon the photoplay finds it possible to remember a great deal that he had intended to say in his printed appraisals, but didn't. At the moment I am harassed by a long succession of these haunting recollections.

For instance, don't you think it just a bit thick, as we say at the cricket matches, for the Warner Brothers to make a marble sculpture of the Christ shed real tears upon contemplation of the greed of those who engage in the daily turmoils of the New York Stock Exchange, as is done in one of the less important sequences of "Noah's Ark?"

To me this seems a touch so utterly bizarre as to border almost upon sacrilege, although it is patent that the picture was not executed in that spirit nor designed to convey that impression.

In fashioning the pattern of his latest South Sea opus, W. S. Van Dyke, director of "The Pagan," seems to me to have slipped a cog in his treatment of the character impersonated by Renee Adoree. Either she was an incorrigible optimist, or Mr. Van Dyke omitted important scenes from his finished picture. Nowhere is there revealed anything approaching a community background upon which this fashionably gowned young sorceress might have exercised her wiles, and justification for her presence in the plot, therefore, becomes wholly conjectural — unless, like Sadie Thompson, she was on her way some place else.

Again, "The Pagan" provides as fine an example as we have had of the injustice done an honest star by trickery and falsification on the part of those producers who in the beginning felt that the vocal screen was something with which to delude their customers.

Faulty synchronization of some ukulele strumming, while Novarro is supposed to be singing, creates an immediate suspicion that the star may, after all, not be singing at all. And if Dorothy Janis is the soprano heard—as she seems to be on at least two occasions—I am willing to go on record now that she has a far better chance to survive in grand opera than the young Mexican barytone who turns out to be a tenor!

Is it not just barely possible that Senor Novarro chose not to waste his voice on the simple measures of the Polynesian theme song?

Reverting to "Noah's Ark," the producers were crafty to make King Nephilim a Russian, Nikoloff, in the modern sequences of the story. He is the villain of both movements of the narrative and a very nasty boy in action. International complications are shrewdly evaded by making him of a nationality not on speaking terms with our Government anyway.

Errata.

After many weeks of virtual freedom from typographical errors, our Monday reviews were slightly curdled this week.

In commenting upon "Noah's Ark," reference was made to "the Deluge of Scriptural relation"—not of "Scriptural relations." Our family only goes back a couple of centuries beyond the Mayflower.

What was said about "The Pagan" was that the "photography is crystal clear and adds to the charm of scenes that are of unblemished natural beauty"—not that the "photoplay is crystal clear," &c. Don't be silly!

And in connection with "Girls Gone Wild," mention was made of a "call for police work of a glorified sort"—not a "call for police and work."

But perhaps I had better read the reviews over again—these may all be improvements!

Two shots at Roy D'Arcy this week. He is prominently cast in both "Girls Gone Wild" at the Fox and "The Last Warning" at the Rialto. Not that it matters.

There is a dandy dog act at the Palace this week, unlike any you are apt to have seen. "Hector and Pals," it is called.

I presume Hector found it just as easy to make the dogs believe the commands he gives them meant precisely the opposite of their true interpretation as he would to have followed the more orthodox method of instruction, but it certainly makes the act appear harder. And the faster he works, the slower the dogs move! And that Airedale!

Even if you don't care for dogs, you will marvel that they make any sense at all of the pandemonium Hector creates with his incessant flying around and constant gabbing.

If this keeps up, you'd better bring in the rubber plant!

Detroit Delegates For Church Union

Congregationalists in Favor of Merger With Christian Convention.

Detroit, June 3 (A.P.).—The proposed merger of the National Council of the Congregational Churches and the General Convention of the Christian Church was unanimously adopted at the biennial meeting of the National Council of the Congregational Churches here this afternoon.

The proposal will be acted upon by the general convention of the Christian Church at their biennial meeting at Piqua, Ohio, in October. Passage is predicted by officials of the Christian organization present at the meeting here.

If the union is effected it will combine the national organizations which will meet together in 1931 as the general conference of the Congregational and Christian Churches, unincorporated. For the time being, trust funds of the two denominations will be administered separately, and the various branches of the denominations will function as at present until they can be merged gradually.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GREAT PUTTING-GREEN ROBBERY.

"An entire green on the North Hills, (Long Island) Golf Club course was dug up and stolen last night."—News item.

"Well, speak up! What now?" demanded Holmes as he beheld Watson standing in the doorway, white and trembling.

"Another one stolen, sir?" said Watson.

"Another," repeated Holmes.

"The eleventh hole, sir," explained Watson, clearly upset. "The famous eleventh, sir."

"The prettiest green on the last nine," muttered Holmes, refilling his pipe and frowning. "It's the heaviest loss so far. When was the theft committed?"

"It was discovered this morning by a threesome. When they came within 40 yards and got ready for the approach there was no green there at all, sir. It was quite distressing."

"Was the entire green gone?"

"The whole thing," said Watson. "It was removed as cleanly as you would cut a Rembrandt from a frame. They even took the cup and flag."

* * * *

"Damnable!" exclaimed Holmes, under his breath. "Clearly the work of professional putting-green thieves. No amateurs would work like that. It's the famous 'Grass' Mooney gang again."

"I thought you broke up that gang, sir, when you caught Mooney as he was boarding the express train with the fifth green from Lakeview under his arm," said Watson.

"So did I," admitted Holmes. "But a week later, with Mooney in prison, 'Red' McFeenks and 'Slats' Rothbaum robbed the Great Meadow links. When I caught them at a flying field with the entire loot—three $5,000 greens and $10,000 worth of bunkers and sand-traps—I thought surely there would be no further depredations, but again I was wrong."

"The gang is still at it, sir," observed Watson, shaking his head.

"Evidently," agreed Holmes. "And we'll never stop this looting of golf courses until we get at the real root of the thing."

"What's the real root of it, sir?"

"The 'fences,'" explained Holmes. "The men who receive the stolen golf courses. This buying stolen greens, traps, &c., from robbers and reselling them at low prices has grown into a big industry. A corporation starting a new golf club today just goes to one of the 'fences' and buys a complete links at low rates. Remember those three entire fairways stolen last month from the Great Neck Country Club?"

"I do, sir. Three fairways and a caddy-house, to be exact."

"Well, I have just located them at Cedarcrest," said Holmes. "They had been changed a bit, but were easily recognized as those stolen from Great Neck."

"You will pardon me, sir," said Watson, "but I am wondering if the thefts are all the work of thieves."

"What do you mean?" asked Holmes, refilling his pipe.

"Is it not possible that some golfer, sore and disgusted at his inability to do anything on a putting-green, has come to regard it as a public duty to dig up and destroy as many as possible?"

"That's an idea," admitted Holmes, but . . ."

At this moment Holmes was interrupted when a caddy master burst into the room, flushed with excitement.

"What now?" asked Holmes.

"Another theft!" cried the caddy master.

"What did they steal this time?" asked Holmes.

"The water hole on the fifteenth," moaned the caddy master.

"That damned hole with the 165-yard carry to the small, trapped green?" asked Holmes.

"Yes," sighed the caddy master.

"Good!" snapped Holmes, who had never been able to get across it in fewer than seven strokes.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

At a tea yesterday I saw the first really important promenade of chiffon frocks and picture hats which the season has brought forth. At the garden teas of the past two weeks most women have worn smart sport clothes, depending on colors for their summery appearance. But yesterday women stepped forth in chiffons of every description, gayly flowered, subtle pastel tints, plain vivid colors and many all white, egg shell or biege. Invariably the accompanying hat was a wide sheer model, either in black or a color to exactly match the frock or, as in many instances, to sharply contrast. Hats and frivolous pumps match, in case of contrast to the gown. I say "frivolous pumps," for never have we had such charming footwear for daytime Don't you adore the embroidered shantung and the pale blue linens with little flowers embroidered on the toes?

The Spring Sale At Pasternak's

—continues into June. It is evident that women coming in to select their summer apparel are perfectly in harmony with the idea of picking up a few bargains here and there about the shop. In the reduced price groups are so many ensembles which are worthy of a place in your wardrobe. This is true, particularly, if you are going away, and in any case to wear here later.

The day and evening frocks from the earlier collections are the sort of gowns you can use so satisfactorily, and which seem such a find when you are able to secure them at the small prices now in order.

Pasternak's, 1219 Connecticut avenue.

Women Use Lotions From Elsie Pierce

—because they know that everything bearing this well-known label is made of the purest ingredients and scientifically formulated to best serve a specific purpose.

The Cleansing Cream, the Preserving Cream and Neroli Skin Tonic are the three things which most women use daily There are other delightful preparations made by Elsie Pierce which you will want when you have tried them. Next time you are in Woodward & Lothrop's go to the toilet department and ask to see the Elsie Pierce Preparations. Better than that, telephone the department at once and have a jar of each sent out to you You will be so happy that you did.

Such Beautiful Bridal Pictures

—are made in the famous studios of Underwood & Underwood. This week their window has three exquisite pictures made at weddings, one of the bride and groom together, and two of brides photographed alone.

The charming thing about a bridal picture is to have it made either in the bride's home, or in the garden. It will mean so much more in later years (if the marriage lasts that long), to have the picture in the dear familiar surroundings.

Underwood & Underwood have, I suppose, photographed all the important brides in Washington for many years. You would as soon think of marrying without a ring as to marry without a picture made by this studio.

Yesterday morning I saw the pictures they made of Betty Ives, now Mrs. Lowe, at her marriage on Saturday. They were so lovely. Pictures of the entire wedding party were made too. Perhaps you have seen them before this.

The Williard Shop Sends Packages Abroad

—as I have frequently told you. Only the other day they sent an entire sport outfit to an American living abroad. Men who have liked buying their clothes in this establishment while living in Washington, frequently send back for things they can not buy satisfactorily in foreign lands.

There is a very comfortable feeling about sending for your clothes to a shop which you know will always send you the best, in authoritative styles, and at the prices you want to pay.

Just now straw hats and clothes for country wear, hold the center of attention. The great variety of knickers and sweaters and sport socks must be a great joy to any man who likes selecting from a big assortment

The pajamas and lounging robes displayed are in such charming colorings, so cool and attractive, that they seem quite an innovation in this season's styles. The Williard Shop is in Stoneleigh Court, at 1033 Connecticut avenue, and is the rendezvous for men who like to shop quickly and conveniently.

Yesterday I Went Out to Natalie's

—to see how the sale was going. You know this is the establishment I told you of, which has its home office in the second floor of the Riggs Bank Building at 3308 Fourteenth street northwest.

Of course, innumerable models have been selected, but the assortment left is sufficiently interesting to make it very worth your while to go out and buy some frocks for litttle girls aged from 1 to 14 years. There are some coats and hats, suits for little boys, and sweaters in pretty colorings. The frocks have been reduced to $4, $6 and $8.

People Are Finding Canterbury Bell

—Dinner Club everything I have been saying it was through all these weeks. Luncheon, tea and dinner find crowds of happy parties delighted with the cool, charming dining room and pleased with the fresh vegetables, the tender young fowls, the dewy fruits and other delicacies featured on the menus.

The Canterbury Bell Dinner Club in Alban Towers, 3700 Massachusetts avenue, combines all the advantages of a country inn in a convenient near-town location A cold plate and waffles and chicken are obtainable continuously from 1 o'clock to 8:30 at $1 a plate. The regular $2 dinner is served from 6 o'clock on, or by special order at any time.

The Roof Garden Of the Powhatan

—will open tonight, hot or cold, rain or shine! Mr. Owen, the manager of the hotel, took me up there yesterday to see what changes had been made in the interests of a perfect summer. Personally, I can hardly wait, as this has always been my pet roof. It is the one place where the cool breezes always play, no matter how torrid the temperature. The view of the lighted city is magnificent, searchlights playing on the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument add to the pleasure of an evening in this entrancing spot.

The entrance has been daintily done in pale, cool green with harmonizing chintz at the windows. The roof itself is in pale green with decorative urns in gold which give the effect of great lanterns when lighted. Hedges and blooming flowers outline the top of the walls and form a semi-screen about the musicians. As it was daylight, I could not see the lighting effects, but was told that they are new and different, and very effective.

The John Slaughter Orchestra, which has held forth so blithely on other summers, will play again this season. And how! If you have ever danced to their music you need no other comment. Call Main 2740 for reservations for tonight. There is no cover charge from 6:30 to 9 o'clock. After that there is a cover of one dollar.

You Have Waited For the Tally-Ho

—to open, and while I can not tell you exactly the day, want to advise you to keep your eyes open for the announcement. I think it will open toward the end of this week. Stopping by yesterday it was interesting to see what delightful changes are being made It's an ill fire that does nobody good. The Tally-Ho, 812 Seventeenth street, emerges fresh and new and renovated, but has in no way lost its distinguishing charm.

The garden will be enjoyable, and will be ready when the tavern opens. Do not lose patience, but keep watch for the opening date.

Affectionately,

Bab

Massed Band Of 500 to Be Heard Today

Precautions Taken to Protect Microphone at Los Angeles From Excess Energy; Richard Dix and Helen Kane on Air.

Selections by a mammoth brass band of about 500 musicians in the Los Angeles Coliseum will be broadcast from coast-to-coast when the Shrine Massed Bands are joined under one baton for a half-hour concert beginning at 4:30 o'clock. The program will be heard locally from WRC.

Engineers are said to have effected a microphone installation in the Coliseum which will make it proof against damage from blasting or blare due to the excessive sound energy to be directed against the microphone diaphragms. Such precautions are said also to be necessary from the standpoint of presenting an accurate record of the music.

The Coliseum concert by the Shrine massed bands occurs as a feature of this year's annual Shriners' convention in Los Angeles.

A memorial service to transatlantic fliers who failed, to be staged in air above the waves that swallowed their ships, will be broadcast direct from one of the planes over the National Broadcasting Co. system, including WRC, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. An unusual gathering of world-famous fliers, led by Chamberlin, Acosta and Earhart, will take off from Roosevelt Field and form an aerial parade, wheeling slowly about the Statue of Liberty before flying out beyond the coastline of the Atlantic.

With a minister and priest in the group, at a given signal motors will be shut off and in the silence the clergymen will read a simple service. Then, as a U. S. Army bugler from Mitchell Field blows "taps," there will be released from the undercarriage of Chamberlin's plane a huge floral piece constructed like a monoplane, to float down upon the waves and rest there for a few hours before sinking of its own weight.

Between fifteen and twenty planes piloted by famous aviators, will take part in the service at sea, according to present estimates. Besides Clarence Chamberlain, Bert Acosta, and Amelia Earhart, notables to participatte include Mayor James J. Walker, Charles Lawrence, inventor of the Whirlwind motor; Elinor Smith, 17-year-old holder of the women's endurance record; Thea Rasche, German aviatrix; Lieut. James Dolittle, world's foremost stunt pilot, who first performed an outside loop, and many others.

The complete service will be heard in the radio pickup from one of the planes, an Airvia seaplane piloted by Edwin K. Jaquith, with full description of visual features by O. B. Hanson manager of plant operations and engineering for NBC, who is himself a licensed pilot.

Richard Dix, movie star, and Helen Kane, who appeared with him in "Nothing But the Truth," and Baclanova will be headliners in the RKO Hour at 10 o'clock this evening from WRC. In addition, Winnie Lightner, Betty Reilly, Yates Lawley, and Lou Farnum will be heard. The Palace Theater Orchestra will provide the musical background for this hour.

A series of episodes in the lives of "The Potters," that characteristic American family generally described as "just folks" will begin over Eveready Hour at 8 o'clock this evening. The episodes will be in serial form and each week's playlet will be supplemented by a program of peppy dance music and light selections by the Eveready Hour Orchestra.

Introducing a half-hour program devoted to the attractions of New York City, Mayor James J. Walker will open the Soconyland Sketch to be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock, from WRC.

A medley from "Show Boat" will be a feature of the program that the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman Hour will present at 8 o'clock from WMAL. Two fox-trot medleys will include such current hits as "I've Got a Feeling I'm Falling," "Please Let Me Dream in Your Arms," "In the Land of Make Believe," and "Precious Little Thing Called Love." In addition, a waltz medley will include "Sweet Adeline," and "After the Ball." The hour will be brought to a close with "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Lover Come Back to Me," "Bunnin' Wild" and "Punch and Judy."

Frederic William Wile will present "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight" from WMAL at 7 o'clock, followed by a U. S. Navy Band concert, conducted by Charles Benter, leader.

The Eastern Star Minstrels will be broadcast from WOL at 7 o'clock this evening. Estelle Hunt Dean, soprano, will be heard in a short recital at 7:20 o'clock.

A Variety Hour will be broadcast between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning.

A 15-minute program by the National Patriotic Council will be heard from WJSV at 8:30 o'clock. The Silver String Revelers will be on the air at 10:30 o'clock, preceded by the Columbia Trio.

FOR YACHTING

© VOGUE

The yachting world has come to the conclusion that the most satisfactory material for boat wear, be the weather warm or cool, is wool, and for such use, it is available in many suitable guises, flannel foremost; jersey, the faithful Dobbin of the woolen world; tweeds sturdy enough for a mizzling day on the sea or delicate enough for a tea party in port; and many other weaves of varying names and natures. Tub silks and cottons have their place, too, in the sailing mode, both as dresses and blouses, and cotton reefer cloth may be used for a sturdy coat.

Very nautical, indeed, is the costume shown in the sketch. Bright navy-blue and white has the traditional backing of the sea, as well as the support of the summer mode, and a double-breasted jacket of blue flannel immediately suggests a salty sea-captain—and a charming young yachtswoman. A full pleated skirt of white flannel, falling from a snug hip-yoke, a simple blouse or sweater, a close beret and shoes with solid-leather heels complete the costume. SHELLFISH ON THE COAST.

CALIFORNIANS should not eat mussels taken from the open sea south of San Francisco during the months from May to October, inclusive. These shellfish are safe enough between November 1 and May 1. About two years ago there were reports of poisoning suffered by more than 100 people. The symptoms of the disorder were tingling of the lips, tongue and gums, coming on within a half hour after eating the shellfish. This was followed by numbness and prickling, beginning in the fingers and extending up the limbs to the body. Paralysis or near paralysis was the next stage. A few died.

A somewhat extensive investigation was made by Dr. K. F. Meyer and associates to discover the cause of this outbreak. It was found that the mussels eaten came from fourteen different beds. The cause of the trouble was not bacterial but was some chemical existing in the body of the fish themselves. The liver was the most poisonous part of the shellfish. Nor was poisoning due to death and decay of the fish. In most of the specimens the fish were fresh and tasted normally, appeared sound and healthy, and were free from odor. Some of the specimens later examined were found to have a strong smell and taste, but this was found not to be due to decomposition and to have no direct relation to the poisonous qualities. In all of this the evidence was similar to that found in some of the European cases.

So far everything was negative. The mussels were poisonous, but why? The next step was the discovery that the question was tied up with spawning. When the shellfish were sexually active they were poisonous. When they were not spawning, when they were sexually inactive, they could be eaten with safety.

Some laboratory questions remain to be settled, but meanwhile the consumer has the information he needs. In the months in the name of which the letter "R" appears mussels may be eaten. There must be exceptions to all rules. The exception here is that mussels should not be eaten during September and October. Incidentally, it is safer not to eat oysters during the same period—to wit, September and October—though for a far different reason.

MAY EAT STRAWBERRIES.

P. D. writes:

1. Do strawberries make an acid or alkaline ash?
2. May they be safely eaten by one afflicted with rheumatism?
3. Will you kindly give a list of foods that are safe for a rheumatic?

REPLY.

1. Alkaline.
2. Yes
3. Dieting for rheumatism is not of much service. In the first place, there are many kinds of rheumatism. In acute rheumatic fever with sour sweating the diet should consist largely of vegetables, fruits and other alkalizing agents. In more chronic rheumatism the diet should contain plenty of liver, meat and other iron containing foods.

Air Attack On Chicago Radio Plan

Aerial Display Feature of Exhibit This Week; Detecting Invention Under Consideration; City and State Codes Compiled.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

Chicago, June 3.—An aerial attack on Chicago, in order to bring before the 30,000 radio manufacturers, dealers, and distributors gathered there for the radio trade show the necessity of concentrating a certain amount of effort upon the production of antiaircraft air defense equipment to aid in the protection of the United States in case of war, will be one of the features of the huge display this week.

With specially equipped Ford Trimotor planes, the air squadron, sponsored by the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation, will descend upon Chicago and drop bombs and flares upon the important strategic buildings. Among the buildings marked to be bombed in this raid are: The Tribune, Tower, Puroil Building, First National Bank, Wrigley Building, the Coliseum, the Strauss Building, Steven's, Blackstone and Congress Hotels, the Soldier's Stadium, the Northwestern University of Chicago, the University of Chicago and the New Field Museum.

One of the radio detecting inventions which is being considered by the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation is supposed to indicate whether signals being broadcast by a certain station are being intercepted at any point and also to indicate where they are being intercepted. Sets with this device will be located on the lake front.

That there will be interesting news to reveal to the radio trade and the public in the near future concerning activities of the Crosley Radio Corporation is indicated by a statement made yesterday by E. H. McMichale, of the Doubleday-Hill Electric Co., exclusive Crosley radio distributors in Washington and adjoining territory.

"During the recent convention of distributors in Cincinnati," said Mr. McMichael, "Powel Crosley, jr., confidentially divulged information about the corporation that, in my mind, is the big news in radio for this year. We are keeping quiet, however, until Mr. Crosley gives us the word to release this news. Inasmuch as it vitally affects each of our dealers, we have taken them into confidence also and they share our enthusiasm in the importance of the news we received in Cincinnati. They are backing us 100 per cent and will do their part in disseminating the information when the time comes."

Mr. McMichael stated that he expects more information from the Cincinnati firm next week and will probably make this known next Tuesday.

The Federal Radio Commission has been notified by the National Food Products Committee that its complaint against the nationwide program broadcast by a powerful cigarette organization has been withdrawn following the abandonment of the use of cigarette testimonials and slogans on the air. The notification came in the form of a letter from A. M. Kelly, chairman of the committee.

A compilation of State and municipal regulations of radio communication has been prepared and just released by Paul M. Segal and Paul D. P. Spearman, of the legal division of the Radio Commission. It is said to be the first document of its sort ever published.

The authors of the pamphlet, who have a good background in both the legal and engineering phases of radio, deal with such questions as the laws providing direct local control of radio transmission or apparatus, the laws extending State control over public utilities to radio transmission, anti-nuisance laws, laws dealing with apparatus construction and similar subjects.

"There are hazards in the use of radio apparatus," the document states. "Poorly constructed towers may collapse and destroy life and property. Antennas may break and come into contact with high potential circuits, leading death into the household. Poorly constructed or unprotected wire lines are electrocution and fire hazards. There is much legislation dealing with these matters."

Taking up the laws for the control of the loud speaker, the attorneys state that "the operation of loud speakers so as to annoy or disturb the owner or occupant of adjoining property, or those who live in the community, has been declared a nuisance, and such an operation has been enjoined by a Massachusetts court and upheld by the supreme court of that State."

The operating tests on the visual type beacon transmitter to be installed at Richmond, Va., have been completed, according to information from the Bureau of Standards. A coupling arrangement between the master oscillator and the two amplifier branches makes it possible to use this beacon to supply either two or more courses. Controls were provided so that any two courses may be shifted from their right angle relationship with the other two courses.

In order to reduce the width of the side bands radiated by the multidirectional beacon the frequency used for switching the radio frequency supply to the three amplifier trains was reduced from 500 to 300 cycles.

An improved type of transmitting circuit for the multidirectional beacon was successfully tried out in which the three-phase audiofrequency grid bias arrangement was entirely eliminated. In this circuit a three-phase radio frequency supply from the master oscillator to the three amplifier branches of the beacon setup is used. The beacon transmitting circuit is thus considerably simplified and at the same time the power radiated by the beacon is increased.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, June 1, 1929, on shipments sold out, ranged from 16.00 cents to 25.00 cents per pound and averaged 23.17 cents per pound.—Adv.

What Today Means to You

June 4.

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to 11:50 p. m.; the danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m.

The influences for June 4 will be rather dynamic in their force, and there will be a tendency to headstrong and impulsive actions. It would be well to look many times before you decide to jump from the known into the unknown.

Honesty and frankness will shine out in the disposition of the child born on this day. It will be sincere and candid, and will have confidence in its own ability. It will be very kind and thoughtful toward every one.

Deeds, not words; performances, not promises, is the summary of your character. You are not a promise maker and a promise breaker—you may always be depended upon to do things, and to do them with a great deal of efficiency. You can never be expected to talk much, but when you do talk, your utterances are typical of the man or woman who speaks seldom—sound sincere and to be trusted.

In danger and sudden emergencies you are cool and resolute in action and can always be depended upon in a crisis. You are not an originator, but you carry out with success any plan or work that appeals to you. You are often able to successfully complete things which others have failed to finish. You are methodical, systematic, and patient. You never attempt anything that you are not confident you can handle and you know your limitations. You are cautious and discriminating about those with whom you associate and as a rule you are not easily imposed upon or deceived.

You have a great deal of respect for law and order, and you never trespass on others' rights or privileges. A law that is good for your neighbor is good for you. You are very generous and charitable, and you prove that which is given with a kindly hand is more acceptable than that given with a full one.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JUNE 4.

ONE of the best known of modern feminine composers, Mrs. George Albert Cutter, was born this day, 1873, in Brooklyn. Her father was Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim.

Best known among her piano compositions are "Ten Little Tonal Fancies," "The Holidays," "Half a Dozen Wonderfuls," "Boy Roy and His Friends," "Fairy Tales in Tone," "The Dancing School in Noah's Ark," "Nature's Little Carols" and "The County Fair." She also has composed three operettas—"Ten Teddy Bears," "The Little Ghost of Halloween" and "April Fool." Her plays include "L'Enfant Terrible" and "Ann Is Chic, but Is She Safe?"

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SECRET DREAMS.

There is a dream in every man,
A misty goal afar,
A region beautiful to scan
Where sweeter pleasures are.
For one it is a patch or ground
Where he may some day putter round,
Another holds a restful nook
Where he may sit with pipe and book,
And some would venture out on ships
To end their days on sailing trips.

We all would wander from today
With all its pressing care
To mornings farther down the way
When time is ours to spare.
For every man, though great or low
Dreams of the joys he waits to know.
And in his secret moments sees
His weary body stretched at ease
Somewhere in life's far distant west
Among the things he loves the best.

And so we toil and so we plan
And so we live and die,
And to his work goes every man
With dreaming in his eye,
Who proves the heart will find therein
The joy the toiler hopes to win.
For some it is the fancied charm
Of life upon a little farm;
For some a cottage by the sea,
For strangely dreamers all are we.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Chic simplicity with a touch of graceful femininity are combined in this pajama suit of pink satin, with the bottom of the jacquette and the wide, flaring cuffs in dainty ecru lace. (Courtesy of Drecoll-Beer, Paris.)

HERE are some random items from our fashion notebook, not important enough to write articles about, but interesting as details of the mode:

A new note in Paris is the wearing for evening of a bandeau high on the forehead and around the coiffure. It is cut on wavy lines and embroidered in parallel bands of metallic silver. The effect is charming.

A novel dinner costume for resort wear is cut and fashioned exactly like a three-piece sports outfit, but is made entirely of richly beaded net.

Another dinner gown, with long, voluminous black skirt, has pantalets of delicate black lace coming to the angles.

Despite the setback for a time being of the move toward definitely longer hair, coiffures are steadily growing more feminine. Curls and ringlets are returning to favor, and if hair is not yet much longer the manner of arranging it is beginning more and more to suggest the modes of another day.

Round petal flounces are taking the place of points on fluffy afternoon frocks of printed chiffon and such materials.

A pale, dove-gray is very popular at the moment.

Tny Tots.

There are just a certain number of types of tiny tots, you know. And each one of them wears certain colors better than she wears certain other colors, while some colors are very, very bad for her—not only being unbecoming, but actually being a strain on the nerves of those around her, whether you feel like laughing at this idea or not.

So we have made a leaflet which tells you all the different types of little ones and then tells you what colors belong to each type and what colors they should avoid. Better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope for it right away to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

The weekly fashion letter by Mme. Dare will be found exclusively in Washington in The Sunday Post.

Myths of Olden Times.

II. MARDUK MAKES THE WORLD.

SEVERAL hundred miles from Egypt is land which once went by the name of Babylonia. It lies north of the Arabian Desert, and through it runs two rivers, the Euphrates and the Tigris.

The people of Babylonia learned to write at about the same time as the people of Egypt.

Marduk killed a dragon.

The Babylonians told their children many stories about gods and goddesses; and today I shall relate the myth by which they explained creation.

At the beginning of time, said the Babylonians, there lived the lord of creation, Marduk, and a dragon. Marduk wanted to make the world, so he killed the dragon and cut it into two halves. One half he hung up to make the heavens. He put the sun, moon and stars in it, and gave them laws by which they must move.

The other half of the dragon, Marduk spread out beneath his feet to form the earth. At the western side of the earth he made a cave, for the sun to go into at night. At the eastern side of the earth he made another cave for the sun to come out of in the morning.

The Babylonians also declared that Marduk "lighted the moon" and ordered it to change its shape so that men could tell changes of time.

This story sounds rather strange to us, and we wonder how it could ever have been believed. We know that the sun does not go around the earth each day. We know that day and night come from the twisting of the earth as it circles around the sun.

We also know that the moon does not give its own light. It shines because of reflected light from the sun.

However, we must not laugh too loud or long at the Babylonians. When they lived and told their stories, scientists had not learned many of the things we know today. They did the best they could to explain things as they found them.

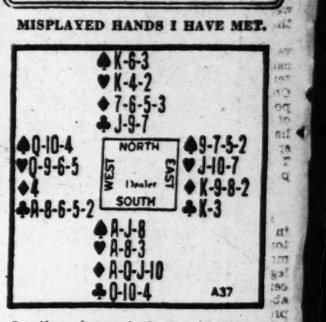
WORK'S BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



In the above deal the bidding at a Auction Bridge would be: South one No Trump, the other three players passing.

At Contract it would be: South two No Trump, West pass, North three No Trumps, which would be the final declaration.

At either game the Five of Clubs would be the first card led. When I saw the hand played, Dummy played the Seven of Clubs, East the King and South the Four. East returned the Trey, South played the Ten, West the Ace, and Dummy the Nine. West led the suit for the third time, South taking the trick. North was put in the lead with a Spade and led a Diamond which South finessed. When the finesse won, North was put in the lead again, this time with a Heart and a second Diamond finesse was made. When West refused, Declarer knew that a third Diamond lead from Dummy would yield a total of four Diamond tricks—but he had no way to put the lead in Dummy again, and so he was obliged to lose one Diamond, one Heart and one Spade. As he already had lost two Clubs he failed to go game.

How should the hand have been played?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When East had played the King on the first Club trick, Declarer, by applying the Rule of Eleven, could place the Ace, Eight and Six with West. Dummy had two entries, but might need three to get three leads of Diamonds, or perhaps two of Diamonds and one of Spades. Declarer can win one Club trick and it might as well be won in Dummy as in closed hand. To this end, South should have played the Queen of Clubs on East's King and in that way Dummy is sure of three entries, all of which he needs for three Diamond leads as it turns out. With these three entries in Dummy, Declarer will make two Spades, two Hearts, four Diamonds and one Club—nine tricks—game.

GRAIN PRICES' RALLY HELPFUL TO STOCKS

Farm Implement and Mail Order Shares Lead in Broad Advance.

CALL FUNDS TIGHTEN UP

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—A striking recovery of the grain markets set the signal on today's stock market for short covering in the farm implement and mail-order issues, which stimulated a brisk resumption of operations for the advance throughout the list.

Call money, however, began to show signs of the long predicted June drain and the public declined to be drawn into the market. Total sales barely crossed the 3,000,000 share mark. Call loans, having held at 6 per cent since May 22, moved up to 7 per cent. Time money, on the other hand, eased further, with the longer maturities loaning at 8¼ per cent.

The tightening of call money was attributed to the return of the June 1 payment checks to the banks for collection, and it was feared that this may make for further stringency during the next few days. It was recalled that the peak of the previous month-end requirements was not felt until the second week of the month.

The New York Stock Exchange announced after the close of the market that total member borrowings on May 31 were $6,665,137,925, a decrease of but $109,792,470 from April 30. While the exchange compilation is not strictly comparable to the Federal Reserve weekly figures, as it includes more sources of funds and is not computed on corresponding dates, it was rather disappointing in view of the greater reduction in Federal Reserve loans, which declined $244,000,000 from May 1 to May 29. The exchange loan total has been reduced but approximately $140,000,000 from its record total reported as of March 30.

Although the recent improvement in time money rates has been interpreted as indicating rather less stringent credit conditions in June than were forecast before the severe stock market decline, the monthly review of the New York Federal Reserve Bank indicated continued dissatisfaction over the absorption of funds by the stock market, stating that the recent ease in call money appears to be the result of a flow of funds to this center from other Federal Reserve districts, causing an increase in member bank borrowings in those districts.

"It does not reflect any general easing o. the situation," the review declares.

The improvement in the grain markets, and the week-end announcement of the reparations agreement, were the chief items of the day's news influencing the market. A contributory factor was another assortment of satisfactory earnings and May sales reports. Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck reported May sales about 25 and 50 per cent, respectively, above May, 1928.

Case Threshing rallied 23 points, and closed 15 up, net. International Harvester, Advance Rumely, Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck mounted 4 or 5 points. Other strong points included Burroughs Adding, Allied Chemical, General Electric and F. G. Shattuck, up 6 to 10 points.

Oil Generally Firm.

Oils were generally firm on expectations of more gasoline and crude oil price increases. Atlantic Refining made an extreme gain of nearly 5 points, and Simms reached new high ground.

Rails and utilities encountered some profit taking on last week's sharp advances. Atchison dropped about 4 points on President Storey's statement that there was no near prospect of a stock dividend. Erie and Norfolk & Western, however, reached new high ground. American Water Works and North American sagged 2 or 3 points, while Philadelphia Co. and Commonwealth Power jumped 10 and 14 points, the latter to a new top at 199.

Westvaco Chlorine, which broke severely Saturday on failure of a Chicago investment house said to be interested in the stock, rallied 14 points. Chrysler made an extreme gain of 4 points, as liquidation of the holdings of an unsuccessful pool was said to have been completed. Notable soft spots were Park & Tilford and Shubert Theater, which dropped about 6 and 4 points to new lows.

Bullishness in Wheat Market.

Bullish factors influencing the rise in wheat were expectations of frost tonight, a bullish Argentine crop estimate and the prospect of farm relief legislation. The rise was from 5 to 6 cents a bushel, taking all positions above the $1 mark. Corn likewise improved. Cotton mounted about $1.50 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were heavy, the Japanese yen dropping one-half of a cent to 43.60, a new 1929 low, which was attributed to Japan's large excess of imports over exports. The Spanish peseta and sterling demand rates also reached new 1929 minimums.

FOREIGN BONDS LEAD NEW FORWARD MOVE

German Loans in Special Favor; Most Domestic Groups Buoyant.

SUGARS CONTINUE WEAK

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—The bond market shook off some of its lethargy today and stepped forward under the leadership of the foreign list, where advances ran as high as 4½ points. German issues were particularly in favor, and it was in this group that the best gains were made, although other European obligations also advanced.

Behind the movement, of course, was the reparations settlement. News that this international tangle was all but formally unraveled brought out substantial inquiry for bonds of all the nations involved in the Paris agreement. Another factor, however, was the continued easement in time money and the confidence which lower charges inspired.

German bonds were strong almost without exception. The Central Agricultural Bank issues, which have attracted most attention since the improved tone first came into the market late last week, continued to be actively bought and closed at net gains of 1 to 3⅛ points. Several of the State, municipal and industrial issues were not far behind in activity and a few made even larger advances, notably Ilseder Steel 6s, which climbed 4½ points. Saxon Public Works 6½s jumped more than 3 points, while Nuremberg 6s, Berlin City 6s and a number of others were up 1 to 2 points. The German Republic 7s had good support at a net advance of ⅝.

French, Belgian and other European obligations moved up to a lesser extent. The heaviest buying of the day developed in French Republic 7½s, which made a net gain of ½. British United Kingdom 5½s showed no change from Saturday's close.

Representative rails, industrials and utilities in the domestic list gave further evidence of the return of life to the stagnant market. Although many of the highest grade issues, notably the United States Government Bonds, were irregular, gains outnumbered losses. National Dairy Products 5½s, Federal Light & Traction first 6s, Kansas City Southern refunding 5s, Liggett & Myers Tobacco 5s and a few of the speculative rails were well supported for sizable gains.

American Telephone convertible 4½s took the lead in the share privilege section, mounting 1⅞ on a turnover of over $1,000,000 par value. Atchison convertible 4½s yielded half a point, but most of the other stock option issues made headway.

The sugar issues were weak and several lows appeared in this group.

GRIFFITH REPORTED ON WAY TO BUY ATLANTA CLUB

Dempsey Hints His Return To Ring

Announces Conference With Normile Today for Coast Bout.

Will Start Training in Ojai Hills Again, Is Word From Wife.

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (A.P.)—Gene Normile, formerly business manager for Jack Dempsey while the Manassa Mauler was heavyweight champion, declared here tonight that definite arrangements had been made for a conference with the retired fighter tomorrow afternoon. He said that Wirt G. Borman, president of the Ague Caliente Corporation, and James M. Crofton, vice president, would be present.

Whether Dempsey would return to the ring likely will be known tomorrow, Normile added.

Earlier in the day Dempsey had reiterated his declaration made some time ago in New York that he might put on gloves again provided "proper inducements" are offered. He admitted that he had an engagement with Normile "to consider a bout at Agua Caliente."

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—The great guessing game is on again, livening up the dull spring season for fistcuffers and their faithful followers, and featuring as usual the big "will and won't" man from California, Jack Dempsey.

With a snort that ruffled the lather of his morning shave in tiny wavelets, the one-time ruler of the heavyweight roost told the Associated Press just a few days ago that he had no idea of ever fighting again.

Mauler to Start Training, Is Word From Coast.

But the developments of the meantime have brought those reservations back into the picture with new significance. Dempsey shattered his promotional partnership with Humbert J. Fugazy, took a two-year lease as promoter at the Chicago Coliseum, held secret confab with Big Bill Carey, new overlord of Madison Square Garden, and hustled out of town.

Today he ended up by flying to Los Angeles and word drifted back from the coast, supposedly dropped unintentionally by his wife, Estelle Taylor, that the next few weeks will find the big slugger training again in the Ojai Hills for his second comeback. Jack prepped there for his first return to the leather wars, the campaign that ended in the $3,000,000 spectacle of the long count in Chicago two years ago.

Working along the lines that "where there is smoke there is fire," diagnosticians of the knuckle mart have decided that Dempsey had something in mind when he tagged two reservations to his articles of retirement.

Million Dollars Would Tempt Him, Dempsey Said.

"If some responsible party offered me $1,000,000 I'd have to consider it," was reservation No. 1. "If someone would guarantee me training expenses, say $50,000, and not consider it a binding promise for me to fight again, I might try to get in condition for another fling at the title," was No. 2.

Coming out point blank with their conclusions the diagnosticians now are ready to assert that the old man mauler will try again, possibly next winter in Madison Square Garden's second invasion of Florida. They believe Dempsey, once he gets the smell of resin in his nostrils again, can't be kept out of another crack at a $1,000,000 gate.

Ruth Enters Hospital For Treatment of Cold

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth was taken to a hospital today for treatment of a heavy cold which kept him out of the Yankees' line-up yesterday for the first time in two years. The treatment was described as a precautionary measure to prevent the cold developing into pneumotnia. He probably will be out of the game about a week.

TENNIS FINAL TO MANGAN, CONSIDINE

O'Neill-Fowler Beaten in Doubles in Hard 4-Set Match.

TOM MANGAN and Bob Considine, Middle Atlantic champions, won the men's doubles championship in the Washington tennis tournament yesterday when they defeated Maurice O'Neill and Hal Fowler, 6—2, 6—4, 5—7 and 6—4. The match was the hardest fought of the tournament to date and was featured by the close playing of both teams for final honors.

O'Neill and Fowler started off badly in the first set, failing to keep pace with the fast-going set by Mangan and Considine. The latter pair took the first game, lost the second and took the next four for a 5 to 1 lead in games, winning the set after dropping one to their opponents.

Second Set Closely Contested; Superior Serving Decides.

The second set was more closely contested, ONeill and Fowler putting up a much more stubborn fight only to finally succumb. They matched their opponents at every turn, being 3 to 3 in games at one time and 4 to 4 at another before losing the last two games for the set. The serving of Considine and Mangan was exceptionally powerful in this set and counted heavily in the victory.

The third set was the feature one of the match. Mangan and Considine got off to a good start to lead at 4 to 1, dropping one and then taking the next for a 5 to 2 margin. At this time, however, Fowler and ONeill put up the most spectacular uphill game seen in the tournament in coming up to even terms and finally winning the set, 7—5. It seemed that whatever Considine or Mangan tried to do in staving off the rally. O'Neill and Fowler would go them one better in either chopping back returns or driving the ball into uncovered places of the court for points.

Fowler and O'Neill Show to Advantage in Third Set.

It was in the third, with Mangan and Considine enjoying their 5-to-2 lead, that Fowler and O'Neill excelled in their work. They fought their opponents at every turn and kept them from getting match points not less than seven times before finally winning out. After tying the count at 5-all, O'Neill and Fowler, enthused by the success of their drive, wore down both Mangan and Considine in taking the next two games for the set.

Mangan and Considine recovered their form in the next and final set, however, and fought gamely to down the stubborn and powerful attack of the ONeill and Fowler team. See sawing back and forth and being tied 4—4 in games just before the finish, Mangan and Considine put forth every effort to win the final two games for the margin of victory.

Lacoste Beats Borotra in Five Sets

French Title Decided in Thrilling Match Before 6,000.

Baseline Play of Rene Factor; Battle in Rain and Wind.

By THOMAS T. TOPPING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PARIS, June 3 (A.P.).—Rene Lacoste once more is at the top of the world's tennis heap.

Defeating his countryman, Jean Borotra, in a thrilling five-set match today by scores 6—3, 2—6, 6—0, 2—6, 8—6, the stolid and steady Rene captured the French championship for the third time since 1925, when the tournament first was opened to entries from all countries.

Lacoste now has won in 1925, 1927 and 1929 while in 1926 and 1928 the title went to Henri Cochet, third member of the tricolor's great triumvirate.

On the way to the finals the three musketeers decisively reasserted their supremacy by beating off the combined attack of a big international field headed by Bill Tilden, the only foreign player to get as far as the semifinals.

Going on to battle it out with his compatriots, Lacoste, who had personally accounted for the scalp of his old foe Tilden, finally conquered the revivified Borotra after the amazing Basque had taken the measure of the defending champion, Cochet, by dint of some of the finest tennis he has shown since 1924.

Success of Frenchmen Makes U. S. Davis Cup Chances Remote.

In the light of this first big international engagement which will be followed by the English and American championships, the phlegmatic Rene now tops the players of the entire world with the volatile Borotra as runner-up. Together they captured the doubles crown, a fact which makes American chances of recapturing the Davis Cup this year seem even more remote.

In extending the machine-like Lacoste to the limit in a gruelling match which was not decided until the final stroke, Borotra kept the gallery of 6,000 in a constant uproar and played as brilliantly as yesterday when he downed Cochet, the recognized No. 1 player of the world last year, in another five-set match.

Match Started in Drizzle With Strong Cross-Court Wind.

The match began in a drizzle of rain and a strong cross-court wind which combined to make the playing conditions worse than at any time since the tournament began two weeks ago.

The adverse conditions appeared to favor the phlegmatic Lacoste more than the nervous Basque, and Lacoste soon was leading at 4-love. Rene's accurate stroking produced a minimum of errors while Jean was more erratic.

Borotra, however, braced to take three games in a row before Lacoste ran out two more games and the set.

Throughout the opening set Lacoste succeeded in keeping the Basque away from the net, easily besting him in baseline play.

The sun came out and the wind died down somewhat as Borotra opened the second set with a rush to his favorite attacking point at the net. Here he soon smashed and volleyed his way into a 4—2 lead.

Lacoste appeared surprised at the violence of the Basque's attack, and scored no more games in this set. The volatile Jean now was outguessing and outspeeding his opponent, who found it difficult to shoot his drives past the rapier racquet of the Basque at short range.

Lacoste's Shots Shave Baseline And He Gains 2-to-1 Lead.

In the third set, Lacoste's shots were shaving the baseline and Borotra forthwith found himself trailing at love-three. In the face of Lacoste's virtual infallibility, the Basque several times pointed his racket heavenward with an eloquent gesture as though appealing against such unearthly tennis. He was unable to win a single game and the ten minute rest period found Lacoste with a lead of two sets to one.

The 6,000 spectators at the beginning of the fourth set were treated to the unusual spectacle of Lacoste, the baseliner par excellence, attempting to take a leaf out of the book of the bounding Basque and coming up to the net.

In the vollying duel that resulted, Borotra simply annihilated the slower man's strokes, capturing three straight games.

Lacoste, trailing at love-three, went back to the baseline a sadder and a wiser man. He won the fourth and fifth games, but the Basque brought off a series of winning half volleys and captured the set.

Rain descended again as the fifth set

MACKS HAND UHLE FIRST DEFEAT

9-Game Streak Ended as Detroit Bows, 3-2, in 13th.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics breezed ahead of the Detroit Tigers in thirteen innings today, 3 to 2, thereby bringing to an end George Uhle's winning streak of nine straight games.

The end of the long tussle and of Uhle's long row of victories came in the most undramatic way possible. In the home half of the thirteenth Foxx opened with a double and Dykes and Collins, pinch hitting, were intentionallly passed, filling the bases. Uhle then forced home the winning run by walking Bishop.

Mackmen Tie Score at 2-2 In Baby Rally in Sixth.

Grove hung up his eighth triumph of the year and at the same time allowed the Athletics to run their present winning streak to six games by outpitching Uhle when the game went into extra innings. He allowed only four hits altogether. Fifteen of the Macks were left on bases.

The Athletics took the lead in the fourth inning with a lone run, but the Tigers went to the front by scoring two in the fourth. The Athletics tied the score in the sixth and the game settled down to extra innings. The Macks retained their five-and-a-half game lead over the Browns by their victory and are leading the third-place Yankees by seven games.

Giants Triumph, 8-1, In 3d in Row Over Cubs

Chicago, June 3 (A.P.).—The New York Giants made it three in a row over the Cubs today, winning 8 to 1 behind the steady pitching of Carl Hubbell. It was the fourth straight defeat for Chicago and the Giants' eleventh victory in the last twelve games played. Coupled with the defeat of the Phillies, it put New York into the first division.

Wells Hero in 1-0 Game As Yanks Beat Chisox

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—The Yankees made it three straight over the Chicago White Sox today, 1 to 0, by virtue of a brilliant pitching performance by Ed Wells, young left-hander. Wells gave the Sox but two hits to beat out Ted Lyons in a mound duel. The Yanks got to Lyons for only six hits, three of them doubles by Gene Robertson, but two of them came in succession in the first inning for the only run. Robertson's first double brought in Combs after the center fielder had opened the game with a single.

LISKA HURLS AFTER LONG LAY-OFF

"Rip" Collins to Face Nats Today in Last of Series.

ADOLPH LISKA, clever underhand hurler who has been forced to idle for nearly three weeks because of a sprained ankle, is listed to return to action in the final of the series with the Browns this afternoon in the hope of turning in a victory and thus evening the series with Howley's men. Warren "Rip" Collins, former Tiger and Yankee, is expected to do the flinging for the Browns. This veteran's record is four victories and no defeats.

Everett Sammy Haas, former first-baseman of the Georgetown A. C. team and now starring with the St. Joseph amateur outfit, reported for a tryout with the Nationals yesterday. Like Joe Judge, he throws and bats lefthanded.

Harris Brings Powerful Tigers Here Tomorrow.

Bucky Harris will bring his Tigers here tomorrow for a 4-game series and a goodly gathering of fans is expected to turn out to see the former Nats leader and his team. Harris still has the Tigers fighting, as they always have, but this year they are doing their batting against opponents, rather than among themselves, as used to be the case.

Detroit teams always have been noted for their powerful attack and this season is no exception as they are now leading the league in this respect. And, as Harris also is getting good pitching, his team likely will be heard from before the season ends. The veteran, George Uhle, is the ace of the staff, he alone having won nine games—almost as many as the Nats have captured all this season.

Reds Score Six in First To Defeat Braves, 12-3

Cincinnati, June 3 (A.P.).—Six hits off Cantwell, three of them doubles, and an error in the first inning which produced six runs, gave the Reds a lead which they never relinquished and Boston dropped its second straight game to Cincinnati, 12 to 3, here today. Acting Manager Johnny Evers changed the Braves' batting order, placing Richbourg in the lead-off position, but the combination failed to check the Braves' downward slide.

NATIONALS TO OBTAIN SOUTHERN TEAM AS A "FARM," IS INDICATION

Browns Slam Braxton at Start to Win Over Nats, 6-4.

Gray Survives Despite 10 Hits, 5 Walks; Brown Stars.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IF games were decided on hits alone, the Nationals would have quite a record this season and they would have scored another victory over the Browns yesterday, 10 to 9. Unfortunately for the Nats, however, runs are what count, and in this respect St. Louis had a 6 to 4 edge.

Garland Braxton drew the Washington pitching assignment and it required only two innings for the Browns to convince Manager Johnson that this was not the southpaw's day. Five runs, four in the first inning, were scored off his slants and, as things turned out, this total was enough to win and made Lloyd Brown's scoreless relief shift of six frames just so much wasted good pitching. Paul Hopkins faced the visitors in the ninth and they molded their final run from his delivery.

Sam Gray started and finished for Howley's team, and, although he was hit hard at intervals and was inclined to be generous with his pass book, he managed to have enough in reserve to hold the lead which his mates gave him.

Browns Waste No Time, Scoring Four Runs in First Inning.

They did not delay getting started, opening their first-inning four-run rally with McGowan's single with one out. Manush followed with a triple and he and Schulte were both safe when Myer dropped Ruel's throw in a run-down which had Manush trapped between third and home. Schang's single, O'Rourke's safe sacrifice fielder's choice, on which Judge's throw to the plate was late, and Melillo's double did the rest of the damage, after which Braxton settled down and fanned both Kress and Gray. St. Louis' run in the second resulted from a pass to McGowan and Manush's double.

Brown then toed the slab and pitched brilliantly until eased out to make room for a pinch-hitter and the final allen run, in the ninth, was made from Blue's triple and Manush's single while Paul Hopkins was toiling.

Brown Grants Two Hits in Six Innings and Fans Three.

In six innings, Brown granted but two hits and fanned three, both of the safeties coming in the sixth session, in which the Nats staged the second of their three double plays of the game.

EPSOM DERBY WITH RICH SWEEPSTAKES UNRIVALED

140th Running Of Classic Tomorrow

Masses Ignorant of Operation of Famous "Sweeps."

Lucky Ticket Holder Often Hard to Find Owing to Tax.

By CHARLES WATSON.

NO event in the annals of turf history provides a more colorful setting or is more profoundly classical than the approaching English Derby, which will be fought out over the mile and one-half switchback course at Epsom Downs tomorrow. Although the race itself is the center of attraction, international interest is manifest in the richest of all prizes, the Calcutta Sweepstakes, which has become synonymous with the running of the great turf classic.

The derby, now in its 140th renewal, has always been considered the world's greatest sporting event since its inception in 1780, but there are many among the vast multitude of racing enthusiasts who make their yearly pilgrimage over the famous plains of Epsom, in the picturesque County of Surrey, who will tell you that the "sweeps" or lotteries dependent on the outcome of the race, are the magnets which draw the great throngs. This feeling is due to the enormous amounts paid out by the promoters to the holders of the lucky tickets on the actual starters in the race.

Calcutta Sweep, Most Famous, Will Net $5,637,484.

These "sweeps" are operated exclusively on the derby, the most important ones being represented in the London Stock Exchange, Baltic Melbourne and Calcutta Sweepstakes. The largest and most famous of them all is the Calcutta Sweep, conducted under the auspices of the Calcutta Turf Club, whose tickets can be found in all parts of the civilized globe. The tickets in this pool are the most expensive of all the "sweeps," selling for approximately $25, and this year will see $5,637,484 distributed among the holders of the lucky numbers.

All of England makes a holiday out of Derby day and tomorrow, when the race is run, each purchaser in the pool will know his fate. The day will mark the end of long weary months of anxious waiting on the part of the thousands of early buyers.

To the average follower of the turf the operation of the "sweep" is a mystery. This ignorance obtains because the promoters maintain the strictest secrecy regarding its operation, for the laws of England do not permit the promotion of lotteries in any form. Then, too, there are the tax laws to combat, but they use devious methods to evade the law. Only numbers are sold and the purchaser buys his ticket on pure faith in the enterprise.

Eligibles Named for Derby Run Into Thousands.

The Derby is for three-year-olds, of any country or clime in which they are recognized as thoroughbreds. Entries are made for the classic when the foal is dropped and in some instances the eligibles run into many thousands. There is a ticket sold on each foal entered, but by the time the race is run many of those named for the event become incapacitated from starting and the field narrows down to about two dozen actual starters.

No limit is placed on the number of tickets each member may buy, but he is honor bound not to sell his number for more than its face value up to the time the list of actual starters is published. Even when the final list of starters is named the purchaser does not know what horse his or her number represents until the drawing is made at the club. This is done in secret at the Calcutta Club and remains confidential with the promoters until it is made public a short time before the race.

Starters' Names Drawn From Keg With All Others Worthless.

When the drawing is made a number of small discs, similar to poker chips, containing corresponding numbers to those no the tickets sold, are emptied into a tub or keg and at a given word the contraption is given a spin and the first number is drawn and given the name of the No. 1 horse in the entries. This process is continued until every horse actually to start is given a number. The remaining numbers in the keg are called blanks and are worthless.

The holders of the lucky numbers are then besieged by financiers, trusts and bookmaking syndicates who offer huge premiums for the ticket or portions thereof and in many instances there are as many as five or more interested in the same number.

On account of the illegality of the lottery and the income tax features, Calcutta winners are sometimes hard to locate. When Sir Hugo Cunliffe Owens Felstead, an outsider, won last year's race it was months before the actual winner was located. It developed that W. N. Webb purchased the original ticket on the winner but he disposed of it before the race was run to Abraham Kazi, a Bombay timber merchant, who bought 90 others with it.

Winning Ticket in 1928 Held by Babe of 8 Months.

The Mohammedan sportsman and racehorse owner distributed the tickets to members of his family, the Webb ticket, which proved the winner, going to his 8-month-old baby girl. Her portion of the prize was $685,000 instead of twice that much, as her father had sold a half interest in the number to two of his foremen for 5 rupees, or about $2.50.

Other winners in the Calcutta Sweep included a group of six Englishmen who drew down $625,000 for the ticket on the second horse to finish, Flamingo. The lucky holder of the number which went to Black Watch, the third horse to cross the line, amounted to $325,000, and it was said she was a Glasgow, Scotland, woman who disposed of a fourth interest in her ticket to a friend. Records do not disclose if she was ever located.

Tickets sold on other sweeps are not so expensive as the Calcutta pool and they pay much less. The Stock Exchange Sweep, the second largest, was won by a woman clerk in a brewer's office and paid $625,000. The holder of the Black Watch ticket in this pool was Agustus Young, a London broker, but he sold it to a client and it afterward developed that he had sold a half interest to a man who had been a cobbler since boyhood. It paid $100,000 to the shoemaker.

Many stories of pathos have been recorded with the winning of these "sweeps," and each year the narratives become more interesting. As soon as this year's race is over another mad scramble will be made by the British subjects for tickets on next year's event and from the royal family down to the London coster boy, all will be keen to speculate on next year's winner.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NADAR, $11.68, $8.14, $4.58; PARNELL BOY, $8.14, $4.58; HELEN KING, 15.06.

NADAR, breaking fast, took command quickly and, displaying the most speed, gamely held PARNELL BOY safe at the end. The latter closed stoutly through stretch and was gradually overhauling the leader. HELEN KING raced forwardly throughout and had no mishaps. MISS LOTTA finished well. MISS NOBODY was given a listless ride. ROYAL EQUITY tired after showing a flash of early speed.

SECOND RACE—One mile (out the chute). Purse, $1,200; claiming. The Garrick Theater. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:51. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEORGE GROOM, $7.42, $3.98, $2.98; BILL SETH, $6.96, $3.36; TRAYMORE, $2.46.

GEORGE GROOM, outpaced early, moved up gradually rounding the turn and, closing with good courage through stretch, took lead and outfinished BILL SETH in final drive. BILL SETH, taken back off early pace, came between horses entering the stretch and fought it out gamely with the winner, but was not good enough. TRAYMORE, forced to race in close quarters during early stages, moved forwardly stoutly when clear in the stretch, but hung under punishment in final furlong. HIDDEN THOUGHTS showed good speed in pacemaking, but tired upon reaching the stretch. RED LEATHER tired after forcing the early pace.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. The Blackstone Theater. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:34½. Winner, F. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TYROL, $3.30, $2.42, $2.40; SIXTY, $2.80, $2.82; BLACK SPOT, $6.24.

TYROL, reserved back of early pace to the stretch, saved ground while moving up and outfinished SIXTY following a long, hard drive. SIXTY moved up fast in the first quarter and took a brief lead after disposing of BLACK PATTI, but was outfinished. BLACK SPOT finished well through the stretch. BLACK PATTI showed high speed in pacemaking, but swerved all over the track when tiring

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,200. Grand Opera House. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:57. Off at 3:57. Winner, E. E. Bryson's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JIMMY MORAN, $3.84, $2.48, $2.12; KHARA, $3.00, $2.30; TIMOUR, $2.64.

JIMMY MORAN, a good colt, followed along in closest pursuit of the pace to the stretch, where he headed TIMOUR and gamely outfinished KHARA. The latter raced forwardly into the stretch, where she came to the outside and finished with a rush. TIMOUR showed the most speed in pacemaking, but weakened as if short in the final furlong. CHATTER ANNE raced evenly throughout and had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (out the chute). Purse, $1,500. The Adelphi Theater. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:27. Off at 4:27. Winner, Wild Rose Farm's b. g. (4), by Upset—Pandora Girl. Trained by C. F. Perry. Value to winner, $1,150; second, $225; third, $125. Time, 0:24, 0:47 2-5, 1:13, 1:38 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOWAGIAC, $6.20, $2.78, $2.48; KING NADI, $2.70, $2.40; WACKER DRIVE, $4.40.

DOWAGIAC, racing into lead after going first quarter, continued well thereafter and easily held race safe. KING NADI, reserved close up to the pace, could not close any ground on the winner when put to a drive. WACKER DRIVE closed a gap in the final quarter. BEAUREGARD showed speed away from the barrier and raced well through the back stretch under stout restraint, then flattened out badly when let down.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards (out the chute). Purse, $1,300; claiming. The Harris Theater. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:58. Off at 4:58. Winner, R. O. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EARL OF WARWICK $18.34, $8.00, $4.70; TAMINA, $4.12, $2.94; IRENE T., 14.02.

EARL OF WARWICK, racing under close restraint to the stretch, took lead when ready and, under mild urging, held TAMINA safe. The latter saved ground entering the stretch and finished stoutly. IRENE T. raced forwardly throughout and had no mishaps. HURSTLAND raced into a good early lead, but tired as if short upon reaching the stretch. WOOD GAIN could not improve his position under hard riding. VIMONT was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. The Fort Theater. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:26. Off at 5:26. Winner, W. BY GOSH, outrun early, came to outside entering stretch and, closing with a rush under stout riding, overhauled leaders inside final sixteenth and was going away at the end. DUCK IT, reserved off early pace, moved into the stretch, but was outfinished. HELEN E., outrun early, came with a rush through the final quarter. JOHN PEEL followed in closest pursuit of early pace to the stretch, where he took lead, but weakened in the final drive. BRUMPFIELD stopped badly after setting the pace for seven furlongs.

BELSHE LEADS FIELD IN INTERDEPARTMENTAL GOLF

War Player's 161 Best at Manor

Play for Mellon Trophy Starts With Most of Scores High.

Shorey Wins Tourney of Midatlantic Professionals.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE annual tournament of the Interdepartmental Golf League began yesterday on the course of the Manor Club with 85 players competing in a 36-hole medal play round, and it was remarkable that of this number there were no defaults and only two failed to turn in their cards. Today between 80 and 90 additional competitors will play 36 holes. The various departments and bureaus are represented by four-man teams, divided into classes A, B and C on a handicap basis, and the team in class A scoring the lowest number of strokes for 36 holes will be awarded the trophy donated by Secretary Mellon. There are also cups for teams in the other classes and prizes for low gross and low net scores.

The field yesterday was led by T. M. Belshe, of the War Department and a member of the Argyle Club, who played two fine rounds of 80 and 81. His nearest competitor was J. E. Voll, of the Department of Agriculture, who had cards of 83 and 82 and whose liberal handicap of 18 gave him a net 129, leaving all the other net scores far in the rear. E. P. Hair, of the State Department, with cards of 85 and 82, was among the leaders, but his net score, 145, while second to Voll's, was outdistanced.

Narrowness of New Fairways Handicaps Clerk Golfers.

The narrowness of the new nine of the Manor Club proved troublesome to the great majority of the players, most of whom are accustomed to the wide open spaces of East Potomac Park.

The Mellon trophy was won last year by the Postoffice Department Team by the same foursome which is competing this year—R. H. Brown, A. T. Wannan, W. B. Robertson and J. B. Boger. Robertson played yesterday with a card of 93—97—190, and the other three members of the team will play today. The scores of the players yesterday, gross and net, were as follows:

AGRICULTURE—Class B, C. C. Sperry, 97—90—187—net, 157; H. E. Larsen, 102—87—189—net, 161; W. C. Henderson, 97—93—190—net, 152; J. E. Voll, 83—82—165—net, 129. Class C, V. P. Tapke, 98—96—194—net, 158; C. Lindsay, 101—105—206—net, 166; W. H. Young, 101—96—197—net, 161.

Mel Shorey's 73 Tops Field Of Middle Atlantic Pros.

The tournament of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association at the Congressional Country Club yesterday afternoon was won by Mel Shorey, professional of the East Potomac Park course, with a card of 39—34—73. Charles P. Betschler, Rodgers Forge, and Kenneth Allen, unattached, tied for second money with 74. Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, was third with 75.

The Scotch foursome for women to be played on the course of the Indian Spring Club this morning is a club event, and is not under the auspices of the Women's District Golf Association. The next event of the association will be a miniature tournament on the Manor Club course on Tuesday, the 11th instant.

A quintet of members of the Chevy Chase Club yesterday participated in the first round of the eighteen holes, medal play, for the club championship. C. Ashmead Fuller, the club champion, and John Britten led the field with cards of 80, followed by R. P. Davidson, 82; Worthington Fraley, 85, and Mc-Cook Dunlop, 88. The cards of the leaders were:

Central Awards 113 Letters; Brandt Captains 2 Teams

Grid Star Gains Leadership of Baseball; Varela Elected Swimming Captain; 15 Monograms Awarded to Trackmen.

YESTERDAY was tag day at Central High School, letters being tagged on all those who participated in sports during the scholastic year just ended. Letters in girls' and boys' basket ball, swimming, tennis, and rifle were presented as were those letters in baseball, and track, exclusive boys' sports. Awards were given the cheer leaders and officers of the athletic association and in golf to make a grand total of 113 for the year.

Two captains were elected for next year during the awarding. George Brandt, third baseman of the baseball team, was named to lead the 1930 nine, while Bob Varela was elected to captain the swimming team. The election of George Brandt as baseball captain marked the second honor for him as a leader of teams for next year, he already having been named football captain.

UNION CARMEN WIN.

he Uniontown Carmen Nine defeated Washington Terminal, 10 to 8, in a Terminal Y Morning League game yesterday. Although the Terminals gathered 16 hits off his delivery, Vandornes managed to get by with the exception of the fifth inning, when the losers scored five runs. Lassiter and Plumer were the hitting stars.

Assistant for Pixlee Is Signed by G. W. U.

Advices from Fulton, Mo., that James E. Pixlee, new athletic director and professor of physical education of George Washington University, had signed Max Farrington, assistant coach of Westminster College, as his first assistant for the local institution were confirmed last night by Cloyd Heck Marvin, George Washington president.

In substantiating the report, President Marvin explained that Farrington will confine his activities at George Washington to the teaching of physical education. A second assistant will be hired to coach the Colonial varsity football team, the university head stated, while Director Pixlee will coach the freshmen eleven next fall in addition to supervising the reorganization of the athletic department.

Boutot Fails to Appear For Gallagher Fight

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 3.—Rosaire Boutot, a big Canadian woodchopper, was scheduled to meet Marty Gallagher, of Washington, at the Phillies Ball Park tonight, but when the time came for the fight Boutot was in the land of the missing.

He arrived at the commission headquarters in the afternoon and weighed in. He was at his hotel at 6 o'clock when his manager, Charley Harvey, of England, left for the scene of combat. Boutot was under instructions to be on hand for the scrap, and told Harvey he would be on the job. It was suspected that Rosaire went into the Broad street subway station and got lost in the rush.

NATS BEATEN BY BROWNS, 6 TO 4

Although the Nationals managed to get four of these runs back, they failed to make the most of their opportunities. Their markers came in as many different innings. Two walks and Kress' wide throw past Blue trying for a double-killing accounted for one in the first, while, after failing in the second after getting two men on with only one out, they were able to score but once in the third in spite of the fact that Rice's single, Goslin's double and a walk filled the bases with none out. Cronin then scored Rice on a sacrifice fly, but both Judge and Hayes failed.

Strikeouts End Two Rallies by Nats.

It took singles by Judge, Hayes and Brown to mould the marker in the sixth, while another opportunity was "blown" in the eighth when Hayes' one-baser and O'Rourke's error put two on with only one out. This time Pinch Hitter Flagstead hit into a force play and Myer kept his bat on his shoulder while a third strike grooved the plate.

As a dying effort, the Nats scored in the ninth, but this merely kept the shivering fans in their seats a little longer. Rice led off with a safety off Gray's glove and Goslin immediately singled him to third. West's fly was long enough to score Rice and Goslin moved up to second after the catch, but here the rally ended, although Cronin sent Manush almost to the stands for his drive to left. This put it up to Judge, but the home captain fanned.

LACOSTE RETAINS FRENCH NET HONORS

began. Lacoste, having learned the folly of trifling with Borotra's fire at the net, quartered himself on the baseline, awaiting the Basque's errors. Rene led, 2—1, then 3—1, as the rain poured down.

Borotra, his exuberant spirits undampened by the downpour, won the next two games to make it 3—all and then, winning his service, took the lead at 4—3. But Rene, hanging on to every point, captured the next two games and led, 5—4.

After a heartbreaking struggle in which Borotra gallantly strove against defeat, Lacoste finally put over the finishing points to win the fourteenth game for the set, match and championship.

Fisherman's Luck

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON

DON N. CARPENTER, of the Cathedral Mansions, returned from Oregon, N. C., Sunday with one of the best catches reported by local fishermen this season. Carpenter had a catch of 26 channel bass to show for his angling. The average weight of the bass was 28 pounds.

The largest of the catch weighed 40½ pounds, was 46 inches long and 28 inches in girth. This big fellow was on exhibition at Atlas' D street sporting good store yesterday afternoon and was viewed by hundreds of envious fishermen. This is one of many good reports that have come from North Carolina fishing havens this season.

Tidal Basin Season Opens; Few Catches Reported.

Muddy waters in the upper Potomac proved a real checkmate to fishermen who had planned a productive ay in that vicinity Sunday, and, according to boatmen near Chain Bridge, there is little hope for real sport for several days.

Rock and perch are known to be plentiful in the vicinity of Coppertithe's, and a great mortality among these species is expected immediately upon the clearing of the waters. Returns from the salt water areas are generally good, and the week-end fisherman can sally forth with much greater expectations than a year ago.

Last Thursday was the official opening of the fishing season in the Tidal Basin, and the need of a real preserve of this kind was emphasized by the large number of local citizens who turned out for a day of sport. Various and conflicting reports have come in as to the luck of the day, but generally it was considered much better than at any time last season.

Several hundred anglers threw baited hooks into the Basin before 9 o'clock on opening day, and many were there as early as 5 a. m. Some of these early arrivers left before 9 o'clock, convinced that the sport there was poor, while others stayed throughout the day.

Some left with something to show for their efforts, while many had nothing. One party of two is reported to have captured 63 perch, and many others had success of a lesser degree.

Fishing on Upward Trend At Chesapeake Beach.

According to Lymen H. Wolff, travel counselor of the American Automobile Association, the best trout fishing near Washington is furnished near Hagerstown where many have had considerable success in dropping their lines at the following spots: in Marsh Run, on the Marsh Pike out of Hagerstown; Downey Run, just west of the Sharpsburg Pike, and St. James Run, between the Williamsport Pike and the National Pike.

Lymen also has investigated fishing conditions in Frederick County and states that Fishing Creek, near Foxville, and Hunting Creek, 1 mile north of Thurmont, are excellent. Owens Creek and Shooktown Branch in this same locality are also reported to be good fishing prospects.

Reports from Chesapeake Beach are to the effect that the success in crabbing at the resort last year was no flash in the pan and the wisdom of the Maryland and Virginia legislation restricting the crabbing industry has proven to be a real boon to this form of sea life.

Despite the fact that crabs do not usually make their appearance in shallow water until July 1, they are already being brought in at the beach and other points in the Chesapeake.

Fishing is also on the upward trend at Chesapeake Beach. Hardheads and small rock fish are now being hooked regularly. Train schedules have been so arranged as to make the beach accessible to all who desire to angle from this favorite spot.

SKYROADS By LIEUT. LESTER J. MAITLAND

RIDE 'EM COWBOY! THIS AIR IS AS FULL OF BUMPS AS A KIWI'S NIGHTMARE.
I'VE GOT TO KEEP HER AS LEVEL AS POSSIBLE, WITH ELEVATORS AND AILERONS.
IF STORM PRESSURE FORCES TAIL DOWN —
NORMAL FLYING POSITION IS REGAINED BY PUSHING THE STICK FORWARD, DROPPING ELEVATORS.
THIS INCREASES LIFT OF TAIL SURFACE, RAISING TAIL AND RESTORING HORIZONTAL FLIGHT.
ARE YOU SURE WE'RE SAFE IN THIS STORM?
IF WE HAD MORE ALTITUDE I'D LIKE IT BETTER. AIR IS ROUGHER NEAR THE EARTH.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

Dick Halsted has ridden away with ghostly riders and so the Bradys and Clegg push on to Spanish Licks. The mayor greets them and relates all he knows of the case. Dr. Doniphan tells them of the secret treasure on the island and agrees to guide the Bradys to the island.

THE MATTER OF MARSHAL MUNDY.

CHAPTER II.

The Mystery of Marshal Mundy.

"Hold on!" exclaimed Old King Brady. "I have never seen a real genuine ghost and this may be my chance."

Harry had not heard the legend of Deadman's Island so he was puzzled.

"If you tarry you run the risk of your life!" warned Frank. "Where's that other fellow? He'll get caught surest thing."

"Whistle!" cried Old King Brady. "I'll explain to you, Harry, later on."

The figures had now come closer but in the darkness it was hard to make out exactly what they were like. The horses were also white.

"Queer business, this," muttered the old detective, as Harry whistled shrilly through his fingers. There was no answer from Dick Halsted. Nearby was a grove of huge cottonwood trees and there Harry went to see if he could find the young man.

"I don't see him, governor," he shouted. "Where do you suppose he is?"

"Come back!" cried Old King Brady. "He probably knows his own business. You saw how quickly he pulled away from the hut."

Harry came back hastily, and Old King Brady related to him briefly the legend of the Deadmen. Concluding, "If they swipe our horses we are in the soup!"

Meanwhile the horses drew nearer and the Bradys soon saw that it was only the old business of disguising with white sheets with holes cut for eyes and mouth. Ghosts with boots and spurs could hardly convince the detectives. They rode into the cottonwood grove and halted. For perhaps five minutes they sat motionless on their horses. Then suddenly they wheeled around and went dashing back over the plain in the direction from which they had come.

One thing the detectives noticed was that the horses made no sound in their approach, but now in the retreat one horse went with them whose footfalls could be distinctly heard, and astride that horse was Dick Halsted.

"Well, upon my word!" said Old King Brady. "We have certainly made fools of ourselves."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, instead of pumping any information out of that fellow, we have informed him of our business," said Old King Brady in a disgusted voice. "We have taken hold of the case wrong end foremost, that's all."

The door of the hut opened and Frank Clegg came out, looking white and scared. "Where's that young fellow? Did he get caught?"

"It came out just as you said," replied Old King Brady, gravely. "His horse was caught, too."

"Gee whiz! Lucky you escaped."

"Now, Frank, honest Injun, did you ever know a man to be carried off by these mysterious riders?"

"Why sure! Thar was Jim Mundy. I seen him over at Deadman's Island with my own eyes."

"Frank, this is serious business. We will solve this mystery before we get through with the matter of Marshal Mundy. Now let us have that breakfast."

Clegg seemed to feel rather called down, and breakfast was eaten in silence.

At Spanish Licks.

The horses were found intact and the Bradys rode on to Spanish Licks without further adventure. Disposing of their horses on arriving at the Prairie House they went in to dinner immediately.

"What a dejected looking town this is, governor," remarked Harry as they sat waiting for their soup. "I can hardly understand what excuse it has for existing."

"Clegg tells me there are good ranges south of here. We shall find out all about it soon. Let's finish dinned and then wait on his honor the mayor."

But the Bradys did not have to wait on the mayor. He was waiting for them on the hotel piazza. He proved to be a little man with a pleasant face and a businesslike air.

"Mr. Brady, I presume?" he said, extending his hand. "My name is Scrapps. I am mayor of this hyar town."

"Glad to see you," replied the detective, shaking hands and introducing Harry.

"Waal, now about this hyar matter of our marshal. You have come prepared to take hold?"

"Certainly, and we would like to go over the whole case right now."

Mr. Scrapps was inclined to be long-winded, but the Bradys listened to him patiently. He explained that previous to Jim Mundy taking the office of marshal the town had been almost unsafe to live in on account of the incessant fights between warring cowboys and the "Butts gang." This gang was a sort of secret order among the cowboys of the different ranches. During their raids the men always went masked and their leader was a perfect giant of a fellow who went by the name of "Chris Butts."

Again and again the sheriff had tried to locate the gang, but had never succeeded. The mayor wound up his story by saying that since Jim Mundy had been marshal nothing had been seen of the gang of Spanish Licks. There was a secret matter in connection with this affair which he had not touched upon.

Old King Brady called his attention to this one point, feeling that it would probably take the mayor all day to reach it. "And now, your honor, about the secret. It must be an important affair."

"It is, sir," said the mayor, "but that is Dr. Doniphan's business. He went out of town last night on a call to a ranch twenty miles east of hyar, but he'll be coming back soon."

"I see. Now, tell me how the marshal disappeared."

"There isn't much to tell. One day two or three weeks ago he suddenly walked out of Portman's store, went to the barn, saddled his horse and went galloping out of town. He hasn't been seen since," the mayor hesitated. "He just stopped long enough to take another look at the dead man."

"The dead man! What about him?" demanded Old King Brady.

"Ah! that is part of the doctor's secret."

"Come," said the detective. "Everything bearing on this matter of Marshal Mundy seems to be involved in secrecy." Fixing his eye upon the mayor, he said, "These cowboys claim that he was caught in the attraction of the deadmen of Deadman's Island. They saw him riding with the ghosts—is it not so?"

The mayor gave a chuckling laugh as Old King Brady said this. "Of course it's so; but that's all poppycock," he said sneeringly. "I suppose Frank Clegg has been a-pumping you full of that sort of trash."

"A miss," thought the old detective. He turned the subject deftly, and began to talk of other things. While they were still conversing a boy came hurrying up the hotel steps and announced to the mayor that the doctor had returned and would like to see him and the Bradys as soon as convenient.

The Doctor's Secret.

The Bradys found Dr. Doniphan an intelligent young man. As soon as the introductions were finished the mayor withdrew. "I'll leave you to tell your own story, doctor," he said.

"Be seated, gentlemen," said the doctor. "I'll make short work of this. About a month ago a man registered at the Prairie House under the name of Henry Ransom. He looked like a miner. He had plenty of money, and for the first few days kept to his room. But he bought a horse from Mr. Scrapps and then began taking long rides out into the country. Mundy often joined him on these rides. One night he returned late in a state of collapse; some one had shot him over the heart. He was mortally wounded and when I told him so, he took it very well, and then he told me the secret which is the real cause of my sending for you gentlemen." He then told them of the legend Frank Clegg had already related, adding "Ransom got the story from a brother who had been one of that unfortunate company and who told him of treasure they had buried; Ransom believed he knew where it was located. He gave me a diagram of the place, and executed a will leaving myself and Portman his executors and Mayor Scrapps custodian of the gold for the benefit of the town. He believed this to be something over $200,000. He died, and the next day Mundy disappeared. Ransom was shot by what he believed were the ghosts of the massacred men."

"He did not locate the treasure?"

"No; a great flood several years ago changed conditions on the island. But I have faith that it can be located by a man of your experience, Mr. Brady," replied the doctor. "It's a queer affair. What do you make of it?"

"Marshal Mundy is alive, of course. He is either in with this gang, which you will probably find identical with the Chris Butts gang, or he is a prisoner in their hands," said Old King Brady. "I believe that young Halsted expected to meet those fellows and is now on Deadman's Island in all probability. Our work lies there."

After a little further conversation, they agreed to meet at four o'clock the next morning and start for the island, the doctor to act as guide. The Bradys then left.

Another chapter of this enthralling serial is in tomorrow's paper—don't miss it.

Curb Review

New York, June 3 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Curb Market made irregular recovery today under the influence of a sharp bulge in wheat prices, settlement of the troublesome reparations problem and favorable trade and earnings reports. While the advance was by no means general, it embraced a wide variety of shares, with the oils and public utilities in the forefront of the advance.

Trading continued rather moderate in volume, due to the disinclination of traders to extend commitments on the prospect of wide fluctuations in call money rates this month. Call money advanced from 6 to 7 per cent today, the first change since May 22, but time money rates were easier, the lower maturities being quoted as much as one-fourth of 1 per cent lower than last week's figures.

Buying of the public utilities was rather selective in character. American Superpower issues, Arizona Power, Central States Electric and Southeastern Power moving into new high ground for the year. A few of the recent favorites, such as Electric Bond & Share, Electric Investors, Northeastern Power and United Gas Improvement lost ground on realizing. Rumors of mergers and new electrification projects, coupled with reports of expanding sales and earnings, provided the chief background for the advance in these issues.

Prospects of favorable developments at the Colorado Springs conservation conference, and predictions of further gasoline and crude oil price advances stimulated the buying of the oil shares. Gulf of Pennsylvania jumped 5½ points, Vacuum 3¾, Humble 3⅝ and Lion, Standard Oils of Indiana and Kansas, Imperial and International were among the many issues to advance a point or more.

Durant Motors rallied 2¼ points on William C. Durant's denial of Wall street rumors that he had been forced to liquidate many of his stock holdings. Paramount and Checker Cabs closed with net gains, but Packard (new) yielded fractionally, despite the publication of a report showing a large increase in May shipments.

Aviation shares were mixed, with a 3-point drop in Aviation Corporation of America and a gain of slightly more than a point in Fokker as the only important changes. Fokker reported earnings of 23 cents a share in the first quarter.

American Department Stores dropped 6½ points to a new low at 85. Bahia Corporation, Celanese Participating preferred, American Solvents & Chemical prior preferred, Cooper Bessemer and Forhan A were among the score or so issues to sink into new low ground for the year.

BANK BORROWINGS DISPLAY INCREASE

Declines in Net Demand and Time Deposits Announced by Reserve Board.

BOND TRADING EXPANDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

An advance of $66,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks, declines of $19,000,000 in net demand deposits, $24,000,000 in time deposits and a small decrease in total loans and investments were revealed in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 101 leading cities made public yesterday.

Loans on securities receded $42,000,000 at all reporting banks, $39,000,000 in the New York district and $11,000,000 in the San Francisco district and increased $11,000,000 in the Chicago district and $9,000,000 in that of Minneapolis. "All other" loans increased $57,000,000 at all reporting banks and $48,000,000 at banks in the New York district.

Holdings of United States Government securities declined $22,000,000 in the St. Louis district, $20,000,000 in the New York district, and $54,000,000 at all reporting banks, while holdings of other securities increased $35,000,000 at all reporting banks and $40,000,000 in the district of St. Louis.

Net demand deposits which at all reporting banks were $19,000,000 lower than the May 22 total, increased $58,000,000 in the New York district and decreased $37,000,000 in the Chicago district, $15,000,000 in the Cleveland, and $11,000,000 in the Boston district. Principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks for the week were increases of $49,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, $16,000,000 at Philadelphia, and $6,000,000 at Kansas City.

Market Stockholders Meet.

Stockholders of the Northern Market Co. of Washington City held their annual meeting yesterday for the election of trustees at the company's office, Seventh and O streets northwest, and passed a resolution to borrow $18,000 for construction of an extension at the north end of the existing market house facing Seventh.

Following trustees were reelected: W. W. Millan, Edward W. Donn, Charles Morgan, Floyd E. Davis, R. E. L. Smith, A. F. Harlan, J. Enos R'y, jr., and Frederick L. Vogt. Trustees will meet today for the election of the ninth member of the board.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Georgetown Gas Light Co., also held yesterday showed the company in healthy financial condition, it was announced by Secretary Frederick K. Heupel following the meeting.

Charles C. Glover, jr., Robert D. Weaver, Ord Preston, William King were reelected directors; James M. Green was elected to succeed Joesph Leiter, Wilton J. Lambert to succeed James S. McIlhenny and George B. Fraser to succeed A. Gray Dawson.

Mr. Lambert, well-known Washington attorney, is a director in the Washington Gas Light Co., and for many years, while the late John R. McLean was its president, was the company's general counsel.

Mr. Fraser is a native of Washington. His great grandfather, James Fraser, came to Washington from Scotland in 1817 and the family has lived here ever since. He is a member of the bar and well known in local financial circles, being financial secretary to Edward B. McLean, president and publisher of The Washington Post. He formerly was vice president and trust officer of the Munsey Trust Co.

Mr. Green is a director in the Washington Gas Light Co. and a director in the American Security & Trust Co.

Will Attend Tulsa Convention.

Fifteen members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will board a special train here for New York City Friday as delegates to the national convention of the institute at Tulsa, Okla., June 10-14. They will stop en route for eight hours at Hot Springs, Va., Saturday for a dinner and dance and at Charlottesville, Va., long enough to visit Monticello and the University of Virginia by auto.

A. E. Henze, W. R. Hibbs & Co., newly elected president of the chapter, and T. Hunton Leith, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, a past president and candidate for membership on the national executive council, will leave tomorrow, and Past President James A. Soper, Lincoln National Bank, will head the following delegation leaving Friday:

H. W. Burnside, Farmers & Mechanics' branch of Riggs National Bank; John De Marco, Seventh Street Savings Bank; J. Fred English, Commercial National Bank; Gerald Keene, Second National Bank; Raymond Lewis and Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co.; Richard Norris, Lincoln National Bank; Miss Rose L. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Robert A. Sisson, Washington Savings Bank; Robert G. Whitton, First National Bank of Alexandria; William Winstead, National Metropolitan Bank, and I. J. Roberts, Riggs National Bank.

Bond Trading Expands.

After a holiday rest of four days the Washington Stock Exchange was found still recuperative, aggregate bond sales of $13,300 representing an advance of $2,700 from last Wednesday's, and the stock sales total of 455 shares also marking a gain of 141 over last week's close.

Heaviest bond selling was in Washington Railway & Electric 4s, a $5,000 lot of these going at 86½, fractional recession. Three thousand dollars worth of C. & P. Telephone 5s sold at 99½, fractional decline, and $2,500 of Capital Traction 5s moved in three lots, $500 at 97½, last sale price, and two of $1,000 each at fractional gains.

National Mortgage & Investment preferred and Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty preferred again led in trading volume, 100 shares of each changing hands at 4⅞, fractional decrease, and 7½, last quotation, respectively. Sale of 37 shares of Lanston Monotype at 130, point and a half gain, were recorded and 20 more were exchanged at a point rise after call. Fifty-one shares of Washington Railway & Electric preferred at 95½, fractional recession, and 53 of Mergenthaler Linotype at 106½, last sale figure, at fractional rises, were other sales.

United Investment Assurance System announces today the sale of 50,000 units of United Investment Assurance Trust, a Massachusetts trust, at $77.50 and accrued dividend per unit consisting of two shares 6 per cent preferred and one share of common capital with rights.

Increase in Surplus Freight Cars.

Class 1 railroads on May 23 had 216,313 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday. This was an increase of 6,113 cars compared with May 15, at which time there were 210,200 cars.

Surplus coal cars on May 23 totaled 65,782, an increase of 946 cars within approximately a week, while surplus box cars totaled 105,456, an increase of 5,043 for the same period. Reports also showed 25,477 surplus stock cars, an increase of 363 cars over the number reported on May 15, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 13,387, an increase of 656 for the same period.

Shares to Be Offered.

Shares of S. W. Straus & Co., incorporated in Delaware, for years regarded as the foremost factor in the world in the real estate bond field and now engaged on a major scale in all phases of investment banking as well, will for the first time be made available to the public.

This became known yesterday when it was learned that Colvin & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, had purchased from A. W. Straus, of Chicago, formerly a vice president of S. W. Straus & Co., but now retired from active participation in the company's affairs, a block of 40,000 shares which they plan to offer publicly. This in no way involves any new financing for the corporation.

S. W. Straus & Co. have been identified, through financial operations, with more than $2,000,000,000 of building construction during the last half century. Hundreds of skyscrapers from coast to coast have been financed by the firm.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 3.—Domestic production of Ford automobiles during April was 161,796 units, while the combined output of the domestic plants, Ford of Canada and the foreign plants totaled 190,388 cars and trucks. The aggregate world production of model A cars and AA trucks to date totals 1,750,644. Of this number nearly 1,500,000 were manufactured in this country.

More than 2,000,000 pounds of copper were purchased here Saturday and today for consumption in Europe, leading to the opinion in trade circles that European buying may begin to develop in good volume during the next week or so.

Stockholders of the American Railway Express Co. have approved an increase in the authorized stock from 400,000 shares to 1,500,000 shares and to change the name to the Railway & Express Co., subject to approval of the stockholders. The directors had voted to split the stock on a three-for-one basis. Adams Express Co. now owns 75 per cent of the American Railway Express Co. stock.

Shell Union Oil Corporation, is establishing a system of distributing stations in Utah, supplementing its present chain in Idaho, Montana, Nevada, California, and the Pacific Northwest. The Shell Co. has arranged with the Rich Gas & Oil Co., of Salt Lake City and the Banner Oil Co., of Ogden, to market Shell products.

Stockholders of the Massachusetts Gas Co. have authorized the issuance of 166,667 additional common shares which will be offered to common stock holders at $100 a share in the ratio of two new shares for every three shares now held.

Arrangements have been made for the importation of an additional $1,000,000 in gold from Argentina, making a total of $3,000,000 in gold scheduled to be shipped from Buenos Aires June 8 to New York.

Negotiations are near completion, it was learned today, whereby Air Investors, Inc., will acquire control and assume executive management of a new investment corporation, which probably will be known as the United Aviation Co and which, in turn, will purchase part or all of the assets of the United Aviation Corporation the last named organization, a holding company, at present controls the Scenic Airways, Inc., of Texas; Interstate Airlines, Inc., of Wyoming; Gray Goose Air Lines, Inc., and the North Shore Airport Corporation, both of Chicago.

The Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America in the first quarterly earnings statement to be given out by the company reported earnings of $139,984, equivalent to 23 cents a common share for the three months ended March 31. In the listing application filed with the new curb market a net loss of $46,388 for the first six months of last year, was shown by the company. Unfilled orders totaling $2,983,374 were reported on the books, with negotiations practically completed for $3,000,000 in additional orders. General Motors recently acquired a 40 per cent stock interest in the company.

Trading on the New York Produce Exchange's securities department established a new record, with 128,892 shares changing hands. This compares with the previous record of 109,164 shares established on April 23.

Pierce-Arrow Motor Car sales in May totaled 1,563 cars as compared with 755 for May, 1928, an increase of 107 per cent. Unfilled orders carried forward into June were for 2,103 cars.

Tin deliveries in the United States in May reached an all-time record for that month of 8,480 tons.

A. G. Rumpf, former president of the Motor Dealers Credit Corporation, has been elected secretary and treasurer of Studebaker Corporation.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 3 (A.P.).—Reports that $100,000,000 Federal Government money is about to be directed immediately toward the purchase of surplus wheat sent grain values flying skyward today. Almost in the wink of an eye, amid tumultuous bidding, wheat gained nearly 9c a bushel in value, and although subsequently fluctuating at a rapid rate, held about two-thirds of the advance. Rye, corn and oats scored extreme jumps varying from 3½ to 6c a bushel.

In a nervous finish, wheat closed at 5⅜ to 6¼c above Saturday's final figures. Corn closed 3½ to 4¾c up, oats 1⅜ to 1¾c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Highest prices of the day in all the grain pits was reached right at the opening of business or shortly thereafter. It quickly became apparent that a run-away market was in progress. A famine of offers to sell went hand in hand with intense hunger to buy. Excited brokers with orders to purchase were in many cases frantically trying to get quick ownership at as much as 5c a bushel above the price at which the grain could be obtained for only a few feet away if the confusion prevailing would have permitted.

Even after nearly an hour of wildly swinging prices, the market was still switching violently, changes of 1 cent a bushel inside of a few seconds being of frequent occurence. No such similar experience was recalled by veteran traders except during the World War and on other occasions when the market had suddenly been confronted by unlooked-for developments.

Most traders had been expecting a decided advance in wheat values today, but relatively few persons were prepared for the extraordinary momentum of the buying rush today that forced the market into an almost perpendicular climb. All factors other than news from Washington received scant attention. Meanwhile, about the only sellers were traders who were willing to let go of holdings which had been acquired earlier at a lower level and which showed a handsome profit.

Unofficial monthly crop estimates issued today contained various features which ordinarily would tend to bring about lower prices, but on the whole the estimates so far as they received notice were construed as helpful to an advance. The principal stimulating aspect was that the average of the estimates although pointing to a likelihood of 53,000,000 bushels larger domestic winter wheat crop than a year ago was more than counterbalanced by a prospect of 72,000,000 bushels decrease in United States spring wheat yield. Further unwelcome rains in the harvest region Southwest counted also on the side of higher prices.

In some quarters, today's advance of the wheat market was said to have put domestic wheat out of line for export abroad. Such considerations, however, were virtually disregarded in view of Washington advices which were current, and so too was ignored the fact that the Liverpool wheat market today closed at only an ordinary upturn of 1 to 2 pence per bushel.

Corn, oats and rye received their advances today from the same influences that governed wheat. A huge amount of buying of corn as well as of other grain came from recent speculative sellers. Visible supplies of corn showed 2,337,000 bushels decrease for the week.

Provisions inclined upward, reflecting the course both of grain values and of hogs.

VIRGINIA GIRL WINS CATHEDRAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP FLAG

Alice Moore, of Richmond, Makes Highest Record of Past Year.

TWO PRIZES AWARDED TO MISS POLLY BLACK

Honor Roll Students' Names Announced; Graduation Exercises Today.

Miss Alice Moore, of Richmond, Va., was awarded the school flag at the flag day exercises of the National Cathedral School for Girls at Mount St. Alban yesterday afternoon because she had made the higest record in scholarship in the past year.

Miss Moore was given the flag by the Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, Canon of Washington Cathedral, who made the presentation address. A new flag was then raised with appropriate ceremonies. At next commencement that flag will be given to the student standing highest in scholarship.

The invocation was offered by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Mrs. Marvin B. Rosenberry, acting principal of the National Cathedral School for Girls, then announced that Miss Polly Black had won the honor of being the bishop's scholar by being on the honor roll for five consecutive years, for which she was also awarded a life membership in the Alumnae Association of the school. The Thomas Hyde prize for excellence in English went to Elizabeth Chase Aery, and Virginia Dickerson, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., won the College Club prize, established in memory of Miss Jessie McDonald, former principal of the National Cathedral School for Girls.

The honor roll for the year was announced by Miss Morgan, head of the academic department. In the upper school the students who were placed on the honor roll were: Seniors, Alice Moore, Polly Black, Agatha Varela, Frances Merz, Petrina Wood, Helen Clarke, Helen Polley; members of other classes: Elizabeth Bryan, Florence Bryan, Mary Bryan, Margaret Birdsall, Langhorne Watts, Convere McEden, Virginia Dickerson, Constance Warner, Betty Cocke, Virginia Butler, Charlotte Reed, Marion Alter, Margaret Brown, Elizabeth Ware, Dorothy McMullen, Sarah Pearsall, Nancy Van Buren, Jane Duenner, Patsy Douglas, Louise Hoehling and Susan Johnson (half year). In the lower school those on the honor roll included Caroline Barkalow, Eugenia Bachschmid and Sybil Kaufman.

The graduating exercises of the school will take place this morning in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral. The address will be made by the Rev. Dr. C Freeland Peter, canon of Washington. The class has 27 members in it representing many States of the Union.

RETIRING ST. ALBAN'S LEADER IS HONORED

Alumni, Faculty and Students Utilize Prize Day for Gifts to W. H. Church.

SPEAKING CONTEST HELD

William H. Church, retiring headmaster of St. Alban's, the National Cathedral School for Boys, was given a substantial check and a mahogany humidor as a testimonial of affection from the alumni, faculty and students of the school at its prize-day exercises yesterday.

Mr. Church resigned recently after fourteen years' service. He will be succeeded next fall by the Rev. Albert H. Lucas, of Philadelphia.

A public speaking contest was one of the features of yesterday's exercises, which were held in the Lane Johnston Building. Cecil Beasley won first prize on his oration, "A Significant Hour in American History." The second prize was given to Raymond Dennett. Among the other students who participated in the prize speaking contest were Willett Denit, James Elliott, Adolph Hoehling, jr., and Parker Jones.

After the public speaking contest, the award of prizes for the year was announced as follows: Boys standing first in the several forms, choir form, William H. Clark, jr.; form B, Charles C. Glover 3d; form A, Charles Baker, jr.; form 1, John Gilbert Nettleton, jr.; form 2, Francis Preston Blair Lee, jr.; form 3B, Howard M. Davis; form 3A, John M. Gulick; form 4, Alexander H. Van Keuren; form 5, William L. Williams; form 6, William G. Galliher.

Other prizes were: The Charles C. Glover mathematics medal, and the Charles C. Glover English medal. Both were captured by John H. Hazard. The Satterlee medal, given yearly to the boy with the highest general average in the upper school, went to Alexander H. Van Keuren. In the lower school the highest general average rank was attained by Charles C. Glover 3d.

The Thomas Hyde medal for the best all-around boy in school also went to John H. Hazard. The Sisters of the Epiphany prize for courtesy and kindness went to Raymond H. Carter. A Jerusalem cross in gold was given to the senior prefect, William H. Clifford, jr., and the chimes ringer, John Keane, also was given a prize.

The Robert Bryce Cup for the best athlete was won by William G. Galliher.

Cornerstone to Be Laid With Washington Tools

Two Washington relics will be used next Monday when the cornerstone of the new Department of Commerce building is laid by President Hoover. These are the Washington trowel and the Washington gavel.

Permission to use the Washington gavel at the exercises was granted last night by Potomac Lodge No. 5, Free and Accepted Masons. Action was taken on a request of Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

Alexandria-Washington Lodge No. 22, F. & A. M., owner of the trowel, granted permission for the use of that instrument at a recent meeting.

Capital Girl Wins French Study Trip

Secretary Wilbur Speaks at Goucher College Exercises.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 3.—Announcement was made at the graduation exercises of Goucher College today that Miss Margaret Dorothy Rupli, of the class of 1931, has received from the Institute of International Education one year's study in France. Miss Rupli, who lives at 2534 Hall Place, Washington, will spend the summer studying at Nancy, France, and in the fall will go to the University of Sorbonne, Paris. This will constitute her junior year. She will be associated with the University of Delaware foreign study group.

Of the 213 girls, who received diplomas of graduation at the exercises held in the Lyric theater, six reside in Washington. They are the Misses Frances Levis Alexander, Katharine Stickney Bliss, Anna Ferris Kimball, Helen Rowell Newcombe, Louise Arvilla Spiro, and Laura Stockton Voorhees. Maryland graduates included, the Misses June Burton Thomas, of Takoma Park; Helen Moore Cook, of Lanham, Prince Georges County, and Ruth Lee Hearn, of Laurel.

The graduates were addressed by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior and president of Leland Stanford Junior University, on leave of absence.

St. Cecilia Graduating Class Holds Exercises

Members of the graduating class of St. Cecilia's held their class day exercises at the academy at 8 o'clock last night. The program consisted of an address by the Rev. J. W. Buckley, the reading of essays and vocal and instrumental music.

The class play is to be given at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. The grammar grade closing is to be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and commencement exercises are to be at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Capital Youth Awarded Medal at Swarthmore

Thomas M. Brown, of 1622 Twenty-ninth street northwest, a member of the graduating class at Swarthmore College, was awarded the Ivy medal at the commencement exercises yesterday. The medal was awarded for the highest degree of leadership based on character and scolarship.

Brown was graduated with high honors. He was president of men's student government and president of his class. He prepared for college at the Washington Friends School.

Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, of the United States Army, will relieve Capt. M. H. Parsons as superintendent of the United States park police here on June 8.

Capt. Parsons will go on leave at that time until late in the summer, when he will become a student at the artillery school at Fort Monroe, Va. Capt. Montgomery is now stationed at Fort Humphreys, Va.

Trade Board Groups To Study City Traffic

A subcommittee of the committee on streets and avenues, and another subcommittee, of the traffic committee, both of the Board of Trade, are to travel over Washington Thursday and make a survey of streets and traffic with the object of recommending improvements in both, it was announced at the Board of Trade yesterday.

Several District of Columbia officials have been invited by the board to go on the tour.

Auto Hurts Girl on Bicycle.

Atalina Cecchini, 14 years old, 52 H street northeast, was injured last night when her bicycle, which she was riding, was struck by an automobile, said by police to have been operated by Paul T. Howard, 912 Shepherd street northwest, on G street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations to her scalp and brush burns to both arms.

ARRESTS IN CAPITAL FOR MONTH OF MAY REACH 10,706 TOTAL

293 Charged With Various Felonies, Major Pratt's Report Reveals.

NEW SYSTEM IS URGED IN COMPILING FIGURES

6,181 Traffic Law Violators and 244 on Dry Law Are Listed.

There were 10,706 persons arrested in the District during the month of May, according to statistics made public yesterday by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Of these 293 were charged with various felonies, 224 were charged with violations of the Volstead law and 6,181 were arrested for violations of the traffic laws. The other 3,066 were arrested for various misdemeanors.

Many of those arrested during May were charged with more than one violation of one or another law, the number of charges of law violations made against residents during May amounting to 12,049, or 1,343 more than the number of persons arrested.

Edwards Compiles Figures.

The statistics were compiled by Lieut. L. I. H. Edwards, in charge of police records at headquarters, and represented a departure from the old system of compiling statistics, under which merely the number of law violations shown in police blotters were counted and not the number of persons arrested.

The 244 persons arrested for violation of the Volstead law were charged with 427 violations, including conspiracy, possession, selling, transportation, manufacturing, maintaining a nuisance and destroying evidence.

1,444 on Sheppard Law.

But these were not the only ones who fell afoul of the drinking laws, for 1,144 charges of violating the Sheppard law were placed against citizens during May. Intoxication was charged in 1,128 cases, driving a vehicle while drunk in two cases and drinking in public was charged in 14 cases. Twenty-three other charges of driving while drunk were prosecuted under the traffic laws.

Traffic arrests were made for hit and run, 31; reckless driving, 146; speeding, 686; dazzling lights, 9; 6,074 other violations of various sections of the law.

Schenck In Solitary Cell to Stop Suicide

Until Frederick A. Schenck, former Washington policeman, under a sentence of 20 years imprisonment for two holdups, recovers from what jail authorities term his "suicide complex," he will be kept in solitary confinement and under a special guard, it was learned last night at the District Jail.

Schenck, it became known yesterday, attempted suicide for the second time since he has been in jail last Saturday by ramming his head against the wall of his cell. On the day prior to this he had attempted to hang himself. His apparent determination to end his life was frustrated on both occasions.

White House Employe Struck Down by Auto

Edward W. Smithers, 59 years old, 1359 Euclid street northwest, veteran White House telegrapher, was injured yesterday on his way to the White House when he was knocked down by an automobile at Pennsylvania avenue and Jackson place northwest.

The automobile, according to police, was operated by Miss Sallie Bryant, who is believed to live at 923 Seventeenth street northeast. Police of the Ninth Precinct were unable to locate her at that address last night. Smithers was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated there by Dr. C. B. White for lacerations to both legs. He later returned home.

Man in Raid Net Soon Rearrested

Arraignment in Rum Case Foiled by Lodgment in Cell for Inquiry.

Trouble caught up with Isaac Deyeu, of 1527 Fourteenth street northwest, on Saturday night and was side-by-side with him yesterday.

Led by Capt. O. T. Davis, a squadron of Second Precinct police invaded the Fourteenth street address. The place, police said, was equipped with buzzer alarms, which signaled arrival of the raiders in two rooms. The police, however, succeeded in seizing a pint of alleged liquor and arresting Deyeu and three other men.

At Police Court yesterday, when the four were called for arraignment before Judge John P. McMahon, Deyeu was missing. Inquiry developed that he was lodged in a cell at the Ninth Precinct on a charge of investigation. His three companions—Samuel Goldstein, Sol Munitz and Joseph Caruso—were held in bail of $1,500 each for jury trials on charges of possession and maintaining a nuisance. Deyeu's arraignment was postponed until today.

AMERICAN U. GIVES DIPLOMAS, AWARDS TO 58 GRADUATES

Dr. Walter Splaun Speaks on Development in Higher Education.

ROLAND M'LAREN RICE WINS COVETED PRIZES

Trustees Approve Move for Fraternity and Sorority Recognition.

Fifty-eight graduates of American University received their diplomas at commencement exercises held last night at the gymnasium auditorium on the campus.

Dr. Walter M. W. Splawn, dean of the School of Political Sciences and of the Graduate School, in the address traced the "Development of Higher Education in the United States." He showed how colleges had started in America under English influence and tradition and gradually had picked up features of higher education in France and Germany.

The surprise announcement of awards for the year proved to be the clean sweep which was made by Roland McLaren Rice, of Glen Burnie, Md., president of the senior class, who captured both coveted year-end prizes. In addition, a more distinctive honor was bestowed upon him when it was announced by Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, that Rice had been elected a memberat-large of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary forensic fraternity. Rice's selection, Dr. Woods pointed out, reflected credit both to himself and to the university, particularly because of the fact that only three or four members-at-large are elected each year by the fraternity from the whole United States.

Beat Princeton Twice.

Rice received the forensic honor because of his work for four years in debates, during which he engaged in twenty intercollegiate debates. This past season he was a member of the team which defeated Princeton University twice. Rice had a career of leadership in the college, was awarded class honors for six consecutive semesters, and at commencement last night was awarded both the faculty prize for scholarship and the liberal arts prize for "the largest contribution to the college," in scholarship, student character and general leadership.

Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of the university, presided and awarded the diplomas. Music was by the college orchestra, under leadership of Dr. C. Henry Leineweber, and the college quartet, consisting of Leon K. Bryner, Barrett Fuchs, Ronald McLaughlin and J. Harold Riggle. The opening prayer was offered by Dr. J. A. Rinkel, of Mankato, Minn., whose daughter, Ruth Rinkel, was a graduate, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Frank W. Rohrer, of St. Mary's Pa., father of two graduates, Helen and Sarah Rohrer.

Urge Fraternity Recognition.

Candidates for the degree of bachelor of science in commerce and bachelor of political science, were presented by Dr. Knute E. Carlson; candidates for the degree of bachelor of arts were presented by Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the college of liberal arts; candidates for the masters' degree were presented by Dr. Charles C. Tansill, and candidates for doctor of philosophy were presented by Dr. Frank Collier.

The board of trustees of American University, meeting yesterday at the Battelle Memorial on the campus, approved "in principle" the recommendation of the faculty that fraternities and sororities be recognized among the student body. The matter was referred to the board's executive committee. The Women's Guild of the university also held a business session yesterday and joined the trustees at the annual luncheon at the college dining hall.

Announcement was made at commencement that the Swift Fellowship was awarded to Theodore A. Loonpert, to study at the University of Berlin; that the Massey Foundation had been awarded to A. F. Wylie Plumptree to study economics at Cambridge University, England, and that Morley John Campbell Lazier had won a scholarship to study physics and mathematics at Cambridge University.

List of Graduates.

The list of graduates are as follows:

Bachelor of political science—Ralph Philip Dunn, Blanche Harriet Enterline, Hartwell Harrison Williamson.

Bachelor of science in commerce—Daniel Francis Callahan, Francis Thomas Eagan, Minor Ellis Scott, Mary May Willis.

Bachelor of arts—Rowanetta Sarah Allen, Florence Vaude Andrews, Robert Bergmann, Samuel Clark Bilbrough, Donald Stuart Bittinger, Dorothy Wallace Buchan, Frances Lucile Clarke, Lynn Hough Corson, Mary Angela Deffinbaugh, W. Willis Delaplain, Elsie Margaret DeMooy, Irene Mae Dezendorf, Claribel Ruth Eaton, Harriett Eaton, Dora Mae Feldman, E. Nyce Feldmeyer, Florence Elizabeth Fellows, Annelouise Flaig, James Goodman, Seeley Nash Gray, Ida Belle Hopkins, Marjorie Alice Johns, Martha Elizabeth Joyce, Bruce Richard Kessler, Dorothy Eloise Linkins, Nancy Jane Lucas, Dorothy Louise Moore, Ethel Louise Moulton, Merlin Nipe, Roland Etz Parrish, Roland McLaren Rice, Ruth Lee Rinkel, Helen Elizabeth Roher, Sarah Roher, Jacob Herman Snyder, Mary Jane Stewart, James Polk Sullivan, Louise Margaret Turbett and Louise Mackall Young.

Master of political science—Philman Song.

Master of arts—Maxino Fonbuena Abasolo, John Wilbur Boatwright, Florence Melissa Jayne, Charles Jacob McDowell, William Raymond Ogg and John Henry Smith.

Ph. D. Degrees.

Doctor of philosophy—William Rabon Howell, Ward W. Keesecker, Joseph Clement Sinclair, Reginald Van Trump Truitt and William Claude Waltemyer.

Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the college of liberal arts, announced the following graduation honors and class honors:

Cum laude, Elsie DeMooy, Roland Parrish, Sarah Roher, Mary Jane Stewart; magna cum laude, Jane Lucas, Helen Roher, Roland Rice; summa cum laude, Rowennetta Allen.

Class honors, second semester—(Freshmen), Audrey Belt, Norman Fabian, W. Yule Fisher, Gwendolyn Folsom, Margaret Hardy, Dale Haworth, Alton Keller and Lulu May Lybrook; (sophomores), Dorothea Belz, Ethelwyn Hine, Hyman Lewis and Mary Putnam; (juniors), Laura Barrett, Rosalie Dimmette, Elizabeth Hill, Edwin Kelbaugh, Winston Manning and Ronald McLaughlin; (seniors), Rowenetta Allen, Elsie DeMooy, Jane Lucas, Roland Rice, Helen Roher and Mary Jane Stewart.

Siesta on Courthouse Steps Winds Up in Jail

Prompted by curiosity about how things were going at Police Court, Charles H. Creekmore made his way to the courthouse at Sixth and D streets northwest last Saturday evening, only to find the place locked.

Policeman T. D. Bacon, of the Sixth Precinct, found him asleep on the courthouse steps and took him to the Sixth Precinct, where a charge of intoxication was registered against him. Creekmore's curiosity was satisfied yesterday and, in addition, Judge Gus A. Schuldt gave him an opportunity to find out how things were proceeding in the District Jail for a period of 10 days.

ROLAND M. RICE.

CITIZENS CRITICIZE SLOW STREET CARS

Manor Park Association to Seek Relief From Public Utility Commission.

DOUBLE TRACK SOUGHT

Characterizing the street cars of Washington "as slow as the proverbial snail," the Manor Park Citizens Association instructed the committee on public utilities to wait upon the Public Utilities Commission and take up three major phases of street car transportation with a view of getting some relief, at its meeting in the Whittier Primary School last night.

The three principal points recommended were that street cars be speeded up, particularly those going downtown; that a five-minute schedule be instituted, and that the system be double-tracked.

The association reaffirmed its endorsement of five years standing for the establishment of a junior college in the District of Columbia. It also voted against the proposed consolidation of the Trafic Bureau with the Police Department and tabled a resolution "to express our disapproval of locating police and fire engine houses in residential sections."

The association unanimously endorsed the candidacy of L. J. Cantrell for principal of the A. E. Paul Junior High School. Mr. Cantrell is at present principal of the Brightwood Junior High School. The Paul School is to open in February(it was said.

Man Hit by Motorcycle; Leg Broken, Scalp Is Cut

John W. Roberston, 30 years old, living at Fifth street and Marietta place northwest, was injured yesterday afternoon when struck by a motorcycle while walking in the roadway under the H street northeast viaduct, according to police.

He was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated there by Dr. J. E. McLane for a compound fracture of his left leg and lacerations on his scalp. James B. Larkins, 1423 P street northwest, said by police to have been operating the motorcycle, offered to surrender to police of the Sixth Precinct, police said. He was not arrested.

CHIROPRACTIC GETS JOLT IN DEFINITION OF DISTRICT BOARD

Rule Limits the Practice to Spinal Adjustments and Massages.

PROTESTS EXPECTED FROM CHIROPRACTORS

Move Is First in Formation of License Machinery for Healing Arts.

Sharp limitation of the scope of chiropractic was placed in effect yesterday by the new commission on licensure of the healing arts.

The limitation was expressed in the definition of chiropractic adopted by the commission. It is as follows:

"Chiropractic is defined as the system of palpating, analyzing, and adjusting the articulation of the human spinal column by hand."

The definition adopted by the District commission is much the same as that embodied in the law of Tennessee, and is much more limited than have been the definitions incorporated in laws of other States at various times.

Protests Are Expected.

The commission's action is expected to bring forth protests from chiropractors, although how large or determined that opposition will be is not known. The commission, it was said, was unanimous in its approval of the definition.

The definition will not prohibit chiropractors from massaging other parts of the human body, because massage treatments are specifically exempted from the provisions of the new healing arts licensing law, but it will confine their activities to this and to spinal adjustment by hand.

The chiropractic definition is the first commission will fix in its development of machinery for the licensing of the practitioners of the various branches of the healing arts.

Examining Board Named.

The chiropractic examining board also was named by the commission as follows: Dr. H. D. Norton, for a three-year term; Dr. Hubert N. Roberts, for two years, and Dr. Marguerite C. Dunnigan, for one year.

This board will conduct the examinations of applicants for licenses to practice chiropractic in the District. It is the third board the commission has named, the first one being the board on general sciences and the second the examining board for medicine and osteopathy.

Another board, dealing with naturopathy, must also be named and the commission may create such others as it deems necessary. The commission also must define naturopathy.

Central Principal Will Be Selected

Group of Education Board to Choose Successor to Miller Today.

Three assistant principals, two men and a woman, are spoken of most favorably among those who will be considered for the principalship of Central High School. The vacancy was caused by the death of Alvin W. Miller, who died last month. The personnel committee of the Board of Education will meet today to consider candidates and is to recommend its finding to the board on Wednesday.

According to gossip, the three who have been most favorably commented upon for the vacancy are L. G. Hoover, assistant principal at Central; Norman J. Nelson, former assistant principal at Central, but now on leave to pursue a fellowship at Harvard University, and Miss M. P. Bradshaw, assistant principal of Business High School. There are a number of other possible candidates.

The assistant principalship at Webster High School and the appointment of a statistician are also to come before the personnel committee.

Policeman Injured In Crash Is Better

Mounted Man Hurt When Auto Hit Horse; Driver Faces Charge.

Policeman William R. Sheets, attached to the Thirteenth Precinct, who was injured Sunday night when the horse which he was riding was struck and killed by an automobile on Riggs road northwest, near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Bridge, yesterday showed marked improvement in his condition, attaches at Walter Reed Hospital, where he was taken following the accident, said last night.

Sheets suffered a dislocated right shoulder, severe head lacerations, and lacerations and bruises to his hips. A thorough examination revealed yesterday no internal injuries, which physicians at first believed he had received in the crash.

Stewart Kinsman Hill, 26 years old, 3509 Fourteenth street northwest, said by police to have been operating the dealers' automobile which struck the horse and Sheets, who was arrested at Emergency Hospital Sunday night, yesterday was charged with reckless driving at the Thirteenth Precinct and was released under $100 bond. He steadfastly refused to tell police the name of his woman companion, who fled from Emergency Hospital, where she was taken by a passing motorist, when she saw a police patrol in front of the hospital.

War Veteran Is Jailed On Brother's Request

A 90-day jail sentence was imposed on Luther Simpson, veteran of the World War, by Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday in Police Court on a charge of intoxication when the prisoner's brother, William Simpson, requested the incarceration.

The brother testified that the defendant was habitually intoxicated and asked that he be sent to jail with a recommendation of hospital treatment. Upon leaving the courtroom for the prisoners' dock, Luther Simpson shook hands with his brother and bade him adieu with a smile.

Two Homing Pigeons Land At Chevy Chase in Long Hop

Tiny Birds, One From Baltimore and Other of Philadelphia, Cared for After They Reach Haven; Believed Released in Distance Race.

A little corner of Chevy Chase is all agog over the two daring little fliers who were "guests" at two homes there yesterday after making forced landings in their front-yards a few hours apart Sunday afternoon, completely exhausted.

Unable to tell their names, their addresses or even to explain what they had been doing aloft so long to make their tongues hang out, the two visitors merely continued to accept the hospitalities of their benefactors while their exact identities remained secret.

At least these two little weary homing pigeons are being fed and sheltered until their owners can be found by their "hosts," C. C. Calhoun, of Braemer Forest, and M. Rea Shafer, of 6605 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase.

The bird being cared for by Mr. Calhoun was tentatively identified from its aluminum legband number, "IF28-B4614," as registered from Baltimore. Harry C. Burke, of 2435 Thirty-third street southeast, president of the International Federation of Homing Pigeon Fanciers, upon inquiry explained that the Maryland city was indicated by the letter "B," while the first two letters on the tag represented the bird's ownership by a member of the international federation.

Mr. Burke likewise identified the other bird from its legband symbol, "WSC28 F 292" as the property of the West Side Concourse, of Philadelphia, Pa. He expressed the belief that both pigeons had been liberated in one of the numerous races of the birds now in progress in various parts of the country.

Chamber Begins Member Drive.

An informal drive for new members was started yesterday by the membership committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Captains and committeemen met at luncheon at the city club and planned their campaign. Talks were made by Stephen Talkes, vice chairman of the committee; Charles W. Darr, president of the chamber, and Dan Weigle, who spoke on the value of chambers of commerce to communities.

Commander of Vice Squad In "Hot Water" After Raid

Warrant Charging Illegal Entry Asked for Sergt. Letterman as He Declines to Take Man Prisoner; Judge McMahon Refuses to Act.

Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, commander of the police vice squad, is in "hot water" again.

A request for a warrant accusing Letterman of illegal entry was made of Judge John P. McMahon yesterday at Police Court, but the magistrate refused "to act at this time." John H. Burnett, counsel for Palmer Sowers, who made the request, stated he would file a complaint against the sergeant with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, chief of police.

The attorney informed Judge McMahon that Letterman invaded 1632 U street northwest last Tuesday. It was said the sergeant suspected gambling was in progress in the premises. Although Sowers was found in the premises, Letterman is said to have left without placing him under arrest.

Burnett and his associate, James A. O'Shea, appeared at Police Court with Sowers yesterday and offered to surrender him to Letterman, but the sergeant declined to take Sowers prisoner. The attorneys then attempted to ascertain whether the sergeant was armed with a warrant when he entered the premises.

Letterman refused to "show his hand," and Burnett went before Judge McMahon. The magistrate referred him to Assistant District Attorney Joseph C. Bruce, who declined to authorize a warrant, and referred Burnett back to Judge McMahon. The lawyer asked the court to aid him in ascertaining whether or not a warrant was issued for Letterman's entry and this request was also refused.

Several months ago Letterman got into "hot water" by his testimony in a liquor case. He conducted a raid on a place, said to have been operated by Frank McCormick, widely known in local sporting circles. After a conversation with McCormick, who was found in the place, the sergeant walked into a rear room, and McCormick "escaped." Letterman, testifying in the case, admitted there was "something crooked," and was called before the District subcommittee of the House to explain. He did so satisfactorily.
